Over the Back Yard Fence

Orchids to Ruth Ann Biglin for the best wreck of the week. Brickbats to Williams and Calvert! 'Nuff said! And speaking of orchids the gold medal of the week goes to Joe Curran for being the life of the party, although Leo the football hero made an awful cute nurse-maid to Oswald, Poppy Hammond's elephant.

By the way, I hear that Didge Jordan has reformed these days. She's walking the straight and narrow path, 'er I mean keeping to the right, no the left, I mean the center! Oh, well, Didge always gets what she wants!

It rather elevated my eyebrows to hear the T. N. T.'s swear that all their business goes to Bauman's now, and it shoved the last six up an inch, when I heard that Bobby Sauers kicked Nicky Coyne in the head. All of which brings to mind the fact that Nicky and Bobby are working their way thru college by matching fingers!

Eighth wonder of the world—the nonchalance with which Rose Mary Biglin walks in at 3 a. m., and the way Ruth Ann is holding her nose in the air on account of someone told her she was the best dancer he had ever danced with. Know who, Leroy?

Nothing like a lick of Jeep Parkins sucker as an appetizer after twenty kids have stood in line in front of you; and after she and Brownie had worked so hard winning it with their Saturday night fling!

Here and There: Charley Yarnall dressed in, soldier outfit saying, "I'm in the dough, boy!"

Some one ought to really donate Jean Biglin a trip to France so she could show them how a real Apache dancer flings it.

Nice work, Harriet! Didn't even get the car out of the garage, but then it's the man who pays.

Well as the postman says to Lanone and Midge, "There's no male for you." It's a cinch it won't bother Midge and Lanone only waited until Sunday night! —Miss D. Tective.
