Good-bye, Huerta; take care of yourself.

Welcome again to the schoolmasters and marmas.

"Pike's Peak is not sinking," says a news report. Well, that saves us.

Have you learned enough about the income tax law to know how to dodge yours?

Our want ad columns are open to Huerta when he becomes a despot out of a job.

The Washington Post insists that currency measure is no longer the same old bill.

It seems that the prevailing social unrest also permeates our teachers' organizations.

Omaha's advice to Indianapolis: Get away from the street car strike as fast as you can.

It's a poor public body these days that cannot contribute a member or two to the Ananias club.

Certain blackmailers in Chicago are proving to themselves that "The way of the transgressor is hard."

Here is the key and the town is yours, Misses and Misses School Teachers. Do with it as you please.

According to President Wilson, the lease taken on the national palace in Mexico City by President Huerta has run out.

After visiting El Mocha, Java and Rio, the colonel ought to be able to determine offhand just how many cups of each he will take.

The quack doctors are in the same class with the crooked lawyers, and neither should be countenanced by the reputable part of the profession.

Still, the most exciting election in New York cannot arouse as much interest, not to say excitement, in Nebraska as the latest election here at home.

For the first time in a long time the foot ball heroes find it difficult to hold the center of attention against so many counter attractions on the stage of current events.

It's a $9,000 job for which a former superintendent of Omaha's public schools is being considered in Pittsburgh. Any other city want to take our Water board boss away from us?

John Wesley is supposed to have been the author of the saying that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," often erroneously ascribed to scriptures, which gives him a place among our modern sanitary experts.

Secretary Daniels favors an appropriation for three and the president for two battleships from the present congress. Now is the time for the price of peace to come to the aid of his country and secure a compromise on a little shift or two.

Again we repeat, that if the device of the 15 per cent occupation tax would do the business, what a pity it was not applied originally to the old Omaha Water company, and thus have saved the city several million dollars for which it was stung.

Everyone will agree that Omaha cannot keep the pace without a suitable building in which to accommodate large assemblages. If the present Auditorium should no longer be available for that purpose it would not be a year before the demand would crystallize for erecting another one.

Getting Closer to a Fall.

With the support of European powers, the United States demand for Huerta's immediate resignation undoubtedly marks the beginning of his official end and the decisive turning point in the Mexican situation.

This action is not surprising, for it had been discounted days and weeks in advance. It seems to have been reached as the logical conclusion of the prolonged and complicated negotiations and efforts to arrive at peace by other methods.

Here's an item from one of our state exchanges similar to others of like import going the rounds: Ex-Mayor Brown of Lincoln is slated for a consular position in Central America.

Direct contradiction is found in the fact that near-official administration organs are holding up as conclusive proof of President Wilson's devotion to civil service his proclaimed policy of retaining the consular service under its present protection, and reciting that on the list of thirty names of his first appointments in the consular service twenty-eight already in the service were promoted to more important positions.

Unless President Wilson is ready to go back on his life-long professions, he cannot reopen the gates to the consularships to the pressure for political spoils, and if any of Mr. Bryan's political pets want consular jobs they will have to get them by the regular route of competitive examination.

The arrest of an alleged medical faker in Memphis under indictment for trial before the federal court in Omaha on the charge of misusing the mails should be a warning to those quacks engaged in similar schemes and enterprises.

Has it Comes to This? In the good old days a member of congress might jump up and run out of town on the least pretext, and during the summer, with the home team in the city and winning, it has at times been next to impossible to get a quorum.

Mr. Speaker, I simply desire to make a personal statement, a very brief one. Outside of about three or four days' absence I have been present every day since the inauguration. I was compelled to be absent on account of the Ohio flood which affected my city at Columbus, O., very greatly.

It seems from his record that Congressman Brumbaugh, author of the above, was one of those with a serious sense of official duty, nevertheless the humility here expressed marks a far cry in a brief space of time from the former status.

Looking Backward This Day in Omaha

NOVEMBER 3, Thirty Years Ago—J. P. Laurson from Omaha, Ill., is the guest of J. G. Conrad.

The Harmonic society met for regular practice in Max Meyer's music hall. Senator Charles F. Manderson and Mrs. Manderson arrived from the east to be here for about two weeks.

Nat Brown, the genial and popular representative of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, left for the Pacific coast in the interest of the road.

At the school board meeting a resolution offered by Rev. Mr. Copeland, to have mats in the different schools for the children to clean their feet on, was lost.

