SEEN HEARD around the NATIONAL

TASHINGTON, D. C .- Marking up increases 'n receipts from 48 of 65 classes of taxes, the internal revenue bureau reported that its total collections for the first quarter of this fiscal year climbed $164,000,000 over the same period a year ago.

The increase, a rise of almost 20 per cent, pushed aggregate collections to $1,009,994,623, compared with $845,471,253 in the corresponding period last year. Treasury officials said it was the first time since 1928 that first quarter collections had exceeded $1,000,000,-000. The receipts, however, were below the January-March quarter last year, when collections aggregated $1,079,000,000.

Leading the upturn last quarter were receipts from corporate and individual income, capital stock, liquor, cigarette, gasoline, and automobile levies. Increases of a million dollars or more were reported in tax categories.

Biggest Puncture

The biggest puncture in the picture of climbing revenues came in the agricultural adjustment tax column. These levies produced $40,855,-548 in the first quarter of last year but, because of invalidation by the Supreme court, contributed nothing this year. With the exception of this item, no decrease of as much as $1,000,000 was shown for the quarter this year in any single classification.

Included among declines of less than $1,000,000 were returns from taxes on wines and cordials, crude petroleum processed, brewers' wort and malt, chewing and smoking tobacco, and special taxes on brewers and dealers in malt liquor.

The largest increase in a single levy was reported for corporation income taxes, which rose $42,344,139 to $198,931,476.

Complication

Lewis Deschler, parliamentarian for the house of representatives, predicted possible legal complications when the next congress convenes. Unless the new house is able to elect its speaker and other officers at its opening session, January 3, the electoral votes cannot be counted in time to inaugurate the next Presiden. on January 20.

Deschler, whose task is keeping the house of representatives out of legal tangles, blames the 20th (Lame Duck) amendment to the Constitution for the probable diffi-

"It just isn't a house until it organizes," he explained, "and sometimes it requires several weeks to elect the officers.

"Next year the house will have exactly two weeks to organize in time for inauguration of the President," he added.

No More "Old Congresses"

The famous "lame duck" sessions of the old congress were eliminated by the 20th amendment. They ran from December until March 4. The old congress was able, therefore, to count the electoral votes. Now the new congress must elect officers at its opening session so as to be able to count the electoral votes the next day, as required by law.

Deschler said that the presence of a third party in the presidential election campaign always complicated the qualifying of the winning can-

For instance, if a third party captured a single state and the other electoral votes were about evenly divided between the two major parties, it might turn out that neither of the big parties had a majority of all the electoral votes. In that case, the election would be decided by the house. If the delay occurred, the President might not be chosen before January 20, the day he must be inaugurated.

Investigate Bids

Justice department officials are investigating "hundreds and hundreds" of cases in which firms, seeking government contracts for I supplying construction material, submitted identical bids.

Assistant Attorney General John Dickinson, head of the Justice department's anti-trust department, is responsible for the investigation of bids which might be collusive. He assigned three attorneys to the job. "Our investigations are simply fact-finding. We are not doing detective work," he said. President Roosevelt suggested last June that if federal agencies received identical bids they should be turned over to the Justice department for investigation. The suggestion, made to the ten regular departments and twelve independent offices, brought a flood of reports to Dickinson's office.

Steel and Cable Bids

One case involved a group of manufacturers and jobbers to supply steel tubing for the Grand Coulee dam reclamation project in Washington state. Another case concerned Platte project in Nebraska. bids were identical, at least one growth.

bidder submitted different and lower figures and contracts are being awarded."

The North Platte contract was awarded to the Nehring Electrical works of De Kalb, Ill., on a low bid of $16,487.69. Of the fourteen bids received on the job, seven offered the goods at a delivered cost price of $16,501.51, and two others had identical bids of $16,501.16.

Ten bids were received for the steel tubing on the Grand Coulee dam project, and seven were identical with a delivered cost of $22,013.22.

Dickinson and his aids are expected to complete their investigation by early December. A report will be made to the attorney general, and it is understood that the attorney general will then submit recommendations to the President.

Ask Higher Rates

Proposals for increases in permanent freight rates were filed with the Interstate Commerce commissien by the nation's railroads to compensate to some extent for the loss of $115,000,000 in revenue when emergency surcharges expire at the end of the year.

They said the proposed changes covering virtually the entire rate structure would increase some rates and reduce others, but on the whole would result in a "somewhat lower level of charges than that now in effect."

The commission was not asked to approve the changed rates, but to permit the filing of the rate tariffs for consideration as a whole instead of having to present hundreds of individual petitions.

