Raid Begins Ten Years Ago.
Just ten years ago the Burlington began this raid on Omaha. January 1, 1903, it abolished the advertising department in Omaha, transferring the main part of the force to Chicago.
Charles E. Young was up to this time advertising agent. He was fortunate enough to be picked up by the Milwaukee and placed in charge of its advertising office in Chicago. P. P. Federa, assistant to Young on the Burlington in Omaha, was sent to Chicago as assistant there and the clerical work—all that was left of the Omaha advertising office—fell to Gen. Passemore. Agent John Francis staff of young men.

DRUNK FOR SCIENCE SAKE

Educator Gets Wound to Study the Effect of Alcohol on Mind and Body.
The subject of the experiment reported in "Studies in Psychology of Intemperance" was a man of 33 years, serious and dignified in temperament, a specialist in education, his main work having been teaching and administration. He was in perfect health, of muscular habit, and active both mentally and physically. He was entirely unaccustomed to the use of alcohol, and undertook the experiment because of his scientific interest, to have the experience and in order to know what an intoxicated person feels.
The place of the experiment was a large room of a laboratory, with special apparatus and tables for tests arranged in one part. Only the experimenter and the subject were present. At the time the subject was present, all social contact was eliminated, and the seriousness and quiet of the scientific laboratory were maintained. The alcohol was administered in divided doses, and was a 16 per cent solution of absolute alcohol and distilled water. Six doses of this mixture, .100 cubic centimeters in each dose, were prepared, but only five were given.
The doses were administered at 2:35, 3:35, 4:35, 5:35 and 6:35 p. m. The sixth dose was not given for the reason that the subject was at the time argumentative and refused to take it. Between the doses various experiments were carried on and were continued until recovery from the effects of the alcohol at about 9 p. m.
The method of work was as follows: After each dose of the alcohol the subject was put through a series of experiments, including tests for rapidity of movement, adding memory for digits, strength of handclasp, estimation of time and distance, control of the reflex kick. The pulse rate was also taken during each period.
A few notes of many taken during the course of the experiment were later from retrospective of the subject will show something of his attitude toward the condition.
3:35 P. M.—The subject reported that he did not notice the burning sensation so much in taking the second dose as he did in the first, showing some diminution of sensibility.
4 P. M.—During the third round the subject was conscious in the lap of experiment of putting on more power than in the preceding rounds, and of a slower movement. This was true, and as the experiment progressed the movement was changed from a precise finger and wrist movement to a movement of the whole body.
4:30 P. M.—Muscle sensation seemed much changed. The subject lifted a weight and was surprised to find it so light, and a little later a stool, and was surprised to find it so heavy.
4:50 P. M.—Complained of many body sensations. Felt as though the body were long and the legs short. The neck felt less sensitive when touched by the fingers. The subject was conscious of a peculiar feeling in the legs, as though they wished to straighten out rigid and firm, and to swing like pendulums from the hips instead of bending at the knees. If the eyes were closed there was a feeling of instability. The subject was conscious of a tendency to repeat phrases.
4:58 P. M.—Beginning of the fourth round. The subject complained of a feeling of numbness. He could not taste the alcohol at all this time. When he wiped his mouth he did not feel it. In the dynamometer test he tried to change to the left hand at the sixth pull. He showed signs of fatigue during the added and complained that everything felt gone from him. He began to show a lack of interest in the experiments. When he finished the memory experiment he said: "I don't see extra bits, but better-liked, instead of putting down the nine, which were read to him, he had recorded ten, a gross error in a simple memory test."
5:20 P. M.—The subject said that everything looked distant, but he thought he could estimate distances correctly. He tried, and did. Everything looked topsy-turvy to him, but he was not dizzy.
5:40 P. M.—The subject said he felt paralyzed. A moment later he complained that the world seemed all shut in; that there was no light outside the room. There was a peculiar kind of contentment, and he was perfectly content to sit still.
6:15 P. M.—The subject tried to walk, and thought "he could do better at a walk." He tried it. About this time he complained that when sitting he felt a tendency to plunge forward, as though "everything were in the head."
6:35 P. M.—The subject complained that he cared for nothing, whether he were dead or alive—heaven or hell, happiness were all the same to him.
7:50 P. M.—The subject said he felt all right, so far as he felt anything. He felt as though he had been asleep. He was conscious that he had been talking wrong, pronouncing everything in the easiest way. The subject said that his words still sounded different to him, both in expression and in tone, from the normal. He said that now in looking back he could see that concentration of his attention upon a minor task had had an effect of bringing consciousness together and clearing it.
7:55 P. M.—The subject seemed quite sober. He still walked with slight incoordination. He guessed the time of day correctly. He complained still of a numbness all over, as though he were not a living organism. Since the last dose the time had seemed very short, as though some time in the past he had been shut up like a book. He remembered that he passed through a complaint stage, and an argumentative stage.
8:30 P. M.—The subject said that since the beginning of the fifth round everything seemed a blank. The world seemed small and shut in. He still felt a desire to look into a mirror to see whether he were really swaying in sitting upright, or whether this were merely a sensation. It was mostly subjective.