Police Officer William Ellis resigned from the force. Hon. Frederick Douglas, who recently acquired fresh laurels by his famous Chicago addresses, was billed for an early date at Boyd's opera house for a speech on "The Race Problem in the South."

Rev. T. F. Cramblett, pastor of the First Christian church, spoke on "Local Politics, the Duty of the Hour." He emphasized the importance of letting conscience enlighten by truth enlighten the voter, and criticized the churchman's attitude.

Herman Kountze, speaking of the late transfer of real estate to the United Real Estate and Trust company, said that it was done to avoid trouble that might ensue in the death of one of the heirs of the late Augustus Kountze.

Ward and Vokes, in a new musical comedy, stirred up the animals at the Krug theater. The congregation of the Swedish Evangelical church tendered a farewell reception to its retiring pastor, Rev. Emanuel Berg, upon his departure for Butte, Mont.

Superintendent of Instruction Pearce said that he would consider adding a fourth teacher to the two night schools owing to an unusually large attendance.

Dr. George L. Miller wrote to The Bee to say that he had heard Daniel Webster's speech and had called on reading an article in The Bee of some man 50 years old who boasted of having seen both of these celebrities.

In a competitive drill under the auspices of the Women's Monument association in Washington Hill, Sergeant Harry Remington of the Millard Rifles, won two gold medals and Sergeant William Schweiberth of the Thurston Rifles won second prize, a silver medal.

United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts is reported fully recovered from the effect of a critical surgical operation.

Authorities of Denver are chasing fortune tellers out of town, and Chicago quack doctors are getting a fine line of moneyless publicity as medical swindlers.

The death at Cape Town, October 25, of Dintulu, removes the last of the warrior kings of the Zulu nation. He was the son of Cetewayo and himself a famous fighter.

The city clerk and two members of the council of Philadelphia have been fined on dictagraph evidence of having accepted bribe money in the matter of purchasing fire apparatus.

Twice Told Tales

Hasty Departure. A haunted house in Georgia was held in terror by all the negroes in the vicinity except Sam, who declared that for $2 he would sleep there all night.

A horse was raised and Sam was told to carry out his end of the bargain and to call in the morning for the money. When morning came no trace of Sam. The house contained nothing but the evidences of a hurried departure.

His Only Thought. A certain Philadelphia architect who is par excellence the architect of the millionaire said at the annual outing of the Associated Architectural societies at Englewood:

Good Eating There. There is in Brooklyn a young, recently married couple who have been having the usually half pathetic and wholly amusing experiences incident to somewhat limited means and total inexperience.

The Irreverent Cynic. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was condemning cynicism at Seal Harbor. "Nothing is holy to the cynic," he said.

Vindicated. "Gentlemen of the Jury," announced the attorney for the defense, "my client is accused of operating a speakeasy. I will have the defendant take the stand."

Editorial Siftings. Washington Post. Escapes from the $200,000 suit brought by the government against the oleo companies may be expected to resemble a yodeling chorus in the mid-Chautauque season.

Philadelphia Ledger: In the role of progressive, Bill Sulzer recalls Sydney Smith's comments on the fly in the amber—there is not so much interest in the fly as wonder how it got there.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It doesn't seem possible to teach those Turks discretion. They rushed into war with the Balkans and soon had the Balkan family sitting all over them.

Pittsburgh Dispatch: Governor Johnson of California declares that the progressives will never amalgamate with the republicans. Perhaps not, for the reason that when they do perform the act of reconciliation they will cease to be progressives and resume their former position as republicans.

Baltimore American: Dr. Elliot of Harvard says that poverty is preferable to inordinate wealth as a moral condition. Many people will disagree with him.

Philadelphia Bulletin: Now that the inventors have perfected the wireless telegraph so as to destroy battleships miles away by exploding their magazines, it is well in order for them to evolve a plan whereby the battleships may destroy the wireless stations before they can bring their deadly currents into play.

Philadelphia Ledger: James J. Hill said the railroad treasury has come to be looked upon as the public milk cow, from which a new supply of nourishment may always be obtained.

Springfield Republican. It has been suggested that the advent of a graduated income tax ought to give the clue for an escape from the tipping bowl.

Washington Crisps. To prove that sugar can be reduced in many cases of Diabetes in people past fifty we will mail on request formulae for quantitative test for sugar that will show the percentage from day to day.
