A pool and billiard tournament will start next Saturday evening under the management of Mr. J. P. Palmer, and the winners will be presented with cues.

A "Village Choir" is the unpretentious name Robert Manley has given to the male singers of the club, who will be formed into an impromptu glee club for the entertainment of the club members Saturday nights, Saturday being the day put aside for the men of the club, when new members will have an opportunity of meeting other college men.

The next dinner dance at the club will be Tuesday evening, November 11.

The annual college dinner will be Tuesday evening, January 6. This event is not confined to club members and every college man is invited to attend.

Fashion Hint

By LA RACONTEUSE.

Simple afternoon frock of brick colored velvet de laine.
The small bodice, draped by crossing in front over a yoke of white net, and is edged by a small raver of black velvet.
The sleeve is kimono style, long and semi-fitted. It is finished by a flounce of white net.
A draped belt of black velvet, making a normal waistline, makes a point over the hip on the right side and is fastened by a huge button. This button seems to hold up the drape of the skirt, given by three pleats.
At the bottom, a piece of black velvet, embroidered, falls over a flounce of milled silk muslin of the same tone.

PICTURE AT ART EXHIBIT RECALLS VACATION TIME

An interesting coincidence happened at the exhibition of the Omaha Art Guild Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Florence Dean, who has spent several summers in the mountains of Wyoming, stood looking at a mountain scene. "Do you know, I believe I have ridden down that very mountain path," said Miss Dean. "If it was not that one it was just like the one in that painting." This was said to Mrs. George Barker, who happened to be near Miss Dean.

"Well, the artist who painted the picture is right over there," said Mrs. Barker, pointing to Mr. Robert Gilder on the other side of the room.

Mr. Gilder came over to Mrs. Barker to speak of the work of the Guild. She told him of the remark of the young woman regarding the scene in the Wyoming mountains.

Mr. Gilder explained to Miss Dean then that it was a scene in Muskrat canon, Wyo. A smile came to the face of Miss Dean and she said, "Well, that is the very mountain trail that I have traveled so many times on horseback." And the two, artist and young woman, immediately became the best of friends and chatted of the days spent in the canon.

ADVISES FREE LEGAL AID

General Attorney of the Kansas City Bureau Says it Works Fine.

WOULD COST MUCH LESS HERE

One Dollar a Case is About the Cost in Kansas City, the Whole Amounting to About $3,000 a Year.

Police Commissioner J. J. Ryder has received a letter from Edward J. Fleming, general attorney for the Kansas City Free Legal Aid bureau, in which the city of Omaha is exhorted to carry out the plan to establish a municipal free aid bureau. Mr. Fleming's letter follows: "The Free Legal Aid bureau has come to stay, and it would be impossible now for Kansas City to do without it. It acts as a sort of clearing house for all of our people's troubles. We have the best co-operation of the police department and the prosecuting attorney's office and they always act upon our recommendations. The judges of our various courts are all in sympathy with our work. We seldom lose a case in court. There are approximately fifty legal aid societies in the country. We have the only one supported by municipal funds. When we first started to have advice from our friends that politics would sooner or later destroy the real purpose of our organization, but so far we have met with the greatest success. We have now been established three years and have handled approximately 25,000 cases, with a total collection of $20,000, and all this work without a cent of public support. It costs the city about $3,000 per year to operate this department, or about 10 cents per case. Two assistants and one stenographer in the office comprise the working force and we find that we can handle it all right, although sometimes we call in the services of another attorney. Personally, I am in favor of a municipal legal aid bureau, because I believe that it will accomplish more than one supported by private subscription, but you cannot operate unless politics are kept out of it. Our claims vary from 50 cents to $50, and sometimes more. We always consider the financial standing of the applicant, his earning capacity and what his obligations are. Wage claims comprise about one-half of our complaints. The prosecution of wife and child abandonment and non-support cases is handled together by this office. We have a fund on hand for bring back wife deserters, and have apprehended them as far west as Seattle and as far east as Maine. One of our clients here, who is in the employ of the Burlington, has been garnished by a loan shark at Council Bluffs. The case will probably be reached between now and February, and I shall have to go to Council Bluffs to defend him. "The Kansas City bureau has two general counsel and one investigator, besides Mr. Fleming, who is actively in charge of cases," said Commissioner Ryder. "When Mayor Dahlman takes the matter up with the legal department we will have all the blanks used at Kansas City and considerable other information. To establish such a free legal aid bureau in Omaha will cost some money, but if the work can be handled in Kansas City for $5,000 it can be done for very much less here. Probably an appropriation of $2,500 would suffice to carry the proposed new bureau through the year. My own office forces and the men in Chief Dunn's office can handle most of the detail work."

Benson to Benefit by Consolidation of the Postoffices

Through the efforts of Postmaster John C. Wharton, the Benson postoffice will consolidate with the Omaha postoffice Monday, November 11. Mr. Wharton has been working for the coalition of the two offices for a year and a half. This, he thinks, is a matter of economies and will tend greatly to increase efficiency in the department.

At present, there is no free delivery of mail in Benson. H. E. Randall, postoffice inspector, with offices at Lincoln, carefully went over the ground with Mr. Wharton about a year ago. The inspector objected to the consolidation on the grounds that there were no sidewalks in Benson, and again, on the general condition of the streets. Since that time, however, sidewalks have been arranged and the streets improved.

"Benson should have free delivery, for the city is worthy of it," Mr. Wharton said. "It is a matter of economics, and I figure the cost of maintenance will be far less in future than at present. Take South Omaha for instance. South Omaha consolidated with our office the first of January, 1913. Since its coalition, we have saved that office hundreds of dollars."

Mr. Wharton said credit should be given Senator Hitchcock and to Congressman C. O. Lobeck for their active work in consolidating the two offices.

Police Confiscate the Punch Boards

Policemen yesterday entered all cigar stores in the city and confiscated several score of "punch boards," which they asserted were gambling devices.

"These things were getting to be a nuisance," said Chief of Police Dunn. "It is a semi-gambling device."

Chief Dunn said the dice games for cigars would not be molested, as the habit had not become pernicious.
