Umpires Watch Contest with Flend ish Gice and Run Up Laundry Bills for the Swashing Contestants.

Whilst the soft and glistening raindrops, which, it might be said, in passing, were exceedingly wet little raindrops. filtered through the murky atmosphere two squads of ball players pursued their ways around the diamond at Rourke park vesterday afternoon, much to the diagust of themselves and gleeful entertainment of the spectators and the umpires. It is presumed that the umps found supreme and blissful enjoyment in the proceedings, else out of the kindness of their hearts they would have called the pastime in the sixth or at least the seventh round. The score at the culmination of the uitimate chapter was announced as 7 to 6 in Denver's favor, but what matters it who

The rain started to leak in the fourth inning. At that time Omaha was ahead. The pattering drops soon put the blink on Ebson Closman, the modest little lefthander and during the deluge which occupied the lead column of the front page in the fifth and sixth, he let the cursed Grizzlies tickle the platter some five

The rain also put Mr. King hors de combat for a brief couple of innings. said innings being the sixth and seventh. Omaha copped two runs in each inning and everything would have been heavenly if Grover, who entered the pastime in the seventh, viz: the rain's victory over Closman, had not let a run trickle between

Watching Them Slide. Why the umps permitted the contest to continue is beyond the power of human conception. Judging from the actions of Mesers. Gaston and Stockdale both are superhuman gents. This probably accounts for it. The scattering of bugs in the stands didn't care particularly whether the combat continued or not. Of course it was ice to watch the athletes skid about in the grime, and, of course, they couldn't go home and the grandstand was high and dry. Mr. Grover was the best little slider in the bunch. This mud-smeared athlete skidded around the twirler's mound with much skill. He fielded bunts while in a projected coudition and threw out runners with much ecial. In fact, he was one of the niftiest little performers of the afternoon. His only regret is that double price will be charged to clean his uniform.

The battle opened with Omaha carry-The battle ppened with Omaha carry-ing the old luck. Ward strolled in the second, was sacrificed by Congaiton, and second, was sacrificed by Congaiton, and Haley, c. ... Haley, c. ... scored on Krug's drive to left. In the the Grizzlies were generous. With Shestak put, Faye bobbled Closman's grounder. When Schipke hit to King, that royal gentleman heaved wild to catch Closman at second, Clancy forced the Skipper, who was in his element in the water, and Coffey threw hadly to catch Thomason at first and Closman scored. Nothing more done until the deluge in the sixth.

Cassidy Is Jarred. Clancy and Thomason poked out singles. Ward advanced each man on an infield out, and everybody acored when Faye they tried to capture Congalton's fly Cassidy bumped Faye and Paye numped the ground. He also bumped ead when Mr. Butcher came tearing head first into the melee. The right fielder was a bit hurt, but came back to the pastime regardless.

Grover beat out an infield hit in the seventh by virtue of a slow roller which King and Coffey couldn't cover because of the superabundance of mire. Skipper Bill, the well-known aquatic athlete, busted a two-bagger in the midst of a downpour. Grover being a some aquatic athlete himself, scored. Clancy fanned, but Thomason pushed one to left, scoring the famous aquetic athlete. This finished it for Omaha.

Denver got one in the fourth. A twoathlete himself, scored. Clancy fanned, Denver got one in the fourth. A twosucker by Butcher, slow fielding of Mitchell's fielder's choice left everybody safe. Coffey's two-bagger completed the start. Ward's error, followed by Clancy's error and a two-bagger by Butcher brought in two in the fifth. Then O'Rourke, 2b. steher and Coffey, who had followed with a single, started a double steal, which ended in Butcher scoring. King's hit. Paye's hit and Closman's bum peg , to the plate in the sixth let in two more made in the seventh when Butcher Coffey sacrificed and Chase failed to throw to the plate when Pisher rolled out Wall.
