MANY VISITORS EXPECTED

Lots of Out-of-Town Guests Looked For at McHugh Dinner.

RESERVATIONS ARE GOING FAST

Over Two Hundred Already Spoken For and Tickets Must Be Secured Not Later Than Thursday Afternoon.

In addition to over 300 Omaha alumni of the high school who have made reservations for the big complimentary dinner to be given for Miss Kate A. McHugh at Happy Hollow Friday evening, a number of out-of-town people will also come here especially for the affair. Several of them are coming all the way from Illinois. Five women who were former students of Miss McHugh when she was at Galena, Ill., before coming to Omaha, have written that they will be here to join in the tribute to the retiring educator. Mrs. Frank Whitman, nee Miss Hallie Patterson of this city, has already arrived from Belvidere, Ill., and will attend the dinner. Others from out-of-town who have already made reservations are Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Gillespie of Mapleton, Ia., and Edmund McCarthy.

As the Happy Hollow club cannot accommodate more than 300 persons at the dinner, and over 200 reservations have already been made, the committee in charge expects that some alumni may be disappointed in their desire to attend. It is announced that every person must secure a ticket not later than Thursday afternoon from the committee or at the Ryan jewelry store.

Older graduates will be on hand in good numbers. The classes of 1886 to 1909, which were the first six to have Miss McHugh as class teacher, will be represented at the dinner by seventy graduates. Recent classes have also made many reservations, the class of 1908 alone making twenty-nine.

Frank H. Woodland will be toastmaster. The affair will be entirely informal. The committee says that any women who come alone will be furnished escorts home.

CONDEMN WHITE SLAVE FILMS

T. F. Sturgess of Social Service Board Talks at Mission.

AFTER BOARD OF CENSORSHIP

Explains Public Welfare League and Tells of the Work Which Will Be Undertaken by This New Organization.

Unless local theater managers adhere more rigidly to a contract made with the Social Service board some time ago, with regard to the censorship of wild-card, white slave, and blood-and-thunder films, an ordinance will be introduced into the council, providing for a license for the showing of any moving-picture film. This ultimatum was delivered Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Bertha Getachmann of the Social Service board who is in charge of this phase of the work, according to T. F. Sturgess, chairman of the board, at the Summer School of Missions yesterday.

Mr. Sturgess expressed himself as highly indignant at the number of "white slave" films which have been approved by the National Board of Censorship, and spoke of the charge that had been made that this board was controlled by film manufacturers. "Six months ago there was such an influx of these plays that we wrote to the National Board asking them for what reasons these plays were permitted to be shown. We received no reply. Three weeks ago we sent a registered letter to the same effect, but have still received no reply, so we have just taken the matter up with the International Board of Censorship."

Explains New League. Mr. Sturgess outlined the plans of the newly-organized Public Welfare league. Two committees have been appointed to begin the active work of the organization, one composed of Miss Kate McHugh, retired principal of the Omaha High School, Frank Kennedy, editor of the Western Laborer, and Mr. Sturgess himself, who will constitute the program committee and Miss Effie Reed, principal of the Kellom school; Mr. Flower of the Young Men's Christian Association, and E. D. Gesson of the Fort School for Boys, who will prepare a survey of the city and his requirements along the line of social centers and playgrounds establishment.

PAINTER HAD SAID GOODBYE

Was Preparing to Go to Serve Sentence When Pardon Came.

MANY SIGNED HIS PETITION

Loyal Wife Said She Knew the Pardon Would Come, as Frank Knew Nothing of Dynamic Plots.

While saying goodbye to friends, preparatory to going to Fort Leavenworth federal prison to begin serving a two-year term imposed following the Indianapolis trial of union iron workers for alleged complicity in dynamiting plots, Frank K. Painter received word from Washington that his sentence had been commuted by President Wilson.

"I felt it coming all the time," Painter said. "But as this was the last day of freedom for me, if the president didn't commute the sentence, I was ready to go to prison voluntarily."

"It's happy news for me, yet I knew it was coming," his loyal wife said joyously when she learned Painter's sentence had been commuted. She led the efforts here to raise bond for him, and when the sentences were confirmed by the higher court in the spring she worked almost day and night for three days getting signatures on the petitions for her husband's pardon.

Many Sign Petition. Over 5,000 signatures were secured in that short space of time. Among the leaders in circulating the petitions were Mayor Dahlgren, Charles E. Fanning, C. L. Shaggy, Sam K. Greenleaf, Tom Ryan, Charles Withnell and many other influential citizens.

Painter had been employed on the structural iron work of the new United States National bank building, sixteenth and Farnam streets. He and his wife live at 232 Harney street. He had laid off from his work and went across the city to say good bye to all the friends who had helped him since the case began almost two years ago. He was going to pack his things this afternoon and take a train to Kansas City, where more than a score of other men convicted in the case planned to meet and go to the Leavenworth prison.

Painter had just said goodbye to Secretary Greenleaf of the local Odd Fellows' lodge. Then the news came that his sentence had been commuted by the president. Since then he has been besieged by hundreds of friends, anxious to congratulate him that he has been cleared by the president's action.

The Odd Fellows have been very active in his behalf. Secretary Greenleaf wrote to Senator Norris, who is a past grand master of the order. He became convinced of Painter's innocence and urged his pardon. Many local men, including Charles Fanning, who went on his bond, have worked constantly to secure his pardon. Mayor Dahlgren said at noon:

"We all believe Painter had nothing to do with the dynamiting, and that he didn't even know about it. All he did was in the line of his duties as local secretary of his union to report each job of structural iron work here, whether union or non-union men were doing it."

Now that his sentence has been commuted Painter will continue working here on the bank building.
