WOULD SEES ATHLETICS WIN

Says the Umpiring is Just the Same as in the Western.

HE THINKS SOHANG IS GREAT

Tells of the Downfall of Babe Marquard in the Opening Game of the Series, When Baker Hit His Famous Home Run.

By C. MASON YOUNG. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(Special Telegram.)—No one can realize the exact meaning of these words unless the goddess of luck has beckoned to him, and supplied him with tickets to the greatest ball games in the country to witness the greatest ball games that the world has ever known. This was my luck and henceforth said goddess of luck is my pal.

The best team won in the opinion of the majority. It was with mingled sensations that I entered the renowned Polo grounds on the opening day of the series. I looked out of my berth window in the morning to see glowering skies and I imagined that I would have to wait another day to see what I had come thousands of miles to witness, the opening game of the world series. But, on entering the mammoth park, I was dumfounded at its size. How could there ever be enough people to fill such large stands? I had to wait but a few minutes when it seemed that everybody in the world was there. Then while I was gazing out over Coogan's bluff I came back to earth with the stentorian voice of Umpire Klem announcing, "The batters for today—B. Bender and Schaefer for Philadelphia, Marquard and Myers for the home club."

A sickening wail went over me. Was I not to see the Mighty Marquard? I had dreamed Marquard—talked with him in my dreams—and here I must wait another day for him. But I settled down, little realizing that I was but one of about 50,000 who was disappointed.

Then the game started. I was prepared to witness the drama of a lifetime. And it was some drama for the first few innings and when Fred Merkle thundered home in the third frame with the first run of the game I had visions of a world's championship flag waving over the Polo grounds. But the next inning this feeling left me. But I decided to forget that I had a few dollars on the Giants and contented myself with seeing the game. But when Baker slammed that ball in the fourth inning in the lap of an old man in the lower tier not far from the bleachers in right center, I realized that the Giants had something to think about in this boy.

Likes the Babe.

But everyone knows all about that game, and how the Athletics won the series. I am going to tell a few things about Marquard. He is a wonder. He has more speed than any pitcher I have seen in years. Everyone I met on the grounds told me it was a perfect day for "Babe" to pitch his best, and it could be plainly seen at the jump that he was confident, but nervous. He got himself into holes repeatedly and although he tried to cut the corners, time after time, he grooved the ball. When Baker caught his ball in the fatal fourth it was directly in the groove a few inches above the knee. I afterwards learned that it was just the kind of a ball Baker liked best. Now it is certain that Marquard did not intend to put the ball just where Baker wanted it—but he did—and he lost the game.

I miter and spoke to Marquard after the game, but he was in no mood for talking. He said he was nervous and refused to blame any other member of the team. McGraw, however, was different. He said, after reading a letter of introduction I handed him, "So you are from the wilds of the west, are you? Well, you just tell your friends in Omaha and my friends also, that a bad beginning means a good ending, and we will win the series. Just remind your friends that we won the first game in several of these big series and then lost out. How does that look?"

Reader a Wonder.

Now then for Bender. Here is another wonder. He did not have the stuff Marquard did, but he did have nervous control and managed to put that little ball almost anywhere he wanted to. He used his brain and cunning for all he was worth and he has plenty of both. He hit Jack Meyers looking like Hickory Johnson on a wild out. And right here I want to say that Hickory Johnson and Meyers are as near alike in their playing as two players can be. Neither one is the fastest thinker in the world, but both have the same true peg to second and the same lumbering run. Meyers hits the ball similar to

Don't Overlook Schang.

When speaking of catchers one must never overlook Schang. He is without a doubt the better catcher of the two. He is a fast thinker, has a wonderful throwing arm and he sure did make out of Marquard's swift balls look sick in the first game when he clouted out a triple.

But for pretty playing one must see the Philadelphia infield at work. It is a machine whose work is as even as that of the finest watch. And the way they line up at bat—Collins, Baker, McInnis and then two pegs down comes Barry.

It is all the same Thompson, Congalton, Kane and Johnson. Only these fellows are natural hitters and gloom invades the ranks of the Giant boosters when this bunch line up with their bats.

However, the Giants have an infield which cannot be scoffed at. With Schaefer on third and the regular lineup in one can realize what it is like, but the Athletics look the better.

When it comes to pinch hitters I believe Harry McCormick has them all backed off the boards. One can understand why so much is said of this big fellow when he is seen ambling to the plate with his budgeon. And the New York fans have absolute confidence in him and are really surprised when he fails to come across with his hit. He is confidence personified. It is written all over him, and to this I attribute his success. He knows he is going to hit when he takes his position in the box and the fans know he is going to, so there is nothing else left but to hit—and he does it.

This also was Collins' fourth hit of the game, he having made two doubles and a single prior to this winning hit in the eleventh.

Fourner followed with a single which sent Collins to third and when the two American leaguers worked a double steal Fourner was perched on second and Collins had counted. Fourner hit the ball to make third with caught at that base by Zimmerman, who received Archer's perfect throw, retiring the side.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 12.—Harvard's football team was played to a standstill for three periods yesterday by an eleven from Williams, but in the closing moments of the play the Crimson scoring machine got into action and made three touchdowns. The final score was: Harvard, 23; Williams, 3.

Brickley scored three Harvard points in the second period on an easy field goal from the eighteen-yard line and Walker of Williams evened matters up in the third period with a replacement goal from the twenty-five-yard mark. Like Williams' field goal of last year, the score was made possible by three brilliant forward passes.

With the count 3 to 3 at the opening of the fourth period, Coach Haughton called leading Crimson players back into the game from the side lines, and Brickley and Rollins scored touchdowns in succession. The last touchdown resulted from a fumble by Williams recovered by Gilman of Harvard.

Carey Dolan and McCarthy singled in succession in the fifth inning, scoring Pittsburgh's first run. In the eighth, McCarthy singled, Wagner fanned, Miller singled, and both runners advanced on Wilson's infield out. Mitchell's single scored both runners.
