The wedding of Miss Sadie Kirschbraun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kirschbraun, to Mr. Herbert Heavenrich of Chicago, was quietly celebrated Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the attractive residence of the bride's parents, at Thirty-eight avenue and Harney street. Rabbi Frederick Cohn officiated. The rooms were beautifully decorated with a profusion of pink roses and rose buds, combined with ferns and southern smilax.

The bride entered from the stairway with her father, and was charming in a wedding gown of white crepe de meteor with long train. The bodice and short skirt were of shadow lace embroidered with rhinestones. The train was of duchesse point lace. The front of the skirt was caught over the tunic with orange blossoms, and tulle butterflies were at the back of the skirt and on the train. She wore an imported veil of silk tulle hand embroidered with a ring design, and duchesse point lace edged the veil. Orange blossoms, which the bride's mother wore at her wedding, held the veil in place. Roses with a shower of lilies of the valley formed the bride's bouquet.

Miss Edith Heavenrich, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and wore pink charmeuse with overdraped and tulle of shadow lace embroidered with rhinestones. Many to Be Given a Brighter Christmas by Mrs. Ahlquist

Mrs. G. W. Ahlquist, 2746 Meredith avenue, who for some twenty-six years has done more charitable work alone than some of the institutions, is facing a difficult problem in providing for her Christmas charges. She is undertaking this year to provide Christmas cheer for the sick and crippled and aged inmates of the county hospital, and likewise to make at least one bright spot in the lives of the girls who are confined in the county jail. There are some 250 to care for at the

Why Suffer

The organized canvass of other organizations for Christmas charity has made the work of Mrs. Ahlquist harder than usual and she is wondering today, where she will get funds for her work. One gift of $5 from a girl, her mother and sister, will go a long way toward making this task possible and a gift of $5 Monday also is most welcome. However, still more money is needed to brighten up these people on Christmas day, and those who can pause in their giving to divert even a little to help her will be greatly appreciated.
