

CARTER LAKE CLUB OPENS

To Formally Start Season with Big Program Saturday.

DINNER DANCE AT NIGHT

Outdoor Program in the Afternoon, When Aquatic Sports and Other Events Will Be Staged by Members.

Preparations for the formal opening of the Carter Lake club have been completed for this afternoon and a list of outdoor events will occupy the afternoon, while a dinner and dancing will take up the evening.

Among the events in the afternoon will be tennis matches and aquatic sports. Some level races are scheduled on the lake, where sail, motor and rowboat and canoe races will be participated in, along with tipping contests.

For trap more there will be a shoot lasting Saturday afternoon, Sunday morning and afternoon. A list of cash prizes are being offered for the best scores and a number of clay pigeon shooters from over the state have sent word that they will be on hand to try their skill at cracking the dice.

Should the weather be warm there is every possibility that the beach will be lined with bathers, as the water is now pretty comfortable. An instructor has been engaged in this department of the club's amusement features and on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons and all day Sunday will give free lessons to those wishing to take them.

Walter C. Mayer Will Get His Degree After Many Studious Years

After taking most of a university course, without even having attended a high school, and then completing his college work by night study while working in Omaha as business secretary of the Young Men's Christian association, Walter C. Mayer, at the age of 30 years, will return to Lawrence, Kan., on a vacation Saturday, and will receive his bachelor of arts degree with other graduates of the University of Kansas on June 19.

He was a farmer lad until 19 years of age, and after special study became a supervising teacher in the government school at Paranao, on the Philippine island of Samar, where he had many exciting experiences with insurrectos while teaching. As the result of a trip around the world and his three years' of teaching experience, the University of Kansas granted him permission to enter its classes as a special student in 1908, without having had high school training.

He left there in 1911 without graduating, for although he had done four years of college work and all of a high school course except geometry in three and one-half years, he could not secure a diploma without the credits for mathematics. Since being in Omaha, he has been tutored in geometry by Miss Laura Bridge of Central High school, and now has entirely completed the course.

His mother, Mrs. J. H. Mayer, lives at Lawrence and will witness his graduation next month. He will visit her for several weeks. His Omaha address is 2908 Pierce street. While in the university he was a prominent student and active in his affairs.

PIONEER WOMAN IS CALLED TO LAST REST

Mrs. Clara A. Anderson, one of the pioneer women of Omaha and mother of William H. Anderson, former auditor of freight accounts for the Union Pacific, died at her apartments in the California, at 8:30 Friday morning, aged 85 years. Funeral arrangements await word from a son, Lew Anderson, who is now in Portland, Ore. However, the funeral will be held sometime Monday from Doder's chapel, with burial in Forest Lawn. Mrs. Anderson is survived by her two sons, her husband having died in 1888.

Mrs. Anderson was born in New York and had resided in Omaha continuously since 1858. She was not only one of the pioneers of Nebraska, but was a pioneer of California, as well. With her husband she went there in 1852, crossing the plains in a covered wagon from Michigan, where the Andersons then resided. En route west, she and her husband went over the Kearney and Julesburg trail and thence to Salt Lake. They remained in California until 1865 and returned to the states on a sailing vessel. The trip to New York was by water with the exception of across the Isthmus of Panama. This was made by wagon.

Mrs. Anderson was a member of the North Presbyterian church and on account of her long residence here, had a wide acquaintance in the city and county.

HUNGARIAN FEDERATION TO PRESENT "GYPSY LOVE"

The American Hungarian federation, Omaha division, is to give a theatrical performance and ball Saturday evening at the National hall, Thirteenth and Williams street. "The Gypsy Love" is the play to be produced. The performance will begin at 8:15 in the evening. The play is founded on Hungarian folk Lore. J. Goldenbarger, the manager, is working hard to give the people of Omaha and South Omaha the best there is in the way of a real play in Hungarian folk. Judge J. C. Cooley will be the orator of the evening.

The American federation is one of the oldest and best known Hungarian organizations in the United States, with a membership of about 80,000. The Omaha division a membership of about 150.

