A disappointing cable caused a slightly lower opening on wheat, but it immediately developed that there was a good demand through commission houses and the market had a quick spurt. This advance, however, was not maintained, the ensuing reaction being attributed to a declining tendency in rorn. Nothing was said about export business but the northwest markets held very well and this latter factor contributed some firmness to the local market. Various local operators were reported as seiting, but the market, notwithstanding, showed quite a little stendiness. There is a strong undertone and it is believed this will eventually be reflected in a higher. OMARIA, Dec. 31, 1915.