In submitting the proposed increases, the roads told the commission they were confronted with a situation demanding "immediate steps to prevent a substantial deerease in their revenues."

Serious Situation

"For the first eight months of 1936," the petition said, "the net income of class one railroads was the same period the emergency charges authorized by the commission produced revenues to the class one railroads of $77,000,000.

"Without the emergency charges, which will expire December 31, 1936, in the absence of further orders by the commission, class one railroads would have failed to earn by approximately $60,000,000, their fixed charges for the first eight months of

The petition noted traffic had been improving but said the roads could not withstand the loss of revenue resulting from the elimination of surcharges without a revision of of labor, supplies and material had | with incredible rapidity. increased over $300,000,000 in the last two years.

"Even with the proposed rates. the railroads will still be in dire need of additional revenues which are to be obtained, if at all, only in the event of a very substantial increase in the present volume of traffic," the petition said.

Jarvis Island

Reports reached the Department of Interior that Great Britain is watching with interest the American colonization of Jarvis island, potential air base in the south Pacific.

Richard B. Plack, Interior department representative at Honolulu, said that Hawaiian youths serving as American colonists on Jarvis reported that an unidentified British warship remained near the island for a whole day last month. The ship then sailed away without attempting to put a landing party ashore.

Other information led department officials to believe the vessel was the cruiser Wellington, recently reported in the nearby south Pacific.

The visit of the warship to Jarvis followed a London report that Great Britain recently reasserted its sovereignty over the Phoenix islands, a group of eight with a population of about sixty, lying about 200 miles south of Jarvis.

Informal notice that Great Britain was not prepared to relinquish all claims to sovereignty over Jarvis and possibly Howland and Baker island was given earlier this year in the British parliament by J. H. Thomas, then British colonial min-

Jarvis, a mere sandbar nearly 1,000 miles south of Honolulu, is strategically situated on a potential United States-Hawaii-New Zealand air route. The government formally asserted American sovereignty over it and Howland and Baker islands, 1,000 miles to the west, in 1935.

@-WNU Service.

Jackknife Important Tool

Up to a few years ago the jackknife was one of the most important tools of the home, especially in the country. We might say, notes a our great-grandfathers lived in a wooden age, for a great many of the everyday utensils were made of wood, as metal articles were scarce. Therefore, whittling was an art with the boys of those times, and it was in winter that much of this whittling was done. The knife was for making things that were of some value or use, and not merely for passing away the time.

Fills Upholstered Furniture

Either hair or moss is used as filler for upholstered furniture. The best grade of hair is that of horse tail and horse mane mixed. Moss bids for copper cable and wire for in order to be a good filler must a transmission line on the North be thoroughly cleaned and picked by a picking machine. This rids "In each of these cases," Secre- it of sticks and leaves which are tary Ickes said, "while most of the ordinarily very prevalent in moss

Sungmas of Tibet

Crowds Witness Trance of Tibetan Sungma.

scene. A tall, curiously decorated and plumed iron hat, weighing about 50 pounds, was placed beside him.

pany the lamas in their mumbling prayers, while the incense went the round, and the silent audience awaited the spirit of Chechin. Suddenly sonorous blasts of large trumpets and deafening clash of cymbals burst forth, and the Sungma moved uneasily in his seat.

An Extraordinary Performance.

him, and his hands clasped his throat. The attending lama, a brother of Balung, now lifted the huge hat upon the Sungma's head and tied it firmly under the chin. By this time the performer was fully possessed by the spirit. The gargling sound is believed to be a sure sign of the presence of Chechin, who,

the classic relates, died by suffocating himself with a kattak, a silk

Balung still sat dreaming for a while; then all at once his body

began to sway and his legs to shake.

Frantically he threw himself backward while lamas held him and tried to balance him. He spat and groaned; blood oozed from his mouth and nostrils; his face became purple-inflated to such an extent

He took a sword handed to him, a strong Mongolian steel blade. In the twinkling of an eye he twisted

it with his naked hands into several

The Sungma tossed the 50-pound hat above his head; adjusted it again, meanwhile puffing like a steam engine. The perspiration running down his face mingled with the blood which oozed from his nose

The attending lamas wiped his face, and tried to comfort him. A lama now stood in front of him with a round silver platter on which reposed an offering, a triangular pyramid of tsamba, or barley-flour.

dough. This the lama held to the Sungma's face, so that his forehead touched it. The lamas changed the Still shaking, the possessed Sung-ma took a handful of rice, and threw it violently into the crowd. At this point the abbot of the monastery

approached, bowing and kowtowing,

only to be beaten severely on the back with the flat of a sword wielded

with merciless fury by the Sungma.

