ERRORS LOSE SECOND BATTLE

Three Errors Assist in Run-Getting in Second Fray, Which is Called in Order to Catch Train for Des Moines.

Pa Rourke's demon athletes had to be content with an even break on a double bill Saturday afternoon with Frank 1sbell's antiquated Boosters from Des Moines. The Rourkes battered home the first game, II to 2, but lost the second battle, 2 to 1. Red Styles, recent acquisition, was a large and prominent hero in the opening combat, but a big bunch of the credit is also due the Rourke hitters, who piled up fifteen regular swats during the course of the afternoon. Bert Grover, the well known invalid, despite suffering from a meanly disposed boll on his handsome countenance, heaved the second fray, and did very well except that he lost the game. It was really no fault of Grover's that he didn't cop. The athletes tolling in his support were a little short on support and three errors enabled the an-

The Rourkes were exceedingly loud and noisy in their batting in the first contest, but in the second the visiting infielders were altogether too careless in projecting themselves in the path of the nurling sphere as it left some Omaha bat. Due to this uncalled for activity some seven or eight predestined safe knocks failed to finish as they should. Hunter, Ewoldt, Jones, Reilly and Breen scrambled all over the pasture after the pill at just the times they had no business to do so. Thus it was that Nick Lakaff, the most procrastinating pitcher in captivity and the only living exponent of knee ball, was able to come out with his spine straight.

Thomas Gets Homer.

Among other features of the initial battie was one home run clout by Fred Thomas. For come weeks Fred has been peeved because he hadn't as yet made a home run. As Fred clouted about twenty in the W. I. circuit last year, where the fences are made to keep kids out and not to rob athletes of home runs, he couldn't figure out why some of his blows should not sail over the Western league fences. Yesterday he put a little extra pressure behind one swing and the pill fluttered gently over the right wall, while Mr. Hahn gazed upward with intense scorn written all over his man.

One side opened noistly against Sam first combat, much to the disgust of that to 2, by landing hard on Pitcher Mcgentleman. Two runs were made in that stanza on three hits. The same program | given was carried out in the third, and Samuel became so disgusted that he hiked for the shower like Mr. Collier, late of Clark McGaffigan, as .. Griffith's bunch of almost pennant con-tenders, was given a chance to show his wares. The Rourkes liked Collier's wares Mullen, 1b. about as well as Lafferty's. After allow ng him one inning of grace they pro reeded to pommet him.

Two blows netted one in the fifth, and no blows coupled with a couple of passe and sacrifice hits netted one more in th sixth. But in the eighth it was decide to hand Mr. Collier a package. It was very large sized package and was to spired by the impoliteness of Mr. Collie himself. He poked a hit in the first of th eighth, a very improper thing for a vis iting pitcher to do. Thus he got it bad with good measure. Four safeties wer registered in the eighth and as one the safeties was Thomas' prize clout, fiv runs came over.

In the sixth and the ninth the Boosters were allowed to make runs. Three hits brought two in the sixth and an Lincoln error and a hit brought one in the ninth. Topeka Inconsequential, all of them, as they were insufficient to cause alarm.

A Run Without a Hit. The Boosters opened the second contest with a run. Hahn whiffed, but Hunter was walked. He promptly swiped second and went to third when Ward erred in favor of Breen. Breen and Hunter started a double steal. Breen was not only safe, but Shestak hurled the pill wild and Hunter scored. Nary a hit. In the fourth Reilly singled, but was caught off first. Breen popped to Grover, but Krug made a bum muff of an casy fly by Jones. Haley singled to center and Texas sprinted to third. Instantly Haley biked for second, Shestak Jones, who runs like an ice wagon in a snow drift, flung himself over the plate Omaha made her lone count in the fourth. Duniop singled to center and went (Continued on Page Two.)
