MOREHEAD IN A TIGHT BOX

Governor Now Fixed So that He Doesn't Know Whether to Run.

TROUBLE FOR HIM EITHER WAY

Maguire's Friends Appear to Be Working Up Demand for Him in State that Doesn't Meet with Unanimous Approval.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, May 21.—(Special.)—Friends of Governor Morehead here, who had hoped the sentiment being expressed for him came from democratic hearts filled with love and thanksgiving that at least one man had been found who could weather the storm, are now in the dumps. The condition is a peculiar one. In the minds of some the attempt to force Governor Morehead to accept a second nomination can result in nothing else but the defeat of the executive no matter whether he runs for governor or for congress. Friends of the governor are composed of two classes. There are those who respect his desire to keep his promise to the people and advise in a great measure. On the other hand are those strong friends of the governor who honestly believe that the executive was the only man who could be elected and that for the sake of party success he should break his word, especially if there seemed to be a demand from over the state for him to do so.

Maguire Men Not Asleep. Taking advantage of the latter feeling, the Maguire faction, who favored the strength of the governor should he enter the race for congress against Mr. Maguire, quickly took advantage of that feeling and quietly began manufacturing sentiment along the line of getting the governor into the gubernatorial race. With their eyes wide open, the friends of the governor who desired his re-nomination, fell into the trap and a systematic effort was begun to gather sentiment sufficient to convince the governor that there was a widespread demand for such action. Whether this sentiment was manufactured or not makes little difference as far as the conditions which now exist are concerned. It has resulted in placing Governor Morehead in a most unenviable position. Inconceivable probably of any effort on his part to discover conditions regarding his candidacy, he has been placed in a position which can end in but the one result—defeat for the governorship if he runs or defeat for congress if he refuses to listen to the "demand" being made for him to run for governor and files for the Washington job.

Would Have Enemies. If he is a candidate again for governor he will inherit the opposition of the Berge element in the party, who fled early with the understanding that the governor would not be a candidate for re-election. He will also inherit the Bryan enemy, partly because of the same reason and also because of the natural tendency of the Bryans to oppose anything and anybody who does not spread his net into their plan of running the politics of the state and nation. It is generally figured by King William and Prince Charlie that the governor represents to some degree the reactionary element of the democratic party, and while ordinarily they might not object very strenuously to his candidacy for governor, they will now use that as an excuse to oppose him should he listen to the "demand" and file for governor against the wishes of Prince Charlie, who has designs on the governorship himself. On the other hand, should the gov-

THICK BROWN SCALE ON TOP OF HEAD

Began to Spread. Scratched and Made Sore. Itched and Burned. Hair Began to Fall Out. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Cottbus, Mo.—"I noticed a small scaly spot on top of my little girl's head but paid little attention to it. In about two months it began to spread and spread until it would break out in yellow blisters. They would break and be a raw sore for a while and then dry up and leave a brown yellow scale. In some places it was very thick and would hardly keep her from scratching it raw all the time, her head itched and burned so. She scratched and made raw sores. Her hair began to fall out gradually and seemed perfectly dead. It kept spreading until it was about half of her head and I thought I would be bound to cut her hair, which I hated to do. "I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment, as I saw so many advertisements praising it so I sent for a sample. I used them and it began to improve so I bought some Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment. All the bark of her head was perfectly raw when I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I followed the directions for the treatment of eczema on the scalp and her head was cured." (Signed) Mrs. M. Boyles, June 18, 1913. "I also used Cuticura Soap (25c) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c) are often sufficient when all else has failed. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston." "Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp."

error refuse to listen to the "demand," he places himself in a position of refusing to try to save the party and the loss of his appointments, and it would be humane nature of these people to say, "Oh, well, if the governor doesn't care enough about us to help us, we are not going to help him go to congress."

Again, should he defeat the present congressman, Mr. Maguire, for the nomination, he cannot hope for the support of that faction who will listen eagerly to the demand of Mr. Bryan to defeat any reactionary who may want to go to Washington and might oppose some of the pet policies of Mr. Bryan after they get there, and oppose the governor. It is becoming evident that Governor Morehead's friends have unwittingly placed him in a position which is a very trying one and one which is liable to result in the governor deciding not to be a candidate for either governor or congress and will go back to that dear old Richardson county farm when his term of office expires.

GAGE COUNTY FARMERS INSPECT MANY SILOS

BEATRICE, Neb., May 21.—(Special.)—Over 100 men, most of them farmers, or interested in farming, made a silo tour over the county Wednesday in twenty-nine automobiles and investigated five makes of silos. The interest which progressive farmers are taking in the use of silage and the construction of silos is a most encouraging sign. At the beginning of 1913 there were sixteen silos in Gage county. Last year forty more were erected. The excessive dry season last year and the failure of the corn crop aroused the farmers to realize the necessity of saving as much of the food value of their crops as possible. Prof. Chase and Anderson of the University College of Agriculture, and Editor Herron of the Nebraska Farmer were in the party. When they were asked what type of silo they would recommend, they stated they were here to learn; that different types were adapted to different conditions; that each had advantages and the farmer must decide for himself what kind he will build. The important thing is that he adopt some kind and use it. Farm Demonstrator Leiders had charge of the party on the trip. A number of farmers brought to town Wednesday samples of wheat damaged by the Hessian fly. While the damage so far in Gage county is comparatively small, it has caused some of the farmers no little worry.

