scems to have settled in the affirmative the question of accepting the presidency of the National league. His term of office is to be four years and salary, so reports have it. $25,000 a year. He is quoted as saying he will not abandon his office as governor, but serve the term out, when, of course, his time will be divided between the two positions. His term as governor expires January 17, 1915, and that office pays him $16,000 a year. so that financially he will be doing fairly well. This will set up a remarkable spectacle, in a way, for the governor of a great state to be acting also as the ad of a base ball league and at such a salary. But the most significant thing about the transaction is that it fixes more firmly than ever the status of base ball as a legitimate and serious and orable business. This very naturally superimposes upon the great national game a little larger responsibility than it has ever yet had to maintain. It cannot could command; that he is honest, up-right and generally feariess. His going, while it seems to have been both inevit-able and best for all interests, neverthetem excites a sense of regret, for he really never had a fair chance to make good on a large scale. He entered the office under the bane of some very relentless enemies. by whom he has been nagged continually. and position that Ban Johnson has in the American league every time a dog in scheduled with Wisner, New, for Thanksmanger has tried to bite him. The National league needs balancing and a lasting and bold and able leadership, needs them far more than does the American league, for the simple reason that it has too long been without them. It cannot afford to prolong the hlatus. It is most gratifying to have the cordial sympathy of Johnson and his organisation in the selection. The closest cooperation, without approaching anything monopolistic, that obtains between the big leagues the better all round.

That is an interesting, but not surprising story of the projecting of a fourth ture of it is what White Wings Tebess is back of it. But the move, 'majors' are merely making out when they appear indifferent to the Outlaws. Lineup first games They are by no means easy as to this Federal league, and well might they not

The rumor that Mordecal Brown is to manage the Chicago Federal league team is interesting to Omaha fans, because another ex-Omahan, Bert Keeley, has been the manager of that team. It will be strange, though, if the National league sits by and passes up a man like Brown Garry Herrmann offers his unconditional release whenever he can land a managerial berth and if Garry stands to his promise with Brown going to the outlaws, it will be one straw showing the drift of the wind, for, officially. Herrmann is head of organized base ball. Incidentally, if Brown were still a Cub. would be be offered his unconditional release as soon as he landed what he wanted?
