MR. AND MRS. EDWIN PLATT of Denver spent a few days in Omaha visiting their sister, Miss Kate McHugh, and brother, Judge W. D. McHugh. Mrs. Platt was formerly Miss Florence McHugh, and a teacher in the Omaha High school. Mr. and Mrs. Platt are on their way home from England, where Mr. Platt, who is a mining engineer, was called on a business trip.

Mrs. Platt had some interesting experiences while in the world's metropolis. She was one of the few admitted to the National Art Gallery, which has been closed because of the damage by the militant suffragists to the art treasures. Before being allowed to enter the gallery the guards searched Mrs. Platt's muff and bag to see if she was carrying any weapons with which to damage the pictures and treasures.

Mrs. Platt, who was making her first visit to London, had some ludicrous experiences in learning the ways of the city of fog. First, she got lost almost every day of her stay while there, for she was quite determined to find her way to the places of interest without a guide. Mr. Platt being engaged in business during the day. She climbed "a" top an omnibus one morning, and when she started to pay her fare the conductor asked how far she was going. She told him she did not know, whereupon he gave her a scolding for not being familiar with the customs, for he did not know how much to charge her, as you pay by the distance. Mrs. Platt thought her 2 pence, or "tuppence," as they say, would take her to the end of the route.

Most important business in London is usually transacted at the dinner table. They combine social and business duties, to the delight of the American women, but the American men, accustomed to transact all business at the office, do not take to this English custom.

Afternoon Tea.
Mrs. Ira Webster Porter was hostess at a delightful tea Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock in honor of Mrs. W. A. Fraser, who recently moved here from Dallas, Tex., and for Mrs. Porter's sister, Mrs. F. S. Bass of Chicago, and Mrs. T. E. Patterson of Chattanooga. The dining room was decorated in yellow and a basket of daisies tied with yellow tulle was used as a centerpiece for the table. Mrs. C. E. Wainwright and Mrs. D. E. McCulley poured coffee and tea and presiding at the ice bowl were Mrs. C. J. Adams and Mrs. T. M. Giltner. Assisting in the dining room were four young girls, Miss Anna Clyde Porter, Miss Margaret Matthews, Miss Marjorie Gould and Miss Jean Field. Others assisting were Mrs. F. R. Straight, Mrs. E. C. Twamley, Mrs. Paul Sisson, Mrs. Frank D. Field and Miss Katherine Becker. About sixty guests were present.

Glover-Copeland Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Louise Bassett Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Bassett Copeland, to Mr. Ernest Longfellow Glover was celebrated Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Frederick W. Leavitt of the Plymouth Congregational church officiated. In the living room, where the ceremony was performed before a bank of palms, ferns and Killarney roses, pink and white peonies were used in the decorations, and in the dining room Killarney roses and sweet peas.

The bride was gowned in white satin with overdress of rose point, embroidered with pearls and trimmed with white pleated satin. The skirt was trimmed with ruffles of lace caught with pearls. The bodice was made V neck outlined in pearls. Her long tulle veil reached to the hem of her long court train, held in place by a band of lilies of the valley. The only jewel worn was a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Ruth Shelton, bridesmaid, was maid of honor and wore lime green charmeuse, en train, with tulle and of Chantilly lace. The bodice of lace was embroidered in pearls. Miss Kathryn Van Nostrand of St. Joseph and Miss Madeleine Fowler of Worcester, Mass., were bridesmaids. Miss Van Nostrand wore pale green charmeuse trimmed with French rose buds and pearls, with overdress of shadow lace. Miss Fowler wore pink taffeta, with overdress of princess lace, caught with pink tulle butterflies. The maid of honor and bridesmaids carried baskets of pink roses and pink sweet peas, tied with pink tulle. They wore butterfly bows in their hair to match their gowns. The little Misses Helen and Gertrude Cole, cousins of the bride, carried baskets of pink tulle for the bridal party. Little Miss Helen wore pink and Miss Gertrude green tulle and shadow lace gowns. The bride gave her maid of honor a pearl lavelle, and to the bridesmaids triangle pins. The flower girls received gold friendship pins. Mr. W. D. White was best man and received an opal heart pin from the groom. Mr. Will Hetherington played the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus on the violin, accompanied by Mr. Charles Cooke at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Glover left for an eastern wedding trip, and will be at home after August 1 at 1512 Evans street. This home is a wedding gift of the bride's parents.

RAILROADERS ARE RELIGIOUS

So Declares Secretary Knebel of St. Louis at Club Luncheon.

HALF MILLION BELONG TO "Y"

Special Association Buildings for Sons of the Road Are Attracting Many to the Conveniences Offered.

"I find that railroad men are more religious than any other class of men; but their religion must be a practical one with the fringes taken off," said A. G. Knebel of St. Louis, railroad secretary of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association, in his address on the "Human Equation in Railroadings" at the public affairs luncheon of the Commercial club yesterday. He spoke of the great benefits derived from the railroad welfare work throughout the United States, through which 250 railroad Young Men's Christian association buildings have already been built in which 500,000 men enjoy all the privileges afforded by these splendidly equipped structures.

Help by Co-Operation.
He gave four principal points that characterize the Young Men's Christian association work among the railroad men. They are co-operation of employer and employe, skilled leadership, character building and the world wide sweep of the work.

He said the work that had been accomplished in the financing of the drink habit among railroad men was especially noteworthy. This was accomplished largely by giving the men a good communal home in these large structures, where they could find amusements ready at hand without seeking them in saloons. He told of having been in the office of the manager of an eastern road when a report of a wreck came in. The manager threw the report over for him to read. He learned that the wreck was due to the fact that the engineer had spent the previous night in carousal and had taken his engine with unsteady
