City Council Laying Plans to Purchase New Fire Hose.

MANY BIDDERS ARE EXPECTED

Police Judge Callanan Goes Through the Day Without a Case in Court or on the Docket.

South Omaha is to purchase 2,000 feet of fire hose. The council ordered the advertisement last week, but forgot to state any specifications, and City Clerk Wheeler will not turn a wheel until the council rectifies the oversight.

It is known that for a long time the Union Stock yards and the packing houses have been purchasing good serviceable fire hose at a cost much less than that paid by the city.

It is expected, will bid on the hose, which will be bought within a week or two, it is expected.

On one of the last. Judge Callanan, police magistrate, did not sit yesterday because his docket was clear and there was no one on the waiting list.

The judge has several plans of operations in mind in order to escape his enforced idleness. One contemplated a personally and privately conducted raid on law-breaking saloon keepers.

Another possibility is that the South Omaha judge may volunteer his services as an assistant to Police Magistrate Foster of Omaha, who, it is expected has much to do.

Judge Callanan expressed himself as being in sympathy with any lawyer who was depending on the South Omaha court for a living at this time.

Home-breakers Busy. City Engineer Neal has a force of men at work beautifying the public library grounds. The grounds have been torn up for some time on account of street construction work.

The improvements consist of new walks and a graded green which will add materially to the beauty of the library site.

Back from Fishing Trip. Deputy Treasurer Gustafson and Tax Collector Craddock have been planning a fishing trip. They even invited them to a fish fry that was to have come off Wednesday night upon their return.

The invitations were accepted and the friends called to enjoy the fish fry.

Gus and Jimmie started out in the afternoon for a favorite spot in the Missouri river. They took along a large fish net, several buckets of bait, two pipes, some tobacco and a bottle. The bottle contained medicine. The fishermen also took along a large basket for the fish.

About dark they returned to their homes. At both places they were met with cold stiffness and disapproving glances.

It seems that it is not generally accepted form to invite your man friends to a fish fry at your home without notifying the woman of the house and at least supplying a fish. Gus and Jimmie did neither, hence the deep gloom reflected on their brows yesterday.

That New Thirst Parlor. "Doc" Frye of the Union Stock yards catering department is up to his neck getting ready for the opening of the new dining room and buffet at the new horse barns. The bar fixtures are expected every day. In the meantime the old buffet on the corner of Thirtieth and L streets has been demolished.

The new dining room accommodations are for any and all comers, according to "Doc." It is well in the extreme as a thirst parlor. The walls are fitted with concealed floor vents high. The roof is of worked metal and the walls are to be frescoed. Altogether, it is expected that the place will be one of the finest in the city when completed.

James Blakeney was presented with a handsome, large diamond ring by friends in the South Omaha stock yards just before he left for Kansas City, where he is to continue in the employ of the Armour packing interests. For six years

Twins Celebrate Fourth Anniversary

MYRTLE OCHILTREE.

A most interesting romance found its beginning at the fourth birthday anniversary of little Miss Marjorie and little Miss Myrtle Ochiltree, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ochiltree, when they were honor guests at an afternoon tea party.

The grand march was led by the little twins, who were each accompanied by Richard and Donald Johnston, who are also twins, but three months older. At each end of a long table the tiny honor guests were seated, and for each twin there was a birthday cake with four colored candles. In the center of the table were a number of miniature dachshunds on leashes which led to each guest's place. The afternoon was spent at games and those present were: Little Misses—Lucile Hilly, Margaret Cathers, Dorothy White, Myrtle Ochiltree, Marjorie Ochiltree. Masters—Donald Johnston, Richard Johnston, Joey Rushton, Jimmie Rushton.

Five hundred invitations to the dancing party have been issued. Following are the members of the club: Misses Florence Hoyle, Honora Yard, Elvys Houtman, Ila Bridges, Annes Jesson, Hazel Martin, Marie Yard, Grace Poole, Marie Jesson, Mable Houtman, Mrs. E. J. Burke.

Goodrich Makes Reduction in the Price of Tires

At the psychological moment, when the tire user is feeling the need of equipping his car with safety tread tires and when the Goodrich "safety first" slogan is becoming almost a household word, the B. F. Goodrich company announces a reduction in the prices to the user. Last spring the Goodrich company led the tire makers of the world in reducing prices to the consumer, as it did last year. The reduction in price at this time comes as a pleasant surprise to the tire sets of the country. It was not thought that there would be a lowering in price until next spring, and the action of the Goodrich company once more shows how this great organization sets the pace.

PROMINENT CHARITY WORKER IS CALLED TO REST.

Mrs. E. Seligsohn, Leader in Charity Work, Dies Suddenly

Mrs. E. Seligsohn, one of the pioneer women of Omaha, a leader in charity work in the Jewish societies, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Hadra, 128 South Thirty-fifth street, yesterday, aged 79 years 1 month. Heart failure was the cause of her death.

A month ago she was ill a few days and had completely recovered. During the early part of the week she complained of not feeling well and yesterday while taking a cup of soup from the maid fell back in her chair and died almost instantly. The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Sunday morning from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hadra, with interment in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Seligsohn celebrated their golden wedding in June, 1912, and it was one of the social events of the city. At the time Mrs. Seligsohn gave a large sum of money to charitable institutions and to the needy poor. Mrs. Seligsohn is survived by her husband, E. Seligsohn, connected with the Woolstein company; two sons and two daughters. The sons are Fred of Kansas City and Leo of Minneapolis, both of whom have been notified of the death of their mother and are expected to arrive in the city today. The daughters are Mrs. Fred Hadra and Mrs. William L. Harris, both of Omaha.

Methodist Fathers and Sons at Banquet

One hundred and fifty men and boys—fathers, sons and brothers—banqueted at the parlors of the First Methodist church last night. It was the second annual banquet of the kind that has been given by members of the church. Will Giwita, responding to Toastmaster Sturges, delivered the address of welcome. Short talks were: "Chums," Leonard Wadich; "The Big Brother," C. A. Goss; "Wanted—A Boy," Alfred Ritten Rittenhouse; "Brothers All," Rev. Titus Lowe. The Ladies' Aid society served the dinner. The Young Men's Christian association here, as well as in other cities throughout the country, is credited with having originated the "father-son-big-brother" movement. Other organizations, appreciating that good would follow a closer relation between young men and their elders, followed the lead thus given. It has become popular, and, assurance is given, the annual banquet will continue a feature of church activities here.

PLAN FOR COLLECTING THANKSGIVING OFFERINGS

The advisory committee of the Associated Charities, comprised of representatives from twelve of the leading charitable institutions of Omaha, yesterday decided upon a plan for collecting the thank offerings of the school children of the city. The plan is one intended to avoid all unnecessary expense in the collection and distribution of donations to the poor and is one with which Superintendent Graff of the public schools is thoroughly in sympathy.

A central depot has been selected and several large automobile trucks will make the rounds of the thirty-five school buildings next Wednesday morning to collect the donations. The routing of the trucks has been planned by J. W. Maynard, who has immediate charge of delivering the donations.

It is especially desired that the children take their donations to the school buildings Tuesday, so that all will be in readiness when the trucks arrive the following day. Baskets will be sent to the building preparatory to the collection, in which the children may place their gifts of potatoes, turnips and apples, but it is desired, wherever possible, that the children bring their donations in separate baskets. Articles of clothing should be wrapped in separate bundles and left in the school yards in care of those appointed to receive them. The distribution of the gifts collected will be made Friday, following Thanksgiving.

The announcement followed a meeting of the boards of the two companies at the close of a day of mild excitement in financial circles in Washington.