Fear spread among the crowd; the abbot fled; the Sungma continued to shake from head to foot with un-

Now was the time for worshipers

to receive Chechin's blessing. A regular fight ensued as the lamas of the monastery, each carrying a small silk scarf (kattak) as offering, thronged forward. Each lama tried to get to the Sungma to place a kattak on his shaking knees and receive the blessing of a blow, a puff

of breath from his distorted mouth,

or a gentle laying on of his hands.

Forward they surged, eager to reach the Sungma before the spirit of Chechin should leave his body.

A few managed to receive the blessing, while attending lamas, laying on unsparingly with birch whips,

Three More Seizures.

and blowing, threw himself backward exhausted and lay like a lifeless form for a few minutes. The spirit of Chechin had flown, none

When Balung rose, he was weeping and whining. His garments now were adjusted, and a different headgear, the sort worn by minor Sung-

mas, was placed upon his head.

Three of the underlings of Chechin

were to manifest themselves in this

Seizure was not long in coming.

Almost immediately the afflicted man leaned forward and began to shake. The lamas near him handed him bow and arrows and a flagstaff.

With outstretched arms he stood

The lamas again rushed to receive his blessing. The more privileged, the abbot and the Living Buddha of Yungning, came first;

then the mob. The latter were less fortunate, for only two had received the blessing when the shaking stopped and the Sungma again threw

He rested thus for only a minute;

then rose and with a terrific thump

fell back upon his chair, shaking like himself backward, groaning.

erect, spat, puffed, and blew.

All at once the Sungma, puffing kept off the eager mob.

knew whither.

Chungtien lama.

controllable convulsions!

tune and tempo of their chant.

loops and knots!

and mouth.

that the leather chin strap burst.

A deep, gargling sound escaped

Soon the Sungma began to accom-

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service. NCIENT Greece had her oracle of Delphi; Tibet has her Sungmas, men believed to have similar powers. Sungmas are, to the Tibetans, neither sorcerers nor incarnations, but the abodes of malignant spirits, or spirits, of demonized heroes who, subdued by saintly lamas or high intors of religion. These roving demon spirits, obedient to the spells cast over them, are said to select either a lama or a layman as their abode during the lifetime of the person thus selected. Distinct from incaranations, they manifest themselves involuntarily as well as voluntarily in their chosen carnations, have become the protecabodes. Any lamasery with a claim to importance has its oracle, though some of the supposed Sungmas are impostors who work themselves into approximately $16,400,000. During frenzy merely for pecuniary gain. Every Sungma has his fee, the amount depending on the importance of his demon spirit, and the wealth of the person who seeks the augury. Sometimes as much as 1,000 tankas ($100 or more) will be exacted.

Whether oral or written, the replies the Sungmas give to questions have true Delphic vagueness and ambiguity. They confine themselves mainly to advice concerning the performance of meritorious deeds to counteract evil influences or ward off calamities. The questions usually are written on slips of paper and handed to the Sungma, who, without looking at them, holds them base rates. It asserted that the cost above his head and "answers" them

Five Chief Ones In Lhasa.

Although there are many Sunggenuine or pretending, mas. throughout Tibet, the five of real importance reside in Lhasa. One of them, recognized as the state oracle, Na chung, is consulted by the Dalai Lama.

These oracles play an important role in the selection of high incarnations, or in the search for the incarnation of a deceased Dalai Lama.

It was several years ago at the lamasery of Yungning in northwestern Yunnan that a staff writer of the National Geographic Magazine learned of the existence of these mysterious Sungmas. The abbot told him that the famous Balung chu die. one of the Sungmas of Lhasa, was to perform in Yungning at the Feast of the Lights on the day of commemoration of the death of Tsong K'apa, founder of the Yellow lama church.

The human abode, or chu dje, of Sungma Balung chu dje, was the person of a Chungtien lama, a native of the Tongwa (Tibetan) tribe, the son of a Tongwa bandit chief of northwest Yunnan. This "possessed" lama, who had been residing in Lhasa for several years, had stopped at Yungning on his way to visit his birthplace in Chungtien. He is said to be the abode of the powerful demon Chechin.

