Perfect Blankets and Comforters

Why should we sell only perfect goods when the imperfect ones pay a better profit?

Because we should have to point out the imperfections and then you wouldn't want to buy; or should you be led to believe they were first quality goods and then upon using find they were not, you would say "I never expected to buy imperfect blankets of Thompson, Belden & Co."

You see, people have a right to expect more of us than other stores. Our Blankets and Comforters stay sold because of perfect weave, color and finish—worth every cent we ask for them.

HOWARD AND SIXTEENTH STREETS

MRS. PANKHURST IS BARRED FROM UNITED STATES

Suffrage association here today engaged two attorneys to appear for Mrs. Pankhurst at the immigration bureau. One is Miss Emma C. Gillette, an ardent suffragist and dean of a local law college. The best suite of rooms at the detention station was placed at Mrs. Pankhurst's disposal pending the outcome of her appeal. This was occupied by Prince Fignatelli of Spain when he was detained there last summer. When Mrs. Pankhurst was informed that she was to be deported she turned to her lawyer and the four women who had waited for the verdict and announced her intention of beginning a hunger strike to compel the authorities to release her. She chafed her mind, however, when she learned that she was to be given a prompt hearing on her appeal. Instead of beginning the hunger strike she ordered chicken soup and sandwiches. After luncheon she saw reporters again and protested that she had not been given a fair hearing inasmuch as her lawyer was not present. "The board was courteous, more or less," said Mrs. Pankhurst, "but the climax came when they said I was guilty of moral turpitude. I said to them: 'Then your ancestors were guilty of moral turpitude when they threw the tea into the Boston harbor?' I reminded them that Charles Stewart Parnell and John Redmond, Irish political leaders, who were convicted under the same act as I was convicted under, were received here with open arms, although they destroyed property. I attempted to show the board that a revolution is going on in England the same as went on in this country. I told them that I had human life sacred and never advocated the taking of life." The big meeting of waitresses which local suffrage leaders planned to give Mrs. Pankhurst tomorrow night at Madison square garden was postponed today until Monday night in order that Mrs. Pankhurst's status might be fully determined before the meeting. Mrs. Pankhurst was bitter in her de-mination of the action of the board. "I think the minds of the members of the special board of inquiry were made up before I arrived here," she declared. "Now that the hearing is over, this question arises in my mind: 'Who did it?' Who is responsible for the action taken by the board in ordering me deported? I am of the opinion that it was done by our political opponents on the other side."

Mrs. Pankhurst was detained aboard the liner Provencal when it docked. Two inspectors who questioned her aboard the Provencal, Mrs. Pankhurst asserted that her conviction was for a political offense and that it was generally understood her sentence had expired when she left England for France, although she had not been so notified formally.
For a quarter of an hour the militant leader was questioned by immigration inspectors in the white and gold music room of the liner. A curious crowd of passengers, eager to learn the disposition of her case, trooped in through the doors and pressed the two score newspaper reporters until they surrounded the little group. Etha Child Dorr, Mrs. Pankhurst's traveling companion, sought to sit beside the militant leader during the hearing, but this the inspectors would not permit.
"I am not coming to America to tell American women how to get the vote," Mrs. Pankhurst announced when the inspectors had left her. "They appear to be abundantly able to manage their own campaign. Their progress has been remarkable and they need no foreign leadership."

no touch of militancy about Mrs. Pankhurst face or figure as she chatted with the newspaper men. She was dressed in a gray suit, cut V shape at the throat, a blue hat that bore but a single ostrich plume of black, and was half hidden by a blue veil. She wore a seal skin coat that touched the floor when she walked.
Her fast graying hair beiled the youth that seemed stamped on her features. She had almost recovered, she said, from the illness caused by forcible feeding in Holloway jail. But she was willing to live her harrowing experiences all over again a dozen times, if need be, "for the cause."
"Would I see it through?" she repeated in indignant answer to a question asked by a reporter. "Why, of course I would. I would die if I had to for the cause. And there are dozens you, hundreds of women in England who would do the same thing. I don't set myself up as different from any other women or better than any other woman."
Calls it a Revolution.
"We are having a revolution in England just as you people of America had a revolution when you wanted your freedom, when you were taxed without representation. We English women are fighting for our freedom. Just as you won yours, so will we win ours. You fought against George III; we are fighting against George V—na, perhaps I should not say that; we are not fighting against King George. We are fighting against King Asquith, for he is the obstinate man who blocks the way."
"I don't think I should be denied admittance to your country. I don't think I will be. I am willing to trust to the sense of justice of the American people."
Mrs. Pankhurst was questioned closely about her departure from England. She told the immigration inspectors that she thought she would not be arrested if she returned there.
"I was at liberty under license," she explained. "My license had expired and I was, of course, subject to arrest."
"I was, of course, subject to arrest at any time. But I addressed the International Medical congress after the expiration of my license and was not molested. Inasmuch as I had been arrested for addressing public meetings previously, I should think that if I had been wanted