BANKERS OF SOUTHWEST FAVOR IRRIGATION PLAN

HOLDREGE, Neb., May 20.—(Special Telegram.)—The annual convention of group four of the Nebraska Bankers' association closed in this city last night with a banquet at which covers were laid for over 100 visitors. Resolutions favoring the supplemental irrigation scheme recommended by Mayor C. W. McCaughy and other business men of western Nebraska were passed and representatives in congress were called upon to aid in the consummation of the project. The convention declared for legislation permitting the operation of a state and national bank within the same building.

The new officers of the association are F. A. Dean, Holdrege, president; J. W. Auld, Red Cloud, vice president; Van Peterson, Curtis, secretary. Next year's meeting will be held at Hastings.

BONDS ARE VOTED FOR BRIDGE AT NORTH PLATTE

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., May 21.—(Special.)—Bonds in the sum of $15,000 were voted Tuesday as part of the cost of the bridge to be erected across the North Platte river about two miles east of this city and along the road of the Lincoln Highway. A bridge precinct was organized consisting of territory east of the location of this bridge along the Platte valley to the east line of the county, and in this bridge precinct the proposition was carried yesterday by an almost unanimous vote, there being 183 votes for the bonds and but thirteen against.

The city council of this city passed an ordinance submitting the question of voting $15,000 bonds of the city of North Platte to aid in the construction of this bridge at a special election which will be held in this city soon. It is expected that this proposition will be carried unanimously. The state will pay the remaining cost of the bridge. The bridge will be of steel construction and of the latest approved type. It will cost $50,000. It shortens the Lincoln Highway as traveled at present about eight miles.

A Letter from the Chief Justice of North Carolina

State of North Carolina Supreme Court Raleigh 20 March, 1914.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica, Dear Sirs:— Possibly it may interest you to know that in an opinion of this court which I wrote and filed last week in S. v. Hipper on the question of the right to flag convicts as a part of the prison discipline, I made a long quotation from your excellent article on "Prisons" giving due credit for the same to the Britannica. We make constant use of your Encyclopaedia and find it very helpful. Most truly yours, Walter Clark

This Letter Corroborates Our Advertising

THE above testimony to the authority of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica is only one of the many that have come from subscribers who have used this book in a practical way in their every-day work. "We make constant use of it and find it very helpful," says Chief Justice Clark. Our correspondence file shows thousands of letters of similar import from other delighted and satisfied purchasers. In a Boston court a few weeks ago the Britannica article on HUDSON BAY COMPANY was introduced as evidence to establish the identity of that name, and in a recent suit in an Alaskan mining town, where the rights of a Servian congregation were in question, the Britannica was successfully cited to prove that the Servian Church is not under the authority of the orthodox Russian Church. Senator O'Gorman cited the Britannica in his recent speech on Free Tolls. An Illinois Court cited the Britannica a few days ago in rendering an opinion on the reliability of bloodhounds in tracking criminals.

We know this book as only those who have helped to make it can know it. Out of this knowledge we give you the assurance that the new Encyclopaedia Britannica will prove helpful to you, no matter what your position in life, as it proved helpful in the instance above cited out of many that have been brought to our attention by gratified subscribers. The fullest, most comprehensive and most authoritative repository of facts ever issued, the primary aim of the editors has been, in this edition, as in all past editions, to make a book to which the owner could always go to settle a doubt, to confirm a fact, or to get a well written and intelligent view of any given subject at the hands of a man who knows. The extraordinary comprehensiveness of its contents, its fidelity to truth and the high tradition which has been maintained ever since it was first published in 1768-71, have given this work a character and a dignity all its own.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th Edition)

(Published by the Press of the University of Cambridge, England) Lawyers go to the new Britannica to supplement their own knowledge of the law. Manufacturers turn to it for details of their own industry. Journalists depend upon it for the past history or present status of a public question or to get the facts—in a hurry—about a foreign country or the life of a noted personage. Cabinet Ministers and Government Officials find it a perfect mine of up-to-date information in politics, diplomacy and recent international history. Farmers get from it the latest practical application of scientific agriculture. Engineers rely upon the trustworthy guidance of its 73 expert contributors on engineering. Railway Men obtain light on problems relating to the physical, legal and financial aspects of their work. Thousands of Business Men, clerks, bookkeepers, students, salesmen, and intelligent workmen have bought and are using it. Teachers find in it ready answers to thousands of questions that come up in the classroom. Ministers go to the Britannica for the last word in Biblical criticism. Physicians and Surgeons turn to it for broad systematic surveys of advances made in anatomy or physiology, bacteriology or chemistry. Bankers and Financiers use it to keep abreast of economic and financial developments, in theory and practice, throughout the world. Army and Navy Officers go to it for recent military and naval history and criticism.
