Among the hundreds of pictures on display at the kodak exhibition, which Omaha will see for the first time Monday night, is a remarkable group contributed by Carl E. Akeley, the famous big game hunter.

Colonel Roosevelt's trip to Africa at the close of his presidential term was no doubt inspired by Mr. Akeley's description of hunting in that country. At any rate Akeley was invited to join the colonel's party, and while he was unable to accept the invitation for the full time, the two mighty ninrods arranged to meet in Uganda later and hunted together for a couple of months. It was on this expedition that these pictures were taken.

Shown as enlargements and on the screen in one of the stereopticon lectures, the pictures give a pretty good idea of the thrills that must accompany big game hunting in the jungle. A particularly startling picture is that of a huge rhinoceros slung against the sky. Fortunately for the hunters in this instance, rhinos have poor eyesight and their charges are guided largely by the sense of smell or hearing. This monster became aware of Mr. Akeley's presence through one or other of these senses and charged by within ten yards of him, the hunter standing perfectly still. Another picture in the same group shows some hippopotami in the Tana river. It was while Mr. Akeley was getting ready to snap these hippos that the charge was made. He would have jumped in the river for safety if the water beasts had not looked just as formidable as the mountain of flesh descending upon him. He was surely between the devil and the deep sea.

In this Akeley collection are also elephants taken dead and alive, enormous crocodiles basking in the sun and beautiful leopards speared by Nandy hunter. The exhibition will open Monday evening at 7 at the Auditorium and will be open daily thereafter from 2 to 10 o'clock with the lecture and motion picture program at 3 and 8. Admission is by complimentary ticket, obtainable of any kodak dealer.

Mr. Kimball is to Repeat Art Lecture

Mrs. Charles C. Kuntze has bought Ossip Lindé's "Quaint Corner of Brittany" now on exhibition at the public library and a movement to buy Walter Palmer's "Languishing Oak Leaves" is being agitated.

Thomas R. Kimball lectured at the art exhibit Friday afternoon and will repeat his talk Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the request of the committee, because on account of bad weather many were deterred from attending.

"The purpose of a good picture is to give the most pleasure," said Mr. Kimball, adding that the hanging of pictures amounts to a science. That the multitudes was often as good a judge of a picture as an artist, was the opinion expressed by the speaker. He emphasized the difference between old time paintings which were compositions, or pictures and the new ones which are for the most part landscapes.

William Wendt, painter of "Bunny Slopes" to the effect that only through the efforts of women could art be encouraged in western cities.

Mr. Kimball has just returned from the Chicago loan exhibition and declared that the paintings in the Omaha exhibit were just as good, and some of them better than those in the Chicago exhibit.

CAUSE OF ILL HEALTH

Wine Times Out of Tea, it's the Kidneys. The subtle and delicate character of kidney disease often leads people to believe they are suffering from neuralgia, rheumatism, pleurisy, heart weakness, and other acute forms of disease. In reality all such troubles sometimes arise through failure of the kidneys to properly perform their functions of removing the poisonous matter from the blood. Unmistakable signs of kidney disease are pains in the head, swelling under the eyes, dry skin, dull complexion, tired feeling, loss of energy, etc. Many physicians say that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy is the only medicine that deals with certainly the frail tubular structures constituting these important organs. It soothes and heals the inflamed parts and gradually restores them to their normal condition. For sale by all druggists in 50c and $1.00 bottles. A sample free if you write Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 32 Rochester, N. Y.