New Books

THE PRICE OF LOVE. By Arnold Bennett. 42 Pp. $1.25. Harper & Bros. A "what-ifs-the-money" story, the scene of which is laid in Bursley—one of the Five Towns. A young girl lives with a wealthy widow as lady companion. A large sum of money disappears on evening when the old lady's two nephews come to dinner. The loss of the bank notes is the indirect cause of her death, when the property is divided between the two kinsmen. One, the easy-going, courteous dandy, marries the companion and their happiness is threatened by suspicion and remorse. The mystery of the theft is at last solved, but at the cost of faith and certain illusions. Mr. Bennett has made his characters reflect his own intense interest in life.

THE STEPDUGHTER OF THE PRINCE. By Margaret Lynn. 282 Pp. $1.25. The Macmillan company. The book is mainly reminiscent and tells of the thoughts and doings and far imaginings of a little girl on a western prairie who is making heroic efforts to relate the life around her to the life she is learning about in literature. At first the prairie is prosaic, lacking the colors of the imagination and able to inspire only emotions of fear, or boredom, or weariness. It gradually, its own peculiar beauties and mysteries are revealed to her and she learns to love it for what it is.

A LADY AND HER HUSBAND. By Amy Lovell. 375 Pp. $1.35. G. P. Putnam's Sons. The author's choice of a heroine is one of the features of the book that mark it as being quite in the advance guard of fictional tendency. One of the important characters is a lovely young woman in the throes of a love affair, which ends in her marriage along toward the end of the book. And it is not she, but her mother, aged 46, a grandmother and gray-haired, who is the heroine. Her mother is having a romance, a great adventure, a wonderful experience, and is suffering all the agonies and exaltations that usually attend a great adventure. She is asking herself that primal question in "this life, is my brother's keeper?" The bank directors are controlled, say Mr. Brandels, by interlocking directorates and banking customs in such a way that MATTHEW FERGUSON. By Margaret Blake. 312 Pp. $1.25. G. W. Dillingham & Co. The two careers, legal and matrimonial, of Matthew Ferguson, a lawyer who at the age of 30 comes to New York resolved on conquest, are related at very great length. The opening chapters, during which he endeavors to apply his carefully thought-out system of scientific egotism, obtains damages for an injured child and wins a reputation which causes the relatives of those killed in a great factory fire to turn to him for help, have in them the germ of a good idea, despite their crudity. Very soon, however, his matrimonial career intervenes and the book becomes merely melodramatic.

THE LURE. By George Scarborough. 309 Pp. $1.25. G. W. Dillingham & Co. The novel that Mr. Scarborough has made out of his play of the same name will make to the reading public the same kind of an appeal that has attracted thousands. The story, like the play, shares that artificiality which marks nearly all successful American plays. But in justice it must be said of the book that, although its theme deals with one of the most vile and repellent of all the facts of life, it does so without prurience.

FULL SWING. By Frank Danby. 351 Pp. $1.25. J. B. Lippincott company. The plot is unusual in that it is the story of a mother and her son. Stiff, fastidious, uncomprehending, Agatha Wanstead could never, in the nature of things, be a sweetheart or a wife. She never understood the man who wanted to marry her; least of all did she understand the man who did. The romance of her life was concentrated in her late-growing love for her boy. When she was little she scarcely cared for him at all, as he grew to manhood she came slowly to adore without understanding him. For a long time she put her own "duty" and the happiness of others before any need or desire of his. She frankly expected to despise him because she had despised his father; he slowly won her heart because he was hers. And she remained shy, inexpressive, futile, in what was a very wonderfully romantic love. The study of Agatha Wanstead is unceasingly fine; the story of her relations, unendingly but slowly interesting, with her boy consistently carried with truth.

CHILDREN OF THE DEAD END. By Patrick MacGill. 306 Pp. $1.25. E. P. Dutton & Co. Mr. MacGill is a sentimentalist, his sentimentality being of the sort just now greatly popular. For the subject of his emotion is the alleged war between capitalism and the people. The peasants of Donegal he pictures as the victims of merchant, landlord, and church, their children sold like cattle to cruel masters. The navvies, whose cheerless days and nights in Ireland and Scotland he chronicles, are in his opinion, tragic figures, enduring a living death because of an unjust social scheme. "My Mamie Rose" was a good woman whose innocence lifted a man from the gutter. Noah Ryan is a good woman, at the start, but "economic determinism" and "a false standard of morality drive her into the gutter—strictly according to the rules of white slave fiction.

