MANY AT FELLOWSHIP TABLE

Commercial Club Dinner and Cabaret Show Please Many.

NO INTRODUCTIONS NECESSARY

Members Carry Cards on Coats Which Tell Their Names and Lack of Formality Is Distinguishing Feature.

Good fellowship was the sentiment throughout the great dining room at the Commercial club last night. The good fellowship dinner was on. No less than 240 Commercial club members joined in the festivities. They filled the great dining room and overflowed into the south dining room and the various side dining rooms.

Some one had furnished a supply of clown hats of various designs and these were clapped indiscriminately upon the heads about the room. So President Kelley had a big paper stein on his head. Others had paper runboats crowning their heads. And Mayor Dahlman had a paper helmet that made him look like the Greek hero Achilles himself the very afternoon that he dragged the Trojan Hector thrice round the walls of Troy.

The cost of living was no object, for there were slabs of tender beefsteak as thick as a man's foot. There were hot biscuits and 3-cent butter.

The members carried large cards on their coat lapels. These bore the names of the individuals wearing them. So if there was anyone who did not know who his neighbor was, that was because he could not read. And if he did not get acquainted with his neighbor that was because he could not mix properly.

A table stage was prepared in the middle of the large dining room. There Powder and Chapman of the Gayety entertained with singing and dancing, and were repeatedly called on for more. There also the Chesleigh Sisters and Bob Finley of the Empress danced and sang, trotted off a turkey and tore off a tango that brought hoots of delight.

Dinner and the vaudeville features over some of the crowd adjourned to the lounging rooms, and to the billiard room, while some remained in the dining rooms and played cards.

As a whole the good fellowship dinner was counted a great success and expressions were frequent of appreciation of the efforts of Sam Burns, Jr., chairman of the entertainment committee, and of Harry Ryan, who had charge of the cabaret feature of the evening.

SUNDAY CLOSING AGAIN SOUGHT BY THE BARBERS

Agitation for Sunday closing of barber shops in Omaha was featured at a meeting of members of local 212 of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America, held at Baright hall last night. The speakers included J. C. Shanessy, general organizer of the union; T. P. Reynolds, president of the Nebraska State Federation of Labor; George E. Norman, president of the Central Labor union, and W. A. Chrieman, an organizer of the American Federation of Labor. J. W. Light, state organizer for the barbers' union, presided. Each speaker pointed out that Sunday work and other undesirable conditions could be eliminated only when union organization has been perfected.

Delzell Proves His Right to Vote at the Hustings

James E. Delzell, president of the Nebraska State Teachers' association, arrived in the city early last night to attend the annual meeting of the association. He dashed into the lobby of the Home hotel and was at once surrounded by acquaintances. Shaking hands all the way he hurried to the registrars' counter, grabbed a card, threw down a dollar and started toward the ballot box.

"Just a minute," said an Omaha High school cadet, taking the superintendent by the arm with a show of authority. "Are you an active teacher?"

Delzell's friends, watching, gasped and then hung back to enjoy the situation. "Why-er-yes," replied Delzell, puzzled. "You're actually teaching—positively?"

The cadet queried sternly, for he was plainly growing suspicious of the burly gentleman.

"Well, ah, yes. Oh, no. No, I'm not actually teaching." The superintendent was beginning to sputter, for he was in a hurry.

The cadet attempted to lead him away from the ballot box when Delzell exclaimed happily: "Why, I'm the state superintendent of instruction."

"In that case you're all right," the cadet pronounced, in an untroubled manner. "You may vote."

After a registrar had called the superintendent back to the counter to tell from what county he came Delzell voted.

Superintendent Delzell absolutely refused to discuss the action of the State Board of Education in summarily dismissing President A. C. Thomas from the Kearney Normal school. It was his vote which decided the fate of the Kearney man, who had been his friend for many years.

ROME MILLER TO TELL THE EAST ABOUT OMAHA

How Omaha leads the world in the matter of sanitation as pertains to the deadly finger bowl; Nebraska's superiority over other states in connection with laws governing the definition of the word "hotel"; this state's hotel liability law, and how Nebraska beats the hotel cheats will be told the citizens of the largest of eastern cities next week by Rome Miller of the Hotel Rome, when he goes on the annual educational tour of the American Hotel Keepers' Protective association.

Mr. Miller is the chairman of the national association of hotel men, and is slated to give several papers. The subjects mentioned above will be his themes, and he told newspaper men yesterday that he would see that Omaha and Nebraska did not lose a thing in the advertising.

He expects to leave Omaha today for Chicago, where he will join the tour. From Chicago, the following cities will be studied regarding hotel conditions: Buffalo, Troy, N. Y.; Boston, Springfield, Mass.; New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and then back to Chicago.

"I want to see that Omaha does not lose out on advertising," said Mr. Miller. "We will try to get uniform liability laws for all states in the union and also a uniform law covering the definition of the word hotel. If we can make any progress in this latter direction, we will then get after the hotel inspectors of each state and see that the hotel laws are enforced."