CRAIG COMES BACK STRONG

Ex-Mayor of Keokuk Responds to W. C. T. U. Attack.
CHARGES ARE CALLED FALSE

Mallet Law Not on Books When He Was Executive of Iowa Town and Was Never Counsel for Saloon Men.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—Ex-Mayor John E. Craig of Keokuk has come back with a braut attack on the W. C. T. U. for having tried to influence the president against appointing him United States attorney for southern Iowa. He asserts that the attack was due to personal spite work and is not based on facts. He declares that instead of permitting saloons to run while he was mayor in violation of law, the mallet law was not on the statute books at all when he was mayor, and he denies that he is or ever was an attorney for saloon keepers. He believes he will be appointed United States attorney.

STERLING WOULD AMEND LAW ON NOMINATIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—A bill inflicting heavy penalties upon corporations for contributing to the nomination or election of the president, vice president, United States senators or members of the house of representatives was introduced by Senator Sterling of South Dakota today. Commenting on the bill, Senator Sterling said: "The measure is an amendment of the present law of 1907, making it unlawful for corporations to assist in electing the officers named. That law, however, makes no provision in the case of nominating these officials and under our primary laws the nominations should be protected against corporate influences as well as the elections."
"Certainly if corporations ought not to contribute to helping in elections, they should not contribute to the nomination of men to important offices. Under the operation of our present primary system really the nominating primaries very often become more important than the elections, and, therefore, I believe that the law should apply to nominations as well as to elections."

WOMAN RECLUSE LEAVES MILLION TO COUSINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—A preliminary report on the estate of Miss Sara Knight, a reclusa spinster, who died recently in a small boarding room house here, indicates that she was the possessor of more than a million dollars in stocks and real estate in this city. Her will divided the estate equally between her cousins, Joseph C. McLoughlin and George McLoughlin of Sedalia, Mo., from which place she came to New York twenty years ago.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—The following railway mail clerks have been appointed in South Dakota: C. L. Jefferson, Deadwood; H. T. Brown, Watertown; G. A. Lewis, Redfield; F. J. Post, Artesian; E. B. Moore, Cottonwood; H. J. Brown, Thomas; W. B. Stocum, Westington Springs; G. M. Wilson, Keystone; C. E. Darch, Getrich, and G. A. Reed, Davis.

MISSOURI VALLEY

LOGAN—A special meeting will be held in the extension building here next Tuesday to plan for the next course of February 27. A large attendance is asked, especially on the part of farmers and other interested in the success of the short course.
MISOURI VALLEY—The marriage of Miss Grace McInerney to John T. Higgins at St. Patrick's church here took place Friday morning. The Rev. Father Nolan was the officiating clergyman. Miss Helen O'Brien played the wedding march. Miss Genevieve Higgins of Waterloo was bridesmaid and John McInerney was best man. The bride was attired in white voile over white satin and carried bride's roses. The maid of honor wore white voile and she carried pink roses. After the ceremony at the church the wedding party went to the McInerney home, where a wedding breakfast was served.

WOMEN GET INTO POLITICS

W. C. T. U. Opposes Craig for U. S. Attorney.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—The Women's Christian Temperance union got itself deep into state politics today by the adoption of a resolution requesting President Wilson to consider the temperance question in connection with democratic appointments in Iowa.

The resolution was presented by Miss Ida Hinman of Keokuk and requested the president not to appoint John E. Craig, United States attorney for southern Iowa, stating that when he was mayor of Keokuk saloons were operated in violation of law. It declares he is now legal adviser of saloon keepers.

This is taken to be incidentally in the interest of Claude Porter, who has been an ardent temperance man.

Receiver for J. R. Firm.
A temporary receiver was appointed in federal court today for J. R. Hurlbut Drug company, on application of Mrs. Hurlbut, who is treasurer and principal owner, who declares the company is bankrupt. The assets are about $12,000, and it is one of the largest and oldest retail stores in the city.

Life Prisoner in Dead.
Albert Liston, a life prisoner at the Fort Madison prison, died this week at the prison and was buried at Clinton. Last summer he petitioned the governor to grant him parole that he might die outside the prison, as it was then evidenced that he could never recover, and this would have been done but for the strong protest which came from Clinton, where the murder was committed. He had been at the prison only two years. He left a wife and daughter.

