

The Packing, Marketing and Refrigeration of Fish Food

will be investigated shortly by the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry, according to Harper's Weekly, October 25th issue.

This branch of the work of transporting sea food from the water to your table is the salient feature of this organization.

We maintain and operate a fleet of iron-clad fishing vessels, inspected daily by sanitary experts, and manned by skilled men, who have passed the school of efficiency with a high mark.

The minute the fish is caught, it is inspected, and if sound, placed in sanitary refrigeration (good, clean, natural ice) and immediately transported to the various distributing stations, thence to your table, guaranteed to be fresh, not only on certain days of the week but every day.

This is the story briefly told. The result you will appreciate if you order today.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Dana Merrill Expires of Attack of Heart Disease.

WELL-KNOWN AS SPORTSMAN

South Omaha Sheep Receipts Already at Record Mark for Year, with Another Month for Addition.

Dana Merrill, proprietor of the Blue Rook Target factory at Twenty-sixth and O streets, died at his residence, 1109 North Twenty-fourth street, yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. Death was caused by an attack of angina pectoris, a heart affection, which struck the deceased some weeks ago. He rallied and resumed his position at the head of the factory. Later he was stricken a second time and was recovering from the second seizure when taken yesterday morning with the fatal attack. Death occurred at 11 o'clock.

With the death of Dana Merrill South Omaha loses one of the best known and most highly respected citizens. Merrill had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances, although he was a reserved man toward others. He served two terms on the school board and was president of the South Omaha Gun club for a long time. As a sportsman Dana Merrill ranked high. At one time he held the state championship among target men. He was a lover of outdoor sports and each year spent a long time among the hills where he hunted and fished with a company of congenial spirits.

He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Grace Vaught. At the time of his death his brother, H. Merrill, of Benton Harbor, Mich., had just arrived on a visit. Another brother, F. Merrill, of Washington, D. C., survives him, as does Frank E. Jones, a half brother. The funeral will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Wheeler conducting the services. Interment will be made in Graceland Park cemetery. The pallbearers will be John Briggs, P. J. Martin, Frank Dvorak, A. C. Pancoast, J. J. Boyle and Del Pearce.

Truckers for City Employees.

In order that all city employees may have turkey on Thanksgiving day, the council yesterday evening passed a motion allowing the salaries for November. Bids on a new or second-hand police patrol were ordered advertised and the motion forbidding the chief of police to charge his official auto bills to the city was rescinded and a new one passed allowing the chief $25 for the repairs of his machine. Bids on fire hose, 2,000 feet double jacket, 3/4-inch cotton, rubber lined, were ordered in by December 15. Invitations to be present at a meeting of the Deer Park Improvement club were accepted for Friday at 8 p. m. The city attorney was directed to prepare an ordinance for a new viaduct on the south side of the Q street railroad to be built by the Union Stock Yards company and the railroads. The new railing, it is said, contemplates an opening which will give access from a hotel that, it is said, will be erected in the near future on one side of the viaduct.

School Board Meets.

A session of the school board was held last night at the high school building. The session was private. It is said that the board will have a meeting on Monday. The board will have a meeting on Monday. The board will have a meeting on Monday.

Pendleton Obsolete.

Victor Pendleton, iron worker, is held at the South Omaha police station because he will not comply with the mandate of Judge James English, who gave the custody of Pendleton's 2-year-old daughter to Mrs. Nancy Dunn, 225 Dodge street. Pendleton took the child Saturday night from Mrs. Dunn and since that time the police authorities of both cities have been seeking for the place of his bestowal. Pendleton first brought the child to a place near Twenty-fourth and Q streets. When the police visited the place the child was gone. Pendleton refuses to tell the whereabouts of the child. A woman attaché of the juvenile court visited the police station yesterday and queried the man. Her questions seemed to heckle Pendleton, who stated that he would tell all about it to the judge. The prisoner seemed unwilling to look upon the woman attaché of the court in the light of a judicial officer.

Hector Finds a Baby.

Mayor Thomas Hector found a baby Sunday night at Twenty-fourth and G streets. The mayor was on his way downtown about 7 o'clock at night when he was attracted by what sounded like the mewling cries of an infant. The mayor hesitated, followed the sound and down near a doorway he discovered a bundle whence the cries came. The bundle was soft and warm and the mayor picked the infant up in his arms. Then he tried to figure out what he was to do with the baby. He halted a belated passerby. "Got a light?" asked the mayor. The man passed over a match. "Say," confided the mayor, "I just found a baby." The passerby gave one startled yelp and beat it hastily up the street. Standing under the electric light, Hector found the infant up and down and restrained its cries. An irreverent party of joy riders jeered at him as they whizzed by. Then the mayor started home with his find. Then he started back. Finally he secured the attention of an old-time political associate and the two proceeded to look for marks of identification on the infant.

One eye was black. The rest of it was spotted. It weighed about five pounds and, as nearly as the mayor could figure out, it was a mongrel pup of uncertain, not to say dubious, lineage. The mayor drew a sigh of relief and he hastily sought the front porch of a neighbor who never supported him for office and to whom he felt as if he owed a duty. There he deposited the dog with a pious wish for its long life and prosperity.

Sheep Records Broken.

Sheep receipts at the South Omaha market, from January 1, 1913, to November 24, have passed the 3,000,000 mark, and established a new record for one year's receipts and still there is the month of December to boost it higher. For the period of less than eleven months the receipts total 2,984,570 head of sheep. The largest full year previous to 1913, totaled 2,984,570 head in 1910. Present indications are, when the figures are finally footed up for 1913, a total of approximately 3,200,000 head will result.

No Change in Inspection.

There was considerable excitement among those interested when two of Omaha's newspapers carried in their Sunday morning edition sensational articles concerning a rumored change in the inspection of hogs at this market. It soon developed that the report was unfounded. Dr. Neil, the inspector in charge of the bureau of animal industry at this point, stated he had received no orders of any kind with reference to any change in the inspection rules.

One of the noticeable figures of American league pitchers was the absence of talk. But eleven batters were made in the American league last year. Ensign of Washington, committed three of the eleven offenses.

Volence Returns.

After a week's absence during which time he was thought to have met with foul play, B. Volence, a Bohemian grocer at Thirty-eighth and Jackson streets, returned home yesterday. He notified his wife by special delivery letter from Lincoln of his whereabouts. Last night when he arrived in Omaha from Lincoln he telephoned his family to which he asked whether they wished him home or not. The reason of his sudden going a week ago is not known. Being of steady habits prior to his disappearance it was feared that he had met with foul play or been kidnapped.
