Hittler and Mussolini may not be officially taking part in the Spanish civil war but the scrap gives them a fine opportunity to try out the latest thing in munitions.

It is said that the administration in the interest of economy, has slowed down plans for building the Jefferson Memorial. Well, Jefferson always did believe in economy.

Mount Pavlov in Alaska, a real volcano, has become active again. Maybe Secretary Wallace can hire it to quit working.

THE NEBRASKA SCENE

By the Lowell Service Lincoln, Nebr.—Furore over the increased state tax levy will ultimately uncover one of the hidden reasons for the boost and a potential cause of higher taxes in the future.

Bureaus, commissions and departments of government have multiplied with amazing rapidity at the state house in the last four years. The expense of these mushroom departments, hidden for a time, eventually reach the auditor's office. There is no check on these duplications of state expenses. A chart of the various commissions and an outline of their alleged duties would be more intricate than a play-by-play diagram of a football game.

The taxpayers' legues have devoted their major efforts to checking and studying the expenses of county and local government. They have taken slight interest in the duplication of state activities. In fact, the representatives of the legues actually helped in the creation of some of the tax-eating commissions.

Almost a mill higher than last year is the new state levy for Nebraska. To be exact, it is .88 of a mill higher than the 1.76 rate of 1936, or 2.64 on $1,000. One reason given for the raise is that all liquor taxes now go to the state assistance fund, while last year the taxes on 3.2 beer went into the general fund. The new levy is calculated to raise $5,433,713.91 for the expenses of the state government.

In the increase in the levy, the politically skeptical see a return to the policy that caused embarrassment more than a decade ago. The levy was reduced by the governor as a prelude to his candidacy for a second term. A committee of the legislature found that the administrations of McKelvie, the first Bryan administration, and the two terms of McMullen set the state in the red to the tune of five millions.

Art Weaver levied a special tax to pay the deficit. The high tax argument was used to defeat him in 1930.

"The 1.76 levy," declared a student of government, "was merely an overdraft. The levy should have been 2.29. Then the levy this year could have been 2.32. As it is, the taxpayers must take the hike on the nose the first year after the election."

Citizens interested in the enforcement of the law in the 92 counties of the state other than Douglas look askance at the attempt of certain ministers and others to divert the energies of the attorney general's office to a purely local scrap in Omaha.

Some time ago the attorney general was assailed because of the activities of bookies in Omaha. Ministers wanted action—action at once.

Investigation indicated that a local ordinance had been passed, designed to legalize race track gambling, and that the sum of $500 each had been paid as an occupation tax by seventy establishments. It was claimed that the pari-mutuel was the only form of legalized gambling in Nebraska. Bets must be placed at the race track.

"Some time ago," said an Omaha lawyer, "some metropolitan papers in the east began furnishing the race track news. The attempt to legalize this form of gambling followed. Why bother the attorney general? He has less men and less money at his command than the county attorney of Douglas county. Why not demand action of the city and county officials? Why not ask the governor to remove any official who is not doing his duty?"

One of the most active and independent members of the Nebraska Supreme Court seems to be Justice Edward F. Carter, 40, of Gering, according to a synopsis of supreme court activities recently compiled. Justice Carter dissented seven times from the majority opinion since last September and wrote 35 opinions, more than any other member of the high court. Justice L. B. Day, 48, of Omaha, came next with five dissents and 26 opinions; next, Justice W. B. Rose, 75, of Lincoln, three dissents, 25 opinions;

Justice B. H. Paine, 65, of Grand Island, two dissents, 25 opinions; Justice George Eberly, 66, of Stanton, one dissent, 30 opinions; and Justice E. E. Good, 75, of Wahoo, one dissent, 26 opinions. Chief Justice C. A. Goss, 73, of Omaha, wrote 33 opinions and disagreed with none of his six colleagues. Judge C. E. Eldred of McCook and Judge Edward P. Clements of Grand Island, two of the 17 district judges assisted at various times, each registered one dissent.

On July 24, five more persons had been killed by automobile accidents in Nebraska in 1937 than in 1936. The record then totaled 152; last year it was 147.

