Heavy Accumulation. OMAHA, Dec. 5, 1912.

These were many in the trade who were talking bearish on wheat yeater-day, but when it came to backing their opinion by making big sales of the Many say, but when it came to be an expension by making big sales of the May opinion by making big sales of the May opinion they displayed the white feather. And while bears were slow to make new irades on even a moderate slaed scale, the bulls were cautious, too. These conditions caused a rather slow and uninteresting market. At times during the session it looked as if prices were to sell small lower for the day. Kansas City much lower for the day. much lower for the day. Karsan City came forward with a lot of built talk on wheat by reporting exports as having paid like over the Tuesday price for No. 4 winter wheat. The sharp advance in December wheat in that market was a reflection of a good trade in the cash market. Receipts of wheat at primary markets showed a further hereas market. Receipts of wheat at primary markets showed a further decrease year berday of more than 100,000 humbels as compared with Tuesday. When one views the situation in the Argentine reviews the situation in the views the situation in the Argentine republic, where the cutting of wheat is now progressing, and which is expected to move in large quantities and at prices lower than the American growers can afford to sell, there is little in the open that may be called of a character likely to force prices higher. Cash wheat was at higher.

There was considerable excitement in the December corn future yestershy, and while the gain in that month was only to there was hurried covering by shorts, who put out the May in the way of a straddle. The corn bears have certainly enjoyed fine weather since the crop was in condition for selling and moving, and still there has been no accumulation of this grain at any of the markets. When these facts are considered there is likely in condition for selling and moving, and still there has been no accumulation of this grain at any of the markets. When these facts are considered there is likely to come a complete change in conditions with unfavorable weather, as rains and anows are probable at this particular season. Cash corn unchanged to be higher. A condition of light receipts of oats has had a tendency to influence prices somewhat for the current delivery, but it is vary difficult to find any good reason for much movement at this time. Stoplies at terminal markets are not sufficiently heavy to prove burdensome during the winter months, and it is quite lakely that lowest prices will not be seen until late spring. Cash oats is chigher. Clearances were wheat and flour equal to $27,000 bushels, corn, 218,000 bushels and cats, 1,000 bushels, corn, 218,000 bushels and cats, 1,000 bushels.

In addition to reported danger that the vast fields in southern Argentina would suffer hard from combined heat, wind and drouth, there were predictions that world shipthere were predictions that world ship-ments would be light, and it was apparent that wintry conditions northwest of here might cut down the receipts.

Longs taking profits on the advance

Longs taking profits on the advance caused a reaction in wheat after mid-day. Mentions of showers and cooler weather in portions of Argentina tended aiso to lower prices, but the effect did not last. Liberal clearances proved helpful in bringing about a rally.

MOTHER DRIVEN INTO COLD

Inebriate Son Forces Her to Beg and Then Takes Money from Her.

APPEALS TO POLICE FOR HELP

Steault in that She in Being Cared For at Good Shepherd's Home and Son to Sent to Jail for Twenty Days.

Weak from hunger and cold, clad only in thin and tattered garments, Mrs. P. Flanagan, 1231 South Thirteenth street. agod and bent, tottered into the police station Wednesday night and told a piti ful story of her son's abusive treatment With tears streaming down her worm and blanched cheeks, Mrs. Finnagen told how her son forced her to beg on the streets in order that he might be suppiled with drink, while he lounged about the house, stupefied from the effects of Privation Shatters Hope Hoping and praying that her son would realize the harmful effects of his ways and refrain from touching whisky, Mrs. Planagan put off asking assistance from the police until forced by privation.

terested was brought out at today's hearing of the government's suit to dissolve the sugar trust. Government counsel introduced a number of letters that passed between H. O.

Havemeyer, former president of the American, and J. T. Witherspoon, superintendent of the company's New Orleans refinery. In the Witherspoon letters reference was made to efforts which had been put forth to prevent the organization of independent refineries in Louisians. In a letter written by Havemeyer in November, 1906, he intimated that the federal government might be appealed to to "interfere" against the organization of an independent refinery by Louisiana planters, Havemeyer suggested that a combination of the planters for such a purpose would be in line with what President Receivedt would consider "combination in restraint of trade."

The proposed organization of the planters was not effected, and Emile Legendre. a retired planter, in telling of a similar plan to organize a refinery here, testified that "abject fright" of the trust was, in fact, the real cause of the failure of the planters to organize.
