

Over the County

SOUTHWEST BREEZES
By Romaine Saunders

Dr. Sturdevant of Atkinson, was a recent Sunday afternoon guest at Riley's.

The active apostles of the "share the wealth" crowd seem principally interested in getting their share.

Tom Baker was the first in this neighborhood in the field with four horses and a disc. He will sow wheat.

If wrong, gladly I'll stand corrected. It doth appear this great America is definitely on the down grade.

Buying corn at a dollar thirty-five a bushel from the imported stocks and selling at two bits when they have a crop gives the Holt county farmer the opportunity for some figuring to ascertain where he can locate his share of the "increased farm income."

Caught by the candid camera, with Mrs. So-and-so and Mrs. So-and-so, cigarettes and bottles and all the trimmings at a winter resort night club, an automobile magnate learned that his plant faces a unionization strike. The scene suggests effective campaign material for the agitators to circulate among the workers.

It is the absent-minded professor we hear about but that characteristic seems not to belong alone to the imagined figures of the fun makers. A prominent lady of the southwest decided to send a hat to town to be cleaned. The hat box was got out and the package wrapped and ready to send. She then discovered her hat was still hanging on the peg.

Three hundred mice less in the neighborhood helps some. That is the catch reported made by a little boy the past few months. Not alone the instinct of the hunter was involved but the added and greater interest of a penny a mouse being paid by dad. Field mice came to join the house variety last fall as there was nothing in the fields for them to feed on. Thus the house and barn pests were doubled in numbers and wholesale killings have resulted.

The venerable judges of the supreme court are treating indignities coming out of official and unofficial circles with something of a fine scorn that adds immeasurably to the dignity and poise of that grand old tribunal. It is more than a gambler's guess that each one of the nine have a degree of patriotism and genuine concern for the welfare of the nation comparable with that at the White House. The court does not put on the blare and bombast that appeals to the jazzy minded but their calm and quiet dignity is appealing strongly to a large body of citizens.

Mrs. Saunders has word from her brother, W. E. Meals, a former O'Neill boy, that he is in New York City arranging the purchase of the necessary equipment for mine development to be carried out by the company he represents in South Africa and as soon as arrangements are complete will sail from the New York port for the African destination. Will's home is at San Diego, Calif., but his work carries him to far corners of the earth. Frank Meals, a cousin and also an O'Neill boy, is at the Brooklyn navy yard. Frank had an interesting letter in The Frontier last summer.

Just as he had planned to tear into the spring work after getting settled in the old William Carpenter place, Bernard Kennedy found himself laid up in bed nursing wounds and bruises sustained when two wheels of a hay wagon passed over him. In driving thru a gate at Cuttler's on his way west for a load of hay he was caught under the wagon, a front and hind wheel both passing over his head and body. The left leg was injured, the side of his face skinned and bruised and frames of his glasses bent out of shape. He was able to proceed after the hay which was loaded for him and then drove home with the load.

MEEK AND VICINITY

The Morris Graham family spent Tuesday evening at the Frank Griffith home.

Since the Kivit family moved to the Pete Lindberg farm, Bonnie has been staying at McDonald's so as to attend the same school the rest of the term.

Roy Spindler was taken to the hospital at O'Neill Saturday, suffering with pneumonia. He had been ill for several days before pneumonia developed. His many friends are hoping for his recovery. Mrs. S. J. Benson of O'Neill, spent the week-end at the home of her son Blake and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hubby and Mrs. Howard Rouse and Delbert, drove to Atkinson for a visit at the Mariedy Hubby home Thursday.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Rudolph Johnson and Mrs. Charles Clouse. About sixteen ladies were present. The ladies are quilting on a quilt that Mrs. John A. Robertson drew last fall, which had little done on it during the winter due to road conditions. The hostesses served a delicious lunch. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Roy Karr.

The Soviet government, it is said, will finance a new defense program from its profits on food. There is no question here about who will pay for the communists' brotherly military program.

Their Days are 52 Minutes Longer

If you are one of those persons who think days should have more than 24 hours, you will be interested to learn that:

A number of families kept a record of their use of the telephone... and reported an average time saving of 52 minutes a day through making telephone calls.

When you run your errands in an hour's less time by telephone, you are adding a free hour to your day.

Besides giving you leisure time, the telephone keeps you in touch with friends, enables you to call help in time of need, helps you do more with less effort—all for only a few cents a day.
