

DEMANDS WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Chancellor Avery Pleads Women Be Given More to Say Politically.

APPLAUD HIM VIGOROUSLY

When Nebraska University Head Exposed His Policy It Won His Audience with Magnetic Attraction.

Chancellor Samuel Avery of the University of Nebraska, speaking to an audience of state teachers at the First Methodist church last night, demanded suffrage for women and greater independence for both men and women in the teaching profession.

The chancellor said the club must be removed from over the heads of state educators before the teacher could hold any great influence in the community. He said:

"Take away the chance of the teacher going much higher, take away from him the fear that he will lose his position altogether and we will have school teachers much like those in the institutions of Europe, where the teacher plays an important part in the political as well as the civil life."

Chancellor Avery pleaded with the public to strike the shackles of "petty scrutiny" from the teachers; give them a freer range; criticize them less; allow them to participate actively in all local affairs and become permanent, trusted citizens.

Reverting to his argument for woman suffrage the chancellor said:

"If we analyze further the teachers' want of political influence shall we not find in equal suffrage at least a partial solution of the problem? Give the disfranchised teacher a right to vote and I doubt not that the profession generally will exert a much more potent influence in the conduct of public affairs."

Chancellor Avery's plea for greater liberty for the teacher and his advocacy of woman suffrage received the applause of a house crowded from pulpit to gallery.

Following Chancellor Avery, President Alexander Melikjeff of Amherst college delivered an address on the subject of "Reaction in College Education," in which he earnestly attacked the modern tendency toward specialization.

"We've had enough of the specialist," President Melikjeff cried. "What we want is a coherent, more unified view of the world."

The speaker said the specialists had grown apart from each other and that there was no longer a "general knowledge." This state of affairs, he contended, led to chaos. He said:

"We are not going back to the classics solely, but our civilization is sure as fate to fall into separate fragments if we do not take these separate bits of information and put them together. And this is what the liberal college of the future will do—take us back from incoherence and chaos and give each a coherent view of life."

DEIZELL MAY BLOCK MOVE

Says Resolutions Would Tend to Disrupt the Organization.

State Superintendent James E. Deizell, president of the Nebraska State Teachers' association, will attempt to thwart the effort to bring resolutions denouncing the State Board of Education for discharging President A. O. Thomas from the Kearney Normal school, before the association.

The plan of the supporters of Dr. Thomas is to bring in a minority report from the resolutions committee severely criticizing the state board and demanding that the tenure in office of teachers be made more certain.

"Any attempt to bring in resolutions commending or denouncing the state board will tend to disrupt the organization," said Superintendent Deizell, "and as for me I would not permit any resolution commending my action to be submitted to the vote of the association."

"I hope no attempt will be made to introduce such reports, but if they come from the executive committee we will, I suppose, have to consider them."

The executive committee is supposed to pass on the resolutions prepared by the resolutions committee. The Thomas members of the resolutions committee, knowing what the executive committee is likely to do with the resolutions of denunciation, are prepared to appeal to the convention, even though the president refuses to sanction the submission of the resolutions to a vote.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "physic" that mother insisted on—caster oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them. If your child's stomach, liver and bow-

CARSON DEFINES A TEACHER

Editor Says Good Educator One Who Teaches Pupil Self Help.

SHOULD IMPART KNOWLEDGE

No Matter How Much He or She May Know, the Important Thing Is to Present It Properly to the Student.

A good teacher is one who makes himself "useless" as quickly as possible. This in substance, was the definition given of a competent instructor by O. T. Carson, editor of the Ohio Educational Monthly, Columbus, O., yesterday afternoon. He was addressing a joint session of county superintendents, boards of education and rural school teachers at the Omaha High school.

"That definition, for which I am not responsible, is not, taken literally, very complimentary to the teacher," said Mr. Carson. "While it is something of a quip, it is full of meaning. A good teacher, in other words, is one who can teach the pupil self-help—one who can show the pupil the way to do things for himself. It is in this way that the good teacher makes himself 'useless.'"

Mr. Carson's address was greeted as a feature of the session. It followed a discussion on "How Teachers Are Judged," joined in by Miss Alice Florer, York county; Miss Hannah Johnson, Boone county; and T. C. Grimes, Custer county. Dr. E. Holvichner, president of the Board of Education, had spoken on "The Need of Technical or Industrial Education in Our Schools" and "The Duties of Boards of Education to Promulgate the Same."

The editor of the Ohio Educational Monthly believes that the most successful teachers are those who, in their own minds, can reproduce the problems that perplex the student.

Problems of Teaching.