History of Equal Suffrage.
Women who have been investigating as to the history of the equal suffrage movement in Iowa have disclosed that the passage by the legislature last winter of the proposed amendment to the constitution was the third time such an amendment had been approved by the legislature, but no two of the approvals were by successive assemblies, hence the matter never came to a vote of the people. The Thirtieth general assembly and the Nineteenth general assembly each adopted an amendment looking to women voting. In each case the next legislature turned it down.

State to Take No Action.
State Auditor Bleakly will take no action to compel Polk county officials to transact business according to law in the matter of the collection of penalties for unpaid taxes. The state accounting department discovered that the Polk county treasurer, unlike every other in the state, was collecting 2 per cent penalty for the first month's taxes unpaid and 1 per cent each successive month. His attention was called to the matter, but if the taxpayers do not object the state will not undertake to enforce collection of only 1 per cent for the first month.

MOTHER OF MRS. EATON PLACED ON THE STRAND

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Virginia Harrison of Alexandria, Va., a member of a prominent family of that state, was called by the prosecution today to tell about conditions in the home of her daughter, Jennie May Eaton, who is being tried on the charge of murdering her husband, rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, U. S. N. (retired), by giving him poison. Mrs. Harrison said that her daughter manifested "hysterical tendencies" towards the admiral at times. In the last four years, the witness has spent much of her time at her daughter's home in Annapolis, and she testified that she considered her son-in-law "always very much of a gentleman."

Her daughter, she said, seemed actually to believe that the admiral dabbled in drugs and was insane. Mrs. Harrison could see no signs of these things. She had seen the admiral intoxicated, she testified, but she never detected any signs of a drug habit.

Register Changes Its Makeup for the Coming Year

The October number of the High School Register will be issued at the school Monday. The paper this year is of a slightly different character than in former years, and the changes over last year's issues, which were instituted with the September number, will be continued throughout the year.

It is the plan of the management of the Register to make the paper more of a scholastic journal than formerly. The joke section of the paper, which heretofore has constituted a great portion of the Register, will be decreased regularly and the departments in the school curriculum, which up to the present time have been practically crowded out, will be made more of a feature in the future.

The standard cover design will be used during the entire year and more cuts will be in evidence throughout the paper, especially in illustrating the stories. The work on the Register is carried out entirely by high school students.

Hon. R. L. Metcalfe Is Boosting for the Panama Exposition

Hon. Richard L. Metcalfe, head of the department of civil administration of the Isthmian Canal commission, is proving one of the most earnest of boosters for the Panama National exposition to be held at the city of that name from November, 1914, to April, 1915. He has written an appeal to the editor of The Bee and also the Nebraska Association of Commercial Clubs, asking that the movement be fostered as it means much to the commerce of the United States in its growth with the development of South America.

Exports of Beef and Cattle Decrease

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Exit the American cattle and beef as a factor in world commerce. This virtually is the declaration of the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, which announced today that such exports had dropped in less than a decade to a startling extent.

In 1904 the bureau's statisticians found this country sent cattle and beef abroad to the value of more than $4,000,000 during the eight months ending with August. In the corresponding eight months this year a scant million dollars in such products have gone to the larders of the peoples of other lands.

An aggravating fact accompanying the falling off in exports, the United States has been forced to draw more and more largely on countries for beef and beef animals, says the bureau, which demand for food from the outside has been met mostly by Mexico, which, in spite of internal troubles, has been able to send approximately 300,000 head of cattle into the United States.

Despite the seeming scarcity of cattle, the bureau declares the prices of beef animals have fallen steadily.

The experts are said to acknowledge that the average housewife, after scanning her butcher bill, may question the declaration. They fall back on the old adage, however, that "figures cannot lie."

Boss Murphy Enjoys Being Shadowed

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany hall leader, is being shadowed and he enjoys it. He said today.

"About three weeks ago," said Mr. Murphy, "I was being followed for the first time that I was being followed by two young men in an automobile."

The Tammany leader went on to say that he did some sleuthing and learned the car which had been following him was leased to a detective agency.

"If I knew the persons who are spending the money to keep such a close watch on me," he said, "I'd save them the expense. I would have them call at my home every evening and I would tell them where I was going and whom I was going to see."

PHYSICIAN AND GIRLS TESTIFY AGAINST MRS. EATON

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 18.—Medical testimony intended to establish that Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton was murdered by poisoning and evidence of his wife's jealousy were introduced by the state in the trial of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton today before adjournment until Monday. Dr. Joseph G. Frame, the family physician, told of attending the admiral the day before he died.

Miss Grace Byram Howard and Miss Beale R. Collamore testified that Mrs. Eaton had asked them to accuse the admiral of having tried to flirt with them. Neither had been annoyed by attentions from the admiral they said.

Mrs. Eaton appeared much amused at the testimony of the young women and at times laughed aloud.