Only about a million seedling trees are to be distributed to the farmers of Nebraska this year as compared with 1,660,000 last year, according to Clayton W. Watkins, extension forester at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture. Not more than 600 will be furnished for any one demonstration, FOUR but farmers of the state will continue to pay only a cent each for the trees. Methods are to be put into use which he thinks will result in increased survival.

After August 16, administrators and executors of estates involving personal property will be paid on a higher scale, according to the provisions of a law amended by the last legislature. County Judge Reid points out that the change does not apply to real estate and applies only to persons appointed after Aug. 16.

Director Louis Bucholz of the department of agriculture has issued a bulletin classifying Diesel fuel oil and relieving this class of fuels from taxation. The Diesel fuels have a boiling point in excess of 200 degrees Fahrenheit, he rules. Nebraska citizens, purchasing nontaxable fuels for their own use outside the state, do not have to pay taxes. If the fuel is to be resold the tax is 25 cents a barrel, if less than 10 barrels is inspected at one time. If the ten barrels, or more, be inspected, the fee shall be 1 1/2 cents a barrel. In the same bulletin, transport drivers are exhorted to "have a little pride" and keep "transported washed and clean."

Former Director W. B. Banning has intimated to friends that his disconnection with the department of agriculture was most unexpected. "I spent more than an hour with the governor," he confided, "reviewing my plans for increasing the efficiency of the department. About ten minutes after I got back to my desk, the Associated Press called me up and asked for a statement. Evidently the governor had given out the appointment of my successor before I went to his office for the friendly chat."

When the new trucking bill, LB 178, goes into effect August 16, there will be an entirely new set of regulations to govern the industry. An effort is being made to condense the rules regulating the trucking industry into concise language. Railway Commissioner Maupin has been scanning the regulations from other states. Suggestions from the commissioners are being sent to B. L. Knudsen, the railway commission expert, who will outline the regulations in final form.

At the request of Neil C. Vandemoer, director of state assistance, an opinion has been rendered from the office of Attorney General Richard C. Hunter on what legal restrictions there may be to prevent counties from making a levy for relief, under the bill passed by the last legislature permitting such a levy up to one mill. The opinion states that in no case can the total levy for all county purposes, including relief, exceed five mills. Inheritance taxes may be used for relief purposes, and a tax of one mill for relief may be levied, regardless of any other statutory provision.

District Judge Broady is deliberating over the case of Swanson vs. Swanson. Shall Secretary of State Harry Swanson have an air cooling system in his office at the expense of the state? Land Commissioner Leo Swanson says he shan't, that as custodian of the capitol, he has cut the water pipes once, and that he'll do it again if necessary. Attorneys for that secretary of state point out that a similar system is used in the office of the governor, without objection from the land commissioner; also that the cost of the water that runs it is very little, anyhow. Attorneys for Leo claim that it starts a bad precedent, and that if Harry's office is air cooled, every other office in the capitol will be demanding similar privileges. The governor's office, Leo asserts, is in a class by itself.

GETTIN' THE BUSINESS

means giving the mileage

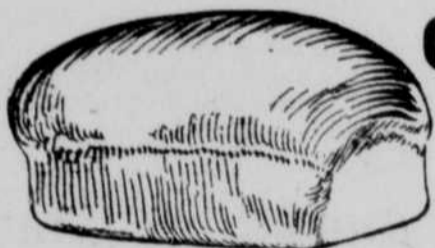

It's up to me to make this business go, because it's mine. I never did a smarter thing than featuring Conoco Germ Processed oil, with all its long mileage for you. Talk doesn't make mileage or customers, but I can tell you what does... Oil-Plating your engine with Germ Processed oil. The patent Germ Process makes oil actually take hold of every working part and keep it coated with a durable Oil-Plating... entirely extra to the regular moving type of oil film. Oil-Plating backs up the oil film while the car is running, and never drains down during hours of parking. Then you'll never start up without lubrication. And at the end of your longest run on a hot day, your engine will still have its full safe plating of Conoco Germ Processed oil. The way it lasts gives me a right to be called Your Mileage Merchant.
