New Deal's Blundering Policies Keep Millions Idle, Says Knox

Specific Broadides Hurlled by "Fighting Colonel" During His Acceptance Speech.

Chicago.—The vague, unsuccessful economic experiments known as the New Deal were charged with "delaying recovery" and "with responsibility for the ten million still unemployed" by Colonel Frank Knox in his address accepting the Republican nomination for vice-president.

Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon gave the official address of notification. In his opening remarks, Colonel Knox pointed out that Senator Steiwer had struck the keynote of the campaign with "his clear call to all citizens to join in a crusade for sound government in America."

Colony Knox then pointed out that in the coming election it will be necessary for the people to decide whether the "administration in office has met its responsibilities honestly and fairly and wisely."

"At a time when private industry was struggling desperately for a new start it set up governmental enterprise to compete with private business. At a time when the burden of taxation was already hard to bear it embarked on a policy of squandering public funds and increasing the weight of taxes."

Farley Fears Him

Already credited with having Jim Farley and his New Deal spellbinders on the defensive is young, red-headed John D. M. Hamilton, of Topeka, Kan., new chairman of the Republican National committee.

Landon Urges Wisconsin to Save Its Idle Homes

Milwaukee, Wis.—"Wisconsin, with its thousands of beautiful homes and high percentage of home owners, is an example of much that is best in American life today," Gov. Alf M. Landon, Presidential nominee, wired the Republican State convention here.

"The people know that with election of a new administration next November the damned up forces of recovery will burst forth in a magnificent prosperity."

Presidents' Spending Compared

Milwaukee, Wis.—Appropriations of President Roosevelt's administration which were unspecified by congress totaled 13 billion 500 million dollars, or more than eight times the combined unspecified appropriations made to all the Presidents in the 143 preceding years.

Import Labor While Texas Pays Relief

Chicago.—The necessity of importing Mexicans to pick a bumper Texas cotton crop while 138,404 persons are on work relief in the Lone Star state is too much for one former Democrat.

Straight From the Heart

"It would be well for politicians to remember that there are still more people off relief than on it. These will have a say about the building of a political machine with their own hard-earned dollars."

"Telling Blows"

Highlights taken from the acceptance speech of Colonel Frank Knox, Republican candidate for vice president, at Chicago Stadium, July 30, 1936:

I charge the present administration with delaying recovery in the United States and the world.

The coercive control of bank credit leads unavoidably to control of investment and that leads to the end of competitive industry and free enterprise.

All the major New Deal experiments have ended in failure and economic loss.

Next November you will choose the American way.

America is too young, too vigorous, to be deceived by false promises of an easy way.

The people know that with election of a new administration next November the damned up forces of recovery will burst forth in a magnificent prosperity.

With the American system preserved, we shall have a free people, living in plenty and security, without exploitation of destitution.

to a government guided only by caprice.

A minute later, Colonel Knox gave a pledge to the people with the statement:

"Whatever concrete measures the Republican Party has in mind will be presented to the voters before election, not after. And whatever measures the Republican administration may urge upon Congress, not one will flout the Constitution of the United States. Not one will violate the obligation of contracts. Not one will break a promise."

Earlier in his address, the candidate had referred to the fact that the New Deal plans and experiments were not contained in the 1936 Democratic platform.

Amateur Experimenters. Avoiding any all mention of personalities, Colonel Knox drove home telling blow after telling blow:

"For more than three years the economic life of the country has been at the mercy of a crew of amateur experimenters, hacking at the vitals of American industry, agriculture, commerce and finance."

"It is now a race between exhaustion of Federal credit and the coming of natural recovery. It is a race between inflation and the revival of normal business activity."

"It (the New Deal) means Federal control over local business, over local bank credit, over local wages, over local conditions of work. It leads to Federal regimentation of the labor, the business, and the home of every American citizen. It leads to price-fixing and production control by Federal authority. It leads inevitably to the extinction of the small business man, to the end of free enterprise in America."

Coercive Control.

Colonel Knox specifically referred to the New Deal monetary policy with the declaration that "coercive control of bank credit leads unavoidably to control of investment and that leads to the end of competitive industry and free enterprise."

Even though the New Deal "failed in its job," Colonel Knox declared that recovery could not be permanently blocked by "governmental error," but only "retarded and discouraged."

Delays Recovery.

Without mincing words and straight from the shoulder came his: "I charge the present administration with delaying recovery, in the United States and in the world. I charge the present administration with responsibility for the ten million still unemployed."

The nominee next turned his attention to the broad view of the New Deal, which he described as "This policy of government by guess, officially explained by President Roosevelt as founded on a philosophy of try-anything-once. It began with a proposal for a belt of trees in a territory that Nature had decided should not have trees. It is ending with the use of public funds to conduct classes in taping."

Colonel Knox pointed out the major New Deal agencies, the AAA, the PWA, the CWA, the WPA and devaluation of the dollar were old in history before America was discovered and that they had failed in Babylon, Rome and England centuries ago.

"In reviewing the principles of the Republican party, the nominee asserted that 'It disapproves a government of men instead of a government of law. It prefers a government guided by constitutions