"Occasionally," he continued, "there creeps into our schools—grade schools, high schools, colleges and universities—as an instructor a man who is wholly unprepared to discharge the duties he has undertaken. This is particularly true of universities, where we sometimes find a man who has spent his life in research work trying to impart to students his knowledge of some particular subject or science. Now, such a man, without question, has all the knowledge and more than is required of a good instructor. The trouble usually is that he positively cannot pass it on; he is a scientist, not a teacher. Men who have been successful in research work—whose whole training has fitted them for that department of endeavor—should turn their data over, so to speak, to men who have acquired, or who are being gifted with, the knack of teaching."

The opinions of Mr. Grimes as to the criterion by which teachers are judged by pupils, parents and others were regarded as rather original. He said that "the personality and the personal appearance, especially of a woman, had much to do with the impression that is given. He said that the habit regard that every one has for physical charm is responsible for this."

RAPID CITY RANCHMAN ARRESTED AT SEATTLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 6.—John Bays, a ranchman of Rapid City, S. D., was arrested by the police tonight on complaint of Miss Jessie Graham, 22 years old, who says Bays was trying to prevent her appearing as a witness in a white slave case in the federal court in Kansas City. Miss Graham said that so far Bays had only attempted to persuade her to leave the country, but she was afraid he would use force to get her to go to Canada. She said that in Tacoma recently Bays took her trunk from her when she was preparing to leave.

TEACHERS MEET AT CHURCH

Many Spend Day at First Methodist and Have Sessions of Speeches.

MUCH IS DUE THE EDUCATORS

Ideas Inculcated Into the Minds of the Young Students Become the Foundation of Their Future Welfare.

Those members of the Nebraska State Teachers' association comprising teachers, principals and superintendents that met yesterday in the First Methodist Episcopal church spent a very pleasant, inspiring day. There was a session in the morning, with music and addresses and a similar program in the afternoon.

O. T. Carson, editor of the Ohio Educational Monthly, published at Columbus, O., delivered a remarkably strong address on "Is the Public School a Failure?" His remarks were chiefly directed to the destructive criticisms aimed at public schools.

"I notice that whenever I hear a man find fault with a person or with an institution, he rarely has reasonable reasons or suggestions to offer," Mr. Carson said, "and I notice also that the man who most frequently shouts his disapproval of a person or of an institution knows the least of what he is talking about."

"A little more than 17 years ago some statement decided that all men are born equal," he continued, "and it is in the public schools where this is most evident. It is there that jeans rubs against broadcloth in 1876 a great exposition was held in Philadelphia. It was realized that some history had been made during the first 19 years of the nation's existence. It was also decided to let the rest of the nation know these facts. And that is how we come to study history in our schools."

V. L. Strickland of Tecumseh and W. W. Stoner of Yale spoke on practically the same line of thought. "Some Causes of Delinquency" was ably discussed by R. V. Clark of the Kearney Industrial school, and the topic of "Some Remedies of Delinquency" was ably discussed by E. Bradford of the School of Agriculture at Lincoln.

It was pointed out that an unclean home is often at the bottom of the case when a boy loses interest in school work. As a remedy, it was suggested that industrial training be more widely investigated and acted upon.

Music was furnished by the Collegians, a very clever quartet with well trained voices.

After the speaking an election was held. A. H. Dixon of Tekamah was elected president of the Superintendents' and Principals' association. E. C. Cowen of Auburn was chosen vice president for the ensuing year and Clare Mackin of Nebraska City was re-elected secretary. Two members were elected for the Reading Circle board. They are E. W. Marcell of Crete, for a four-year term, and J. H. Welch for a two-year term. Four other members for this circle will be chosen tomorrow.

Research Work for City to Cost $5,000

Mayor James C. Dahman has received a letter from the municipal research bureau of New York in reply to a letter asking for information as to the cost of a "study of Omaha's methods of city financing and a research into the manner of administration in departments of city government." The bureau said such a research would cost $5,000. The letter was written by Mayor Dahman following a resolution passed by the council on motion of Police Commissioner J. J. Ryder, whose department had been criticized.

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY FINISHING SUMMER WORK

The new electric switch and curve being put in by the street railway company at Sixteenth and Webster streets will probably end construction work for the season. It had been the intention to do considerable work in the way of rebuilding the south Thirtieth street line, but owing to the lateness of the season and the objection to leaving the line in bad condition in the event stormy weather should come on, this work will most likely have to wait until next spring. MAGNEY DECLARES WAR ON BAD BOND SIGNERS

George Magney, county attorney, has declared war upon the bondsmen for police offenders, who have not the wherewithal to back their bonds, or who have failed to pay forfeited bonds, through the failure of the officials to push the case.

"Those men who have been posing as property owners for the purpose of securing the release of prisoners will have to make good their avowal or it is my intention to swear out warrants for their arrest and appear against them," was Chief Maloney's declaration.

"They will either pay the bonds or go to jail for perjury," continued the chief. "Thousands of dollars, which should have been directed into the school fund of the city, has been kept from its rightful purpose by the failure of those, whose business it is to collect the bonds, to carry out their duties."
