A dispatch to the Los Angeles Herald from San Francisco says:

"Colonel Wallace C. Taylor of the Philippine constabulary arrived today on the liner Nile from the orient and in the course of the voyage from Hawaii he conducted a wireless courtship.

He resolutely kept secret the name of his bride-to-be, but admitted that he would be married soon. She is a Los Angeles society girl—that much became known.

The last day out he was swayed of honor at a dinner, to which every passenger sent a mock wireless message.

Colonel Taylor went to the islands with the second expedition as captain of the First Nebraska volunteers. He was later transferred to the regular army and then entered the constabulary.

In 1895 he led a detachment into Samar

Fashion Hint

By LA RACONTEUSE.

An adorable little gown for a dinner dance and characteristic of the new short length is this original evening gown developed in "gros crepe d'or," embroidered with roses and rubies.

The bodice is of beaded and spangled net, opened in square over a small waistcoat, totally embroidered. It is edged, as the finish of the sleeves, that are broadly kimono, by a row of strass.

The skirt, draped in the new "peg top" style, fastened in front and slit at the height of the knees over a gathered flounce of beaded silk muslin.

A pendant of pearls fastens the bodice and falls over the skirt.

In Honor of Bride.
Mrs. J. Jensen entertained Wednesday evening at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Ella Siedler, whose wedding will take place February 24. The rooms were beautifully decorated, the color scheme, red and white, being carried out in red candles, hearts and cupid. Progressive high five was played and prizes won by Miss Olga Spicka and Miss Mae Podolak. Those present were:

Misses—Alma Furst, Rena Furst, Maude Furst, Alma Bialera, Olga Spicka, Mae Podolak.

MUST BE SOBER TO GET MONEY

Drunken Man Cannot Withdraw Deposits from Postal Savings Bank.

ONE CLERK APPLIES THE RULE
Finds a Reason for Withholding Cash Demanded Upon the Certificate of Deposit and the Depositor Submits.

Besides the fact that the deposits in the postal savings bank are guaranteed by the pledge of the government, there are other features of that institution as it is conducted in Omaha, that it is considered most appeal to the thrift of depositors who are inclined to be profuse.

An intoxicated man cannot withdraw his money from the postal savings bank here. While the rules for the regulation of that department do not permit the clerk in charge of the postal savings bank to refuse to pay out money to such an individual, another rule permits the clerk to refuse to give money to depositors who come to the savings bank under the influence of liquor.

Friday morning a depositor in the local postal savings bank reeled up to the window and produced a number of certificates, demanded a sum of more than $100, at the same time declaring that he was going to paint the town red.

The clerk in charge caught the odor of liquor from the man's breath and refused to pay the certificates.

The depositor insisted that it was his money and that he was entitled to withdraw it at any time. Finally he endorsed one of the certificates and pushed it across the counter. The clerk shook her head.

The depositor was furious and left the office in a rage.

The clerk refused to pay the certificate because the man was drunk, but the technical reason, the excuse found in the rules, was that the signature on the certificate made by the man when he was intoxicated, did not correspond with that which he had filed there, and for that reason she was excused for not paying the certificates.

"Tomorrow that same man will come in when he is sober and thank me and perhaps even buy me a box of candy or a pair of theater tickets. Who knows?" she said.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS WILL HOLD MEETINGS MONDAY

An anti-suffrage meeting will be held at Turpin's hall, Twenty-eighth and Farnam streets, Monday afternoon. There will also be a meeting at the American theater at 8 o'clock, when Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, national president of the association opposed to woman suffrage, will preside at both meetings. Miss Bronson, general secretary of the association, will be the principal speaker.

To Issue Capias for Offenders Who Did Not Appear in Court

Mrs. A. Howard, 711 South Sixteenth street, and Mary Williams, 716 South Sixteenth street, both charged with keeping a disorderly house, forfeited $25 cash bonds by their failure to appear in court. In accordance with the new policy recently adopted in police court, both women will be summoned to appear before Judge Foster by the issuance of a capias.

Louis Akko, Fourteenth and Douglas streets, was fined $25 and costs for conducting a disorderly house, as was Mike Romo, 718 South Fourteenth street.

The hearing of Charles Dickson of the Theatrical Mechanics' association, charged with keeping a disorderly house, was started in police court, but, owing to the numerous witnesses to be questioned, the case was continued until Thursday of next week.

SPREADS THE FAME OF OMAHA

Union Pacific Advertising City and State Throughout Europe.

BOOKLETS ARE GOING ABROAD
Movement on Foot to Secure the Introduction of the Publication in the Schools as a Text Book.

The Union Pacific has started upon a campaign that has for its purpose the educating of the people of Europe up to the point where they will be more familiar with the United States, or at least that portion lying between the Missouri river and the Pacific coast and tributary to the main line and the branches of the Overland system.

That the people of Europe may know more thoroughly what there is in the west half of the United States, Gerrit Fort, passenger traffic manager of the Union Pacific, has caused to be prepared and printed a beautifully illustrated, well bound and attractive sixty-page booklet, descriptive of the country west from Omaha. The booklet devotes nearly a page of matter to Omaha and quite as much more to Nebraska. It shows a half page picture of the headquarters building here and a couple of Nebraska farm scenes. The first installment of the booklets sent abroad will aggregate 100,000 copies, another 100,000 copies to follow as soon as they can be secured from the printer. These will be distributed through England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, France and Germany. The distribution to other countries will occur later. The distribution will be through the agents of the American Express company, all of whom are agents for the Union Pacific. In addition, copies will be in the reading room of the hotels in all the cities and in the public libraries.

The booklets now being sent abroad by the Union Pacific are intended to be used as text books, in conjunction with the teaching of history. A movement is on foot to secure their introduction as such books in the schools of Europe. For this purpose, the company will furnish them free of cost.
