Change Would Make Handling of Reports Easier and This is Given as the Reason for Cutting the Omnha Force.

Davius Miller, who speaks with the voice of James J. Hill, so far as the administration of the Burlington system is concerned, confirms in a letter made public today the announcement printed in The Bee several days ago that the Burlington plans the removal of the claim and auditing department of the Burlington from Omaha to Chicago. The exact date has not yet been fixed but employes of that department are to be given sixty day's notice of the time the order will go into effect, in order that they may make up their minds whether to remove to Chicago or give up their employment with the Burlington.

The move will affect 200 employes, most of them with families. When the Hill anaconda swallowed the Burlington, Omaha was headquarters for a general manager of the Burlington & Missouri River railroad, a general passen ger agents with his department fully equipped and with power to act; a general freight agent, similarly situated, and generally the operating organization of a great railroad. This change in conditions is parity the result of a very large increase in recent years in the volume of business and the number of transactions recorded daily in our records, but more largely because of the charmonic increase, under federal and state laws, in the volume of statistical reports and information constantly required by the Interstate Commerce commission, state railroad commissions, tax commission, Postoffice department, and numerous other public bodies charged with the duty of investigating and regulating railroad operations.

I make no complaint against these requirements, but think it will be apparent to everyone, as it has been to us for some time, that in order to adapt ourselves to these requirements our records must be
