WOMAN CONFESSES MURDER

Mrs. Conway Tells of Killing of Miss Sophia G. Singer.

IS CONFRONTED WITH WORTHEN

Under Accusation of Dead Woman's Sweetheart She Breaks Down— Says She Had Little to Do with the Crime.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Confession of the murder of Miss Sophia G. Singer, the Baltimore heiress, who eloped to Chicago with William R. Worthen and was killed on the day before she was to have been married, was reported by the police to have been obtained today from Mrs. Lillian Beatrice Conway, who with her husband, Charles N. Conway, crews down and high diver, was brought here from Lima, O., earlier in the day.

"She has owned up to the murder," said a police official, "but says she had little to do with it." "She says that Conway knocked the Singer girl down with a billie made of a doorknob in a handkerchief, with a shoe last as a handle, with the intention of robbing the heiress.

"We thought she had more money than she did," she said. "Charley did it. All I did was to throw the blanket over her when we left. I didn't think she was dead."

The Conway woman then told the officials, she announced, that she would tell the whole story.

Worthen Becomes Hysterical. William R. Worthen, fiance of the Singer girl, who has been held by the police pending clearing up of the mystery, though they accepted his story of innocence, became hysterical with joy when the news was taken to him.

"Thank God they have confessed," he shouted; "now I am cleared and my father and her mother will be comforted with the knowledge that I had no and in the brutal murder. I can go back to Baltimore now with a clean hand. I knew they did it. I told her so when I saw her this morning. She couldn't see me. Now Conway might as well confess."

It was announced Conway will be given an opportunity to tell his side of the case after copies of the woman's story could be prepared by a stenographer, so that Conway first could be confronted with it.

Conway, the woman's husband, paced back and forth in a cell without knowledge of the accusation being made against him. A door opened and he could hear the screams of his wife, hysterical over the fact that the police had wronged her an admission that placed lives in jeopardy.

Quarrel Preceded Killing. Mrs. Conway, said the police, admitted that she had quarreled with Miss Singer about going out to some entertainment and said Conway took up the quarrel.

Supreme Court Opinions. The following opinions were filed by the supreme court: Page against Brees, affirmed; Barnes, J., dissenting; not sitting; Cusick against Brodsky, affirmed; Jaworski, J., dissenting.

Another dramatic scene came when Worthen was brought before her again and told she had confessed. Tears streamed from the eyes of both and for a time neither could speak.

Worthen Confronts Woman. Mrs. Conway, or "Beatrice Ryall," was on the verge of hysteria when Sergeant Crotty at the police station where Worthen is locked up began questioning her.

Worthen extended his hand and she covered it with kisses. Then she was taken to her cell.

(Continued from Page One.) by mass convention held under the provisions of section 45, laws of 1907, and of the nomination of such candidates may be filed with the proper officer at the time specified in section 45 of the laws of 1907.

In construing statutes relating to the exercise of the elective franchise and to the nominations of candidates by political parties at general elections or at conventions or committees, the court should construe doubtful or ambiguous statutes in the light of the constitutional provision that the elections shall be free, and there shall be no hindrance or impediment to the right of the qualified voter to exercise the elective franchise.

Lancaster County Case. Another case which is of considerable interest because of its similarity with other cases in several counties of the state is that of George C. Curvey, of Lancaster county against the county clerk of the same county to compel him to declare vacant the place on the democratic county ticket for county commissioner held by George Johnson, who received sufficient democratic votes to make him the democratic nominee.

The legislature of this state, in providing for the closed primary, has adopted the policy of allowing each political party to select its own candidates. Anyone who has the statutory qualifications to fill an office may be a candidate for election to that office. If he affiliates with a political party he may become the candidate of that party or he may become a candidate independent of all parties.

Under our primary law no political party can be compelled to present as its candidate a general election one who does not affiliate with the party so presenting him as a candidate. It is a political party's primary right to make no nomination of a candidate for election to an office, a vacancy has occurred, with the meeting of the legislature and the proper party committee may fill that vacancy.

CONQUERED TURKS CONTINUE RETREAT IN TOTAL DISORDER

The powers can do it in preparation to look after their own interests when the war is over. The belief is held by some diplomats here that the Bulgarian army will be impelled to occupy Constantinople by military and other considerations.

Fear Massacre in Constantinople. KUSTENDJE, Rumania, Nov. 1.—By Wireless from Constantinople, Oct. 31, 11 p. m.—The defeat of the Turkish army under Nazim Pasha opens the way to Constantinople for the Bulgarian troops.

