The government has spent $10,000,000,000 more than it has taken in since 1933 to buy an industrial recovery and judging from recent activities our recovery doesn't seem to appreciate it.

President Gives and Takes
The President looked in fine physical condition at the National Press Club's dinner. He took good naturedly the usual lampooning on the part of the newspaper men. While the President was the principal speaker and while he had many important things to say, all that he did say, however, was "off the record" and no newspaperman as yet has broken the pledge not to write what the chief executive has to say at these "off the record" meetings. The President's son, James, was at his side and aided him to and from the banquet table and Col. Starling with his staff of secret service men, was also on hand. At these newspaper gatherings, where the President is the guest of honor, the chief executive becomes "one of the boys" and "kids" them as much as they "kid" him.

Fight Farm Bill Compulsion
It will be some time before a farm bill is written and made into law. There's a fight between the House Agriculture committee and the Agriculture Secretary's office. The House committee's bill is about written. Two things are holding it up. One is the matter of how to get the money and the other is the bloc which is fighting against anything that sounds like compulsion.

Swamped in Propaganda
Hundreds of sacks of mail are in nearly every congressman's office. Most of this mail, however, is made up of free leaflets, free advice from vested interests on various bills which have been proposed and all kinds of propaganda for and against proposed legislation. Some of this mail even includes printed bills which members are asked to introduce or voluminous printed matter with suggestions for new legislation. Early next year the Roads committee will have the matter of annual appropriations for federal aid for highways. Cement, steel and bridge and other material people are starting the annual barrage on members on how important it is to the nation to continue federal aid for highways.

Members Against War
Most of the letters from home contain pleas against anything that would look like involving our country in another war. Many pathetic letters from gold star mothers are on hand urging members to stand firm against any kind of war. All present indications are that so far as members are concerned, they are mostly against war. Most of them talk against war. Most of them say they would vote against any kind of war. On the other hand there seems to be a very strong movement here to get this country into the World Court of the League of Nations. Because a lot of members fear such relationship might entangle this government more with foreign countries, they are starting a counter-movement

House Marks Time
The opening of the special session of Congress was not accompanied by any extra features. The President did not come to the House to deliver his message, but it was sent up and read by the clerk. No member knows what's going to come up first. Everything is in a chaotic mess and the leaders are just waiting on the committees to bring something up to work on. The southerners are getting ready to fight against the anti-lynching bill in the Senate. The bill has already passed the House. The House is waiting on the committee to bring up a farm bill and every member who is interested in agriculture has a half dozen amendments waiting to introduce at the proper time.

Headache Pills For Congressmen
The secretary to Congressman Crawford of Michigan, wrote the sponsors of Gen. Hugh Johnson for a copy of the General's talk. The sponsors who sell a certain bromide wrote him that they didn't have any more copies of the speech but they sent him a lot of free headache tables.

President Lets Up On Business
There is all kinds of talk here about what's going to happen. Most of the wonder is about the money question—about business and about our gold buying program and war. Members of the House who have been talking against useless spending are starting to fight the executive plans to put the blame on Congress. The executive branch is making some passes about saving and balancing the budget, but neither side has yet shown any real disposition to trim down some of the big spending items which are listed as unnecessary.

Bureaucrats Fear Cuts
Because next year will be election year, more members will be doing a lot of talking for the record and home consumption. This is an old congressional custom the old timers tell us. Newspapermen say the various press conferences these days are becoming less interesting and many of them are very dull. That is because there is nothing real new to discuss and because there is a serious program for retrenching and economizing. Members who have promised a lot of new things at home and who came here early to start their programs, tell us they are meeting with disappointment because some of the bureau chiefs tell them they fear they won't have as much money to spend this year as they did a year ago. Some of the bureau chiefs are afraid that maybe the legislators are serious in their talks of balancing the budget, the bureau may become the victims of efficiency experts and may even be eliminated for the sake of economy.

Disposition to trim down some of the big spending items which are listed as unnecessary.
Everyone agrees that there won't be any war, but nobody, even the experts can explain why we put out advertisements saying that we will pay $36.00 an ounce for all the gold the world can produce and at the same time we ship so much gold to France. One member says he's afraid if we ship so much gold out of the country these foreigners might bring it back and sell it back to us at a profit. There had been some talk that it may be necessary to raise the gold instead of lowering it.

Big business is having some conferences now with the executive branch and news men and congressmen and even senators say they think that the executive branch is now out to help business recover from its present slump. One argument is made over the probable reasons why the Congress was told to hold up the program to form five or six TVA or power districts in the country. The utilities have been told that if they lower power rates there won't be any more government competition in the power business. That move is very significant in the minds of members on both sides of the House. It means to them that business which considers it has been spanked the last few years, is going to be given some consideration and asked to get busy and start the factory wheels to grinding again. There will be a lot of stress laid on a plan to change the taxing system to help little business which claims it has been handicapped by the existing law.