There are several Sungmas who are supposed to be the chu dje of Chechin. Of these the most important is a lama called Betin Konser chu dje from the name of Chechin's house on the market square of Lhasa; and the second in rank is the one the writer saw perform in Yungning-Balung chu dje, named after another residence of Chechin. As their names indicate, they are considered "houses" of Chechin.

Both Balung chu dje and Betin Konser chu dje, before going into a trance; that is, before Chechin takes possession of them, don the robes of a Sungma-elaborately decorated embroidered garments often made of gold brocade, the gift of some devout worshiper. Thus arrayed, they take their seats in foreign fashion-not cross-legged-on writer in the Montreal Herald, that ornate chairs, usually near the entrance within the main temple of the lamasery.

Invoking the Spirit.

Some of the lamas in attendance begin to chant the classic of Chechin, beseeching the spirit to take possession of his chu dje; while some ring bells or blow conch shells; and others, carrying incense burners, walk around the bowed figure of the waiting Sungma, wafting the fragrant smoke of juniper twigs as offering to Chechin.

Such was the beginning of the performance in which the writer had the rare experience of watching Sugma Balung chu dje. The Sungma sat motionless on the throne in the somber chanting hall, his face buried in his hands, breathing the fragrant juniper smoke, while the deep, low tones of the an epileptic. In this state he received chanting lamas, punctuated by bell | the homage of the throng.

CPEAKING on the question of If all discontented wives would trial marriages, a well known look deeply unto themselves, writer said, "There should be no measure themselves, stop fooling need for trial when two people themselves, many might discover know their own abilities and have that the other man they might measured themselves accurately. have married is a self-nurtured Two people who understand them- illusion; that the career of their

Wives, Know Yourselves!-

Accurate Analysis Will Do Much to

Overcome Difficulty in Wedded Life

out them.

marriage.

@ Bell Syndicate. - WNU Service.

any difficulty living happily together after marriage." That is a new slant on the question of success in marriage, supplements a woman writer of national fame. Not "Know my husband" - or "wife," but "know devastating beauties nor always thyself!" And, come to think of it, isn't most of the discontent and dissatisfaction in marriage traceable to ideas of ourselves-that may be miscenceptions, no less than our ringing and the blowing of conch illusions about the other person? shells, lent mystery to the whole

How many women's dissatisfaction with their husband has as its source the thought of all they gave up to marry him, all they "might have had" if they had married a doing their part of trying to make certain other man?

How many women's discontent effort on the part of one must inwith the role of wife and mother evitably go a long way toward a springs from the thought of how much more fascinating pastimes they might have had if they had followed that career?

How many girl's impossible expectations of a fulltime lover and Prince Charming originates in an exaggerated notion of their own devastating beauty and charm?

Value of Persuasion

VIOLENCE ever defeats its own ends. Where you cannot drive you can always persuade. A gentle word, a kind look, a good-natured smile can work wonders and accomplish miracles. There is a secret pride in every human heart that revolts at tyranny. You may order and drive an individual, but you cannot make him respect you.-Hazlitt.

Nothing that was worthy in the past departs-no truth or goodness realized by man ever dies, or can die.-T. Carlyle.

Building and Rebuilding

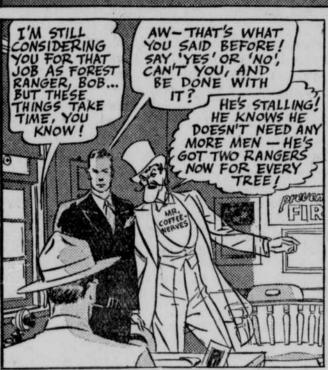

Rebuilding a ruined house or a ruined career is a much more difficult matter than building new. It takes more courage, more skill and more ability. But it is being done every day.

The true past departs not.

BOB JOINS THE RANGERS!

OF COURSE, children should never drink coffee. And many grown-ups, too, find that the caffein in coffee disagrees with them. If you have headaches or indigestion or can't sleep soundly...try Postum. It contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened.

You may miss coffee at first, but after 30 days you'll love Postum for its own rich, satisfying flavor. Postum comes in two forms-Postum Cereal, the kind you boil, and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. Either way it is easy to make, delicious, economical, and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.

FREE-Let us send you your first week's supply of Postum free! Simply mail coupon. copr. 1936, G. F. CORP.

GENERAL FOODS, Battle Creek, Mich. Send me, without obligation, a week's supply of . Instant Postum Postum Cereal (check kind you prefer).

City_______State.

Fill in completely, print name and address.

If you live in Canada, address: General Foods, Ltd.,

Cobourg, Ont. (Offer expires July 1, 1937.)