

THE SOCIETY BEE-HIVE

By MELLIFICIA. Wednesday, Nov. 6, 1912.

INTEREST in election took precedence Tuesday over studies in many of the schools.

Brownell Hall, one of the larger boarding schools for young women, had a real election. Leading "politicians" of the junior class had a "rally" and the biographies of the different presidential candidates were read a few days preceding election day. Then Tuesday there was a very realistic election under the management of Miss Dorothy Ringwalt; there were real ballots, and the outcome consistent with the national results, Wilson leading, with 38 votes, Roosevelt 29 and Taft 21.

It was noticeable that no votes were cast for the socialist or for the prohibition parties.

In many of the public schools, also, pupils had elections and were intensely interested.

How Much Did You Win?

"How much did you win?" You probably think it was a man who asked this question of another man, but not at all.

It was a fluff-haired maiden who met another on the street and they were comparing election bets.

"Well," remarked one fortunate young woman, "I won a dozen American Beauty roses and five pounds of chocolates."

"I bet on Roosevelt," remarked the other, "and I lost a red necktie and a theater party."

Another young woman is wearing orchids today because she was a fortunate guesser on whom was to be the next president.

A number of little dinner parties will be given in the near future by some well known young women who lost their wagers.

WOLF DEATH STILL MYSTERY

Insurance Companies Insist He Was Murdered or Committed Suicide.

ESTATE IS FORCED INTO A SUIT

Companies Have Been at Work for Months Making Preparations to Resist Efforts to Collect on Policies.

Mystery which still shrouds the violent death of Louis Wolf, well-known South Omaha ranchman and live stock dealer, who was found slain last June may be dissolved by the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company of San Francisco and the Aetna Life Insurance company of Hartford. The companies forced the wife and other heirs of Wolf to begin actions in district court to collect $40,000 life and accident insurance. The companies will contest. Their investigators have been at work for months in preparation for resistance to efforts to collect.

Heirs of Wolf assert his shooting was accidental. The insurance companies hold it was not. Their theory being he was murdered or committed suicide. Nathan A. Spiesberger, administrator of the Wolf estate, sues the Pacific Mutual for $10,000 on an accident policy which names the estate as beneficiary. Mrs. Cora S. Wolf, the widow, sues the Aetna company for $10,000 on two policies, one for $5,000 and one for $5,000 and $1,000 in accumulated dividends.

Wolf was found shot to death in a room he frequently occupied in Omaha. Theories of suicide, murder and accidental shooting were advanced. Efforts of the police to solve the problem failed. The coroner's jury was unable to untangle the mystery. There was some sensational testimony regarding Wolf's relations with persons outside his family, one of whom was one Rose Wolf.

The petitioners against the insurance company allege that Wolf came to his death on June 30, 1912, by accidental shooting by an unknown person.

Teachers Warm Up

Over Their Politics

Rumors are afloat among the state teachers that an attempt will be made to abolish the referendum vote as a means of choosing the annual convention city. The majority of the teachers who discussed the question were much wrought up by the rumor.

A. E. Fisher of Aurora, president of the superintendents and principals' division of the association, said he was opposed to any such move and didn't believe any of the members would have the nerve to attempt it.

"I am everlastingly opposed to any other manner of selecting the convention city," said another superintendent of central Nebraska schools. "I want the teachers to choose the convention place."

The politicians among the visitors are trying to catch the drift of sentiment on the election of a president. Lincolnites, it is understood, would favor the election of Miss Kate McHugh of the Omaha High school or some other local principal if in turn the convention was given to the capital city next year.

All Omahans, however, have gone on record as positively refusing to accept the nomination if tendered.

Appraisers' Award

Disfranchises Ney

Fight against the city of Omaha over its extension of Twenty-eighth avenue to afford a course for the new water supply main from Florence has been renewed in district court by Michael J. Ney, 2501 Browne street. Ney was the plaintiff in the suit brought several months ago to restrain the city commission and the Water board from changing the main's course from Twenty-seventh street to Twenty-eighth avenue.

Yesterday Ney went into district court with a suit against the city for $3,000 damages for cutting his property in two and confiscating part of it for the Twenty-eighth avenue extension. The city's appraisers allowed Ney $600, but he says his damage is $3,000.

The Twenty-eighth avenue extension is from Binney street to Bristol street and from Fowler avenue to Fort street. It cuts through Ney's lot, taking a part of it for the public highway and leaving one fraction on either side. A house occupies a part of the ground to be taken for the highway. This Ney must move.

BULL MOOSERS TO HANG ON?

Adopt Resolutions to Continue Fight Under Roosevelt.

BIG TALK IN FACE OF DEFEAT

Dr. W. O. Henry Says They Gained All They Want After the Defeat of President Taft for Re-Election.

Roosevelt, having declared that the bull moose cause must prevail, that its principles, like others, are eternal steps have already been taken by the Douglas county progressives to perpetuate the party. At an informal meeting held to receive election returns decisive resolutions were adopted toward the end of continuing the movement.

"The progressives have won the fight they started out to make," declares the unabashed Dr. W. O. Henry, head of the local bull moose propaganda. "Dixon already has issued a call for a meeting of the progressive national committee to get ready for the election of progressive congressmen two years hence."

"When we defeated Taft and gave Roosevelt a larger electoral vote we won a great fight and administered to the republican bosses the rebuke they deserved. From now on the republican party will peter out just as did the old greenback party. Among the progressives we have many strong men, who have set themselves up not particularly to vote for Roosevelt, but to establish a party. Of course, we naturally look to Roosevelt as the leader of our cause, and, except for his election, have gained practically everything we started out to secure.

The progressives possess the best elements of the democratic and the old republican parties and we hope to hold them together, so that two years hence we can elect progressive congressmen, and four years hence a progressive president."

Being Examined

An examination of optometrists for qualifications to receive state licenses to practice was held at the Young Men's Christian association. Sixteen students who received their instructions from local schools and private instructors, took the examination. Two of the number are women.

The papers will be examined by the State Board of Optometry, of which M. L. Jones of Fairfield is president, J. H. Riffe of Hastings vice president, and E. H. Flintoff of Omaha, secretary.

The two biggest things of their kind in the World—No. 7

THE STATUE OF LIBERTY ENLIGHTENING THE WORLD, which was presented by France to the American people, and which stands majestically on Bedloe's Island, overlooking New York harbor—where every immigrant, or visitor or American returning from foreign lands, may be inspired by its towering presence—is the greatest thing of its kind in the world. Bartholdi, the great French Sculptor, created it as his masterpiece, and the New York World performed a notable public service in raising the big fund needed to build the splendid base on which the statue rests. Myriads of Americans have made pilgrimages to this shrine of Liberty, and climbed the winding stairs to the windows which are placed in the crown which adorns Miss Liberty's brow. Until a few years ago visitors were allowed to climb up inside the gigantic arm, to the torch, but this is now prohibited. The big package of Washington Crisps is, likewise, the biggest thing of its kind in the world—Washington Crisps strengthen and sustain the world which Miss Liberty is forever enlightening.
