THE EVE OF ELECTION DAY. By John Greenleaf Whittier.

The west wind grieves, nes the seed time round And more shall see The states sown free round again; baleful tares or healthful grain.

Along the street
The shadows meet
Of Destiny, whose hands conceal
The molds of fate
That snape the state,
And make or mar the common we

Around I see The powers that be, by empire's primal springs; And princes meet in every street, the tread of uncrowned kings

Hark, through the crowd
A laugh runs loud
Beneath the sad rebuking moon;
God save the land
A careless hand
May shake or swerve ere morrow's noon No jest is this;

One cast amiss
one cast amiss
ast the hopes of Freedom's year
O, take me where
Are hearts of prayer
cheads bowed in reverent fear. Not lightly fall

Beyond recall
e written scrolls a breath can float;
The crowning fact,
The kingliest act
Freedom is the freeman's vote.

Our hearts grow cold, We lightly hold A right which b ave men died to gain;
The state, the cord,
The ax, the sword
Grim nurses at its birth of pain.

Look from the sky, Like God's great eye. Thou solemn moon with searching beam, Till in the sight
Of thy pure light
Our mean self seekings meaner seem. Shame from our hearts

And smite away The hands we lay Profanely on the sacred ark So shall our voice Of sovereign choice Of sovereign choice
Swell the deep bass of duty done;
And strike the key
Of time to be
When God and man shall speak as one
