

By MELLIFICIA. Monday, July 13, 1914.

ALTHOUGH the thermometer is registering close to 100 degrees, I have noticed a lot of attractive silk sweaters worn by Omaha women. To be sure, during the last few days they have been carrying them on their arm instead of wearing them, but during the recent golf tournament at the Country club it was cool enough to wear this kind of sweater, as they are very light in weight.

Miss Daphne Peters, who won the tournament, has a stunning sweater of black and white. The material is not unlike the black and white silk knit neckties or scarfs that have been fashionable for the men during the last two or three seasons. The sweater is white, with a narrow stripe of black outlining each row of the crocheting. Mrs. Isaac Coles also has a black and white silk sweater.

Miss Mary Burkley, who was runner up in the tournament, has a white sweater of silk with the stripes of royal blue. It is very becoming.

Miss Mary Munchhoff, who goes abroad each year, has a pretty silk sweater, which she got in Switzerland. It is tango yellow, with dark blue stripes.

Mrs. Daniel Wheeler has one which also came from Switzerland.

Mrs. G. Storz has an Alice blue silk sweater, which she purchased on her last trip abroad.

Omaha people who are in Europe this summer have written that the entire feminine population abroad seem to be wearing silk sweaters.

Harvesters Try to Hold Up Freight Train at Columbus

Out at Columbus Sunday night the Union Pacific had a little clash with 200 or so harvesters, who insisted on handling a freight train into Omaha. The men occupied the cars and insisted upon giving the train crew orders to pull out and "beat into Omaha." Instead of doing so, the local police were appealed to and the company employees residing in Columbus called upon to assist.

Finally the harvesters were pulled from the train and given their choice to pay railroad fare or walk out of town. Eighty-six of the men bought tickets and came on to Omaha, and the others scattered out into the harvest fields to hunt for work, of which there was plenty out a few miles out of town.

Two Painters Hurt Seriously as They Fall from Viaduct

Harry Nickum, 624 North Nineteenth street, and Tom Sherwood, address unknown, painters on the new Nicholas street viaduct, were both seriously injured when a scaffolding upon which they were working broke and precipitated them to the ground. Both men suffered injuries to their spines and broken ribs and Sherwood is thought to have sustained further internal hurts.

The unfortunate men were taken to St. Joseph's hospital where they were given medical attention by police surgeons. After an examination Dr. Hubenbecker held out little hope for either one of the men. Sherwood's skull is fractured and it is also believed that his back is broken.

NO WORD FROM MOORHEAD

Election Commissioner is Away on His Vacation.

JUDGE ENGLISH IS UPHELD

First Important Decision Made by Him Since Taking the Bench is Upheld by the State Supreme Court.

Announcement of the decision of the supreme court forbidding Election Commissioner Moorhead to discriminate against foreign born voters in the matter of accepting their oath to prove their right to register found the office of the election commissioner unprepared to make a statement of its future policy.

Mr. Moorhead is at a summer resort in Iowa and although notification of the supreme court decision was sent to him Saturday no word has been received from him.

As understood by Omaha attorneys the decision completely reverses Mr. Moorhead's ruling. Foreign born voters who resented being compelled to produce documentary proof that their sworn statements were true, are expressing satisfaction.

As a result of Mr. Moorhead's policy Chinamen who swore that they were born in the United States were permitted to register without question, while many of Douglas county's best citizens were compelled to substantiate their statements made under oath. Considerable delay and expense was the cost to many voters of this policy.

Friends of District Judge English are calling attention to the fact that the supreme court sustained him in the first important decision made by him on the bench.

The colored people of the town are supporting the move strongly and the association has appealed to all citizens to give them help.

Hats incomparably Superior to Those Sold Generally at 2, 3, 4 and Some 5 Times or More

Hundreds upon hundreds of women have viewed them in our windows—and unless all signs fail every road will point to Kilpatrick's Tuesday morning. The constant stream of people in front of our store started the Rymesters. One of them was quite Kiplingesque.

"What means the crowds on Douglas street?" said folks on parade.
"A Sale of Hats, a Sale of Hats", the window trimmer said.
"What makes you look so scared, so scared?" said folks on parade.
"I fear we wont have hats enough," the window trimmer said—
For they're coming quick on every car; list to their tramp, I say.
Like regiments in hollow square, we'll have a crowd that day.
They've taken the best hats in stock, an' profits cut away,
An' Kilpatrick's have a hat sale Tuesday mornin'.

—Apologies to Rudyard.

How to Advertise for a Position

Plan to have your advertisement appear in the newspaper which is read by the largest number of the most desirable employers.

Describe as plainly as possible the qualifications which fit you to fill the position you are seeking. When your advertisement is to serve as an introduction, it should make a good impression, and quickly.

Do not write an advertisement which merely names the position you seek. The kind of employer you hope to find is too busy to write to everyone who advertises for a given kind of work. The consequences are that the worker who advertises, giving full details about his ability, will often secure a larger number of inquiries, while another who tells the readers nothing about himself, will receive none.

Here are two advertisements which were successful in obtaining for the advertisers the desired situations:

SALESMAN—forceful, aggressive, ambitious; four years' experience automobile supplies; 25 years of age, college education; speak German and Bohemian. Salary secondary. $15.00.

STENOGRAPHER—Several years' experience; rapid typist; familiar filing, billing and helping bookkeeper; excellent references furnished; salary $15.00.

If you will present your qualifications in about 50 words space as clearly as they are presented in these sample advertisements your advertisement ought to be as effective as they were.

To encourage capable workers, "Situations Wanted" advertisements are published three times free of charge.