The most immediate danger, however, concerns the position of this city itself. Most authorities agree that no real defense can be made along the Thabatalja line, supposed to protect the capital.

In the event of hordes of beaten and demoralized soldiers falling back on the capital it is difficult to foresee what could save the city from sack and pillage. This fear is presented with inhabitants who realize the fate of the Turkish empire hangs in the balance.

It is reported that a secret meeting was held recently in the Mosque of Fatieh, the most fanatical quarter of Stamboul, where inflammatory speeches were delivered by Mussulman priests, who advised a rising against the Christians.

When the news of further Turkish defeats was received the authorities ordered the state of siege to be made more strict. The bridges between Galata and Stamboul are not opened until some hours after dark.

Bulgarian Forces Smaller. SOFIA, Nov. 1.—Details thus far of the route of the immense Turkish army by the Bulgarians show that the Bulgarian forces were numerically far inferior.

The Turkish army is reported to have aggregated 200,000 men. It included the garrison which had retreated from the fortress of Kirk-Kiliseh, as well as the main body of Turkish troops which had retreated from Constantinople.

The fight opened with the discovery by the Turks of a number of Bulgarian cavalry scouts. The Turks brought in their outposts and these were followed by lines of Bulgarian skirmishers, who were succeeded by the main Bulgarian army in fighting formation.

The battle, which was destined to last several days and result in the defeat of the Turks, was soon in progress all along the line.

The Bulgarian troops repeatedly delivered fierce attacks, sometimes at one point, sometimes at another, along the Turkish line, extending from Lule Burgas to Serai.

The Turkish troops offered desperate resistance, but were unable to withstand the onslaught of the impetuous Bulgarians, and finally they turned and fled in great disorder toward Thohori, in the south.

The losses of the Ottoman army are reported to have been enormous in dead, wounded and prisoners, as well as ammunition and other supplies.

The capture of a third Turkish military train near Lule Burgas before the battle was an immense advantage to the Bulgarians, as it furnished them with more facilities for the transportation of their troops and supplies to the district where the fighting took place.

The official newspaper, the Mir, says today: "If Turkey desires peace it must negotiate directly with the Balkan states and not seek the intervention of the powers."

BEGRAD, Serbia, Nov. 1.—A third levy of conscripts has been ordered by the Serbian war office. The men, as soon as they are equipped, will be dispatched to the territory occupied by the Serbians in Macedonia, where they will act as a reserve.

The strength of the Serbian army has astonished the inhabitants of the conquered country and particularly the Mussulman Arnauts. These are now abandoning the Turks and taking the oath of allegiance to King Peter of Serbia.

Many of them have given up their arms and at the same time disclosed the names of the chief supporters of the Turks and of the authors of the massacres of Christians.

The villages occupied by the Serbians have been grouped into districts and are placed under Serbian governors.

PERSIMMON TIME HAS COME

Those from Florida Are on the Local Market and Come High.

ORANGES ARE STILL EXPENSIVE

Some Grapes Come as High as Dollar Fifty a Pound, but They Are Nice to Look Upon—Others Are Some Cheaper.

This is persimmon season. The first fruits of the fall harvest have begun to arrive on the local market and on the early shipments they naturally are comparatively high priced. One variety, that from Florida, which is a large red persimmon resembling the tomato, is retailing three for a dime. After the frost persimmons are expected to arrive in abundance from Missouri and Arkansas.

Another market innovation is the English hothouse grape. The "common people" probably will not surge into the counters to get them, the price being $1.50 a pound, which contains about twenty grapes. They are pretty to look at, however.

Malaga grapes are also new in Omaha and are retailing at 50 cents a small basket. And while speaking of new fruits, figs might be mentioned. Stealing figs may be had at 10 cents a pound, while the "puffed" varieties are being sold at 5 and 10 cents a package.

Oranges are still high and range in cost to consumers from 30 to 40 cents a dozen. They are becoming scarce and low prices will await the advent of a new crop, which is expected soon. Pomgranates are marked 5 and 10 cents apiece. Beets, carrots, cabbage, Brussels sprouts and spinach are giving out in supply.

Beets and carrots are selling at 5 cents a bunch, while Brussels sprouts are 25 cents a box. Cabbage is 10 cents a head and spinach is 25 cents a peck. Turnips are 30 cents a peck and rutabagas two pounds for a nickel. Bermuda onions are sold by the pound, three for a quarter, while plain onions are 5 cents a pound. Potatoes are now 75 cents a bushel; the sweet variety is 5 cents a pound for the home grown and three pounds of the New Jersey kind for 25 cents.