ONE BOAT SWAMPED BY WAVES

Seven Members of Party in Second Craft Lost in Sea.—Chief Officer Goes Mad and Tries to Throttle Captain.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The two survivors of the Danish steamer Volmer, who were picked up in an open boat fifty miles southwest of the Lizard and landed at New Lynn by a trawler Saturday, related a terrible experience.
The Volmer was wrecked Thursday in the gale which raged in the English channel.
The crew abandoned the steamer and one of the boats with nine occupants was swamped, all the men being drowned.
The second boat with the captain and seven others aboard managed to weather the heavy seas. They had no oars and no water and were unable to obtain food from the stricken tank.
The chief engineer died and the chief officer went mad. He tried to throttle the captain. Eventually all died or were washed overboard except the captain and one other. They also were washed out of the boat several times, but managed to scramble back.
They drifted until Saturday morning, suffering agonies of thirst and exposure. They were almost to their necks in water and lost consciousness from exhaustion while being dragged through the sea into the rescuing boat.

FRANK M. RYAN GIVEN SENTENCE OF SEVEN YEARS IN PRISON

was entered into and carried on throughout the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific.
The evidence disclosed an appalling list of crimes in addition to those charged in the indictment. These crimes were all committed in the name of organized labor. I do not believe that organized labor approves of such activities.
"Any organization that approves and adopts the methods of these defendants is an outlaw and will meet the fate which outlaws have met since civilized society began."
The evidence shows some of these defendants to be guilty of murder, but they are not charged here with that crime; this court cannot punish them for what they did not do. I am influenced by such considerations in fixing the measure of punishment for the crimes charged.
"The certainty of punishment, not its severity, is the important consideration in the administration of criminal justice. Such punishment should be meted out as shall warn others that even if they desire to accomplish unlawful ends they must not violate the law in the attempt to realize them. Keeping these considerations in view the court must express that indignation which every law-abiding citizen naturally feels at the crimes which the evidence in this case discloses in addition to those for which the defendants have been found guilty, and as near as may be possible, confine the punishment within its proper scope."

All motions were overruled.

All motions for new trials for the thirty-eight labor union officials convicted in the dynamite conspiracy cases Friday were overruled by Federal Judge Albert E. Anderson. Motions for arrest of judgment in behalf of all the men also were overruled.
As soon as court convened, a few minutes after 10 o'clock, district attorney Miller rose from his seat.
"If the court please, the government asks for judgments on the verdicts," he said.
Chester H. Krum, counsel for the prisoners, then addressed the court.
"We ask in behalf of all the thirty-eight men found guilty that the verdicts be set aside."
"That motion will be overruled," said the court.
The motions for arrest of judgment were likewise dismissed.

Brennan at the same time removed L. T. Haddock as administrator of an estate. Cavanaugh had virtually accused the court of undue favoritism to his son, who was lawyer in the case, and allowing heavy attorney fees and other charges against the estate. The action will call for investigation of the entire case.

Will Mine and Farm Same Land

DEADWOOD, S. D., Dec. 30.—(Special.)—By mere chance, Fred J. Sierth, a veteran prospector of Hayward, one of the old-time mining camps in the Central Black Hills, has stumbled into a rich placer bed and he is now working out an ingenious scheme to mine and farm his ground at the same time.
Sierth came to the Hills twenty years ago and mined the many other prospector, working on hope with occasional small strikes. Finally he gave up mining and took up a homestead near his home and has made considerable money by successfully raising wheat.
While leading a pair of horses to water on his ranch, one of them stumbled and turned up quite a little earth. Sierth's experienced eyes caught a glitter in the returned soil and investigation uncovered several small nuggets. A good sized gravel bed was finally found under the earth and a number of small nuggets and some good paying veins taken out.
Sierth is now planning to install hydraulic drill, scrape away the loam, pan the gravel and then replace the loam and continue his farming of it. He declared that by thus thoroughly breaking the ground the necessity for plowing will be obviated for several years to come.

INQUIRY INTO CEREAL MERGER BEGINS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—The federal grand jury's investigation of the Quaker Oats company, with a view to prosecution under the anti-trust law, was begun here today. It is alleged that by the purchase of the Great Western Cereal company the Quaker Oats company obtained a monopoly of the prepared cereal business.
Coughlin told the court he was married and had two children. He said he never had been arrested before.
Purpose of Questions.
Just as Frank J. Murphy, Detroit, was called, Judge Anderson announced his purpose in questioning the men.
"I am doing so because I don't believe you have had the defense you ought to have had," said the judge. "That's why I am questioning you. You don't have to answer any questions if you feel the answers will hurt your case."
Murphy was asked whether he had not been arrested in July, 1911, after the McNamara case.
"Do you believe a man ought to be sentenced if he is found guilty?"
"Yes, I do."
District Attorney Miller said: "I believe Murphy is guilty, but not so guilty as some of the others."

KLING Explains Payment.

Hiram R. Kling, Muncie, Ind., a former organizer of the Carpenters' union, was called. Besides Tveitmo he is the only prisoner not connected with the Iron Workers' union.
Kling explained a $100 bill he was accused of paying to Charles Wachmeister as part of a fund to be used for blowing up buildings in Detroit.
The prisoner asserted the money had nothing to do with any proposed explosion. The district attorney said this evidence ought to have been brought out on the stand.
When William C. Bernhardt, Cincinnati, was called, Judge Anderson said: "Bernhardt, I feel sorry for you, but it is too late to explain now. The letters you wrote were bad."
"I hope God may strike me dead—Bernhardt attempted to continue.
"Don't talk that way," said the court. "You know you are guilty. Sit down."
Bernhardt's little boy and his wife both cried as he sat down.