Give Your Children Nutritious Food Children should eat meat sparingly. A great many mothers give their little ones too much meat, under the mistaken impression that it will make them strong. It might surprise you to know that a 10c package of Faust Spaghetti contains four times as much nutrition as one pound of the finest tenderloin steak. Easier digested, also. One of the finest meals you could give a child is a big plate of Faust Spaghetti and bread and butter. Here's a chance to cut down the high cost of living by eating more Faust Spaghetti and less meat. Send for our new recipe book and find out how many fine, appetizing dishes you can make of Faust Spaghetti. Buy a package today—5c and 10c.

THE COST OF WINES. By Richard D. White. 211 Pp. $1.25. Frederick A. Stokes company. A volume of short stories with the essentials of comedy, character and quick action. The tale which gives the title to the book is of an aviator and his wife. Others are set in interesting modern fields.

Miscellaneous. OUR SPIRITUAL SKIES. By Collins Cooke Woods. 232 Pp. $1. Eaton & Main. A series of spiritual meditations and interpretations, suggestive and helpful.

OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY. By Louis D. Brandels. 223 Pp. $1. Frederick A. Stokes company. This series of articles on the money trust first appeared in Harper's Weekly. The bank directors are controlled, say Mr. Brandels, by interlocking directorates and banking customs in such a way that this vast system of credit is virtually in the hands of a few men. The small borrower must be at a disadvantage. Credit is often manipulated without regard to the interests of the community at large. He makes clear how the system tends toward the concentration of wealth, and how it enables the man at the top to enrich himself without a compensating service to society. He then outlines constructive remedies.

COMMON SENSE GOLF. By Charles Clarke. 121 Pp. 75c. McBride, Nast & Co. A practical unorthodox system of self-instruction offering no fixed style of play, but aiming to find the right way to adjust to every man's individuality and limitations.

THE BALKANS. By Willis M. Roane. 292 Pp. $1.60. Eaton & Main. This volume is a careful, lucid and scholarly review of the whole Balkan question, dealing with the social, religious and political problems in a most comprehensive fashion. The causes, progress and results of the late war are discussed with such clarity and vision as will make this work a standard characterization of the Balkan situation at the present time.

A MAN'S REACH: OR, SOME CHARACTER IDEALS. 73 Pp. $1. Eaton & Main. The author defines character as "the fine art of giving up" and like a motif in music this ideal runs through all these studies in character. The subjects are attractive, the treatment modern and masculine, the style is fluent and clear. The volume is rich in quotation and historical and scientific references.

IN THE COLLEGE DAYS. By Landsey Barbee. H. T. S. Denison & Co. These monologues attempt to portray the different phases of the campus life; give to the uninitiated a glimpse within the college walls.

THE SOVEREIGN PEOPLE. By Daniel Dorchester. Jr. 243 Pp. $1. Eaton & Main. The author portrays the conditions of human society prior to the emergence of the humanitarian feeling and shows how through the centuries there has been a new evaluation of man as such. The work of the ancients and modern social system are clearly and strongly presented, and a constructive program for the future is offered.

FOUNDATION STONES. By James Allen. 42 Pp. 50 cents. Thomas Y. Crowell company. The chapters are on the subjects of right principles, sound methods, true action, true speech, equal-mindedness and good results and are full of forceful, practical advice.

WHO'S WHO. A. N. Marquis & Co. The 1914-1915 edition of this indispensable book is just out. It gives a brief, personal sketch of the notable Americans in all parts of the world—men and women whose position or achievements make them of general interest, those who are most conspicuous in every reputable walk of life—birthplace, age, parentage, education, degrees, position and achievements, politics, societies, clubs, business, profession or occupation, marriage; and the chief features of each career without puffery or eulogy, praise or criticism.

MODERN BATTLES OF TRENTON. By William E. Sackett. E. The Nettle Publishing company. The second volume of the narrative of New Jersey's political history comes down to the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for the presidency, and puts the reader in touch with affairs of the state for the last twenty-five years.

REGULATION. By W. G. Barnard. 127 Pp. H. Stewart & Kidd company. The book contains a brief yet comprehensive discussion of the eight economic problems of the time: the labor problem, unemployment, trusts, land monopoly, vast private fortunes, the high cost of living, the money system and the tariff.
