Homesteader Suffers Misfortunes Aplenty

He was knocked down and in falling broke his left leg at the hip joint. The police patrol took him to St. Joseph's hospital, and Graham was arrested

EXPERIENCE OFTEN LACKING

Faulty Construction Said to Be Due Generally to Limited Knowledge of the Persons Doing the Building.

Proposed legislation to standardize rules for the use of cement and concrete in building operations in Nebraska were outlined in general at the final session of the Mid-West Cement "Users' association at Hotel Rome. A committee, with W. H. De Bolt of Beatrice as chairman, was authorized to draw up desired legislation along such lines and present it to the next legislature. A. B. Becker, a cement expert, and L. V. Rice, a concrete engineer, both of Chicago, endorsed the move as a wise one for the future of Enjoy Reunion public and private buildings and works.

"The unsatisfactory condition of conrete sidewalks and pavements and the occasional collapse of concrete build-ings and bridges," said Chairman De Oberlin college, gathered at the Uni-Bolt of the committee, " is due to lack versity club last evening for the annual of proper experience or scientific engineering on the part of builders. When a safe and comprehensive concrete building code is enforced by statute, these conditions will be avoided." How concrete meets the farmer's needs was told and illustrated with stereopticon urer, had charge of the reunion, the slides by Mr Becker. He showed pictures of how concrete had been successfully used on the farm for constructing houses, barns, outbuildings, silos, fenca there. They are Robert L. Ewing, pres- and gate posts, foundations, water tanks and troughs, roads, paths, walls and for many other purposes.

The development of the cement industry to its present gigantic proportions in the United States, was outlined by Mr. Rice. Frank G. Odell, a farm magazine editor, lelivered an address on "Building a Man with a Concrete Backbone." He said that manhood needs plenty of sand and flinty material, reinforced with tempered steel. animated with plenty of live matter and all cemented firmly together.

George F. Lillie of Fremont was elected president of the association for this year-He read a paper prepared by E & Hanson, editor of the Cement Bra of Chicago, concerning concrete plants. Other officers elected were Charles Tracy of Loup City, vice president; Frank Whipperman, Omaha, re-elected secretary-treasurer; William Achison, Superior: N. J. Peterson, Omaha; Isaac Hird, Manilla, Ia., and

W. B. Farris, Albion, executive board. The date and place of the next convention will be decided later by the board. Special committees on the number of blocks made from one sack of cement. and on alleged discrimination against cement users, failed to report, but were ordered to do so to the board, so that their findings may appear in the league's gearbook. Resolutions were adopted thanking for courtesies extended by the city of Omaha, the Commercial club, the public, the Panama lecture management and the newspapers,
