AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Councilman Hartnett Working for Improvements in Seventh Ward.

HAS GAINED MUCH ALREADY

Stockmen Leave in Private Car for Annual Visit to State Farm at Lincoln and to See Foot Ball Game.

Councilman Henry Hartnett of the Seventh ward is winning commendation of his constituents by the persevering manner of his fight for improved streets and public utilities in his section of the city.

Only a few weeks ago Hartnett fought for and obtained a much needed water supply in his section of the city. Some months ago he obtained a resolution from the city council authorizing the purchase of a few carloads of stiers to serve on the worst streets where temporary sidewalks of permanent material would be a useless expense upon the property holders by reason of the lack of street grading.

The resolution passed the council, but immediately that body found that cinders could not be obtained and Hartnett had to tell his constituents that cinder sidewalks as temporary makeshifts could not be had.

Now an attempt is being made to have the property owners in the west section of the city put in temporary sidewalks of permanent material. Hartnett and many of the people of his ward say that at least in some cases it will be money wasted. But they say some relief must be had for the people living in that section of the city.

In the vicinity of Thirty-sixth and T, Thirty-sixth and U and Thirty-sixth and V the streets are well high impassable during wet weather or during the winter. Deep hollows fill up with water and make miniature lakes. The sidewalks are so steep and slippery in some cases that they are dangerous to life and limb. Added to this, the filth and mud of the streets and sidewalks make living in that section of the city very disagreeable.

Said Hartnett yesterday: "I want the council to give my section of the town a little better. It is true the people out here are not wealthy and many of them are of foreign birth, but they are good citizens and thrifty. You can't expect them to continue so when they are left to live in a section of the city that has neither passable streets nor sidewalks. These children out here must attend school and they have no street cars running to and from the school. At least the city council should see to it that the streets and sidewalks are passable. I mean to fight for the people among whom I live and whom I represent, no matter who is opposed to me."

Stockmen to Lincoln. Headed by officials of the stock yards and Live Stock exchange, more than 200 members of the Live Stock exchange will leave over the Burlington this morning for the annual trip to the state farm and to see the big game.

The company travels in a private car, in which every care has been made for the material and mental welfare of the travelers. The return trip will be made tonight.
