Given Life Term for Attack on Girl Guest

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 28.—E. Graham Wilson, the wealthy farmer whose trial for an alleged assault on Miss Kate Turner, has filled the Jefferson county court house for more than a week, was today found guilty by a jury, which recommended that Wilson be confined in the penitentiary. This saves him from hanging, as under the law the court has no alternative when a verdict of guilty is without the recommendation. Miss Turner was a guest of Mrs. Wilson at time of the assault.

NEGRO PARTLY IDENTIFIED AS ART STUDENT'S SLAYER

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Charles Dooley, a negro who has confessed to a number of burglaries in this city, was partly identified today as the man being sought in connection with the murder of Miss Ida G. Leagson, the art student, who was slain October 4.
The identification was made by Jailer Connelly, a switchman at Argo, Ill., who saw a negro accompanying the artist on the night of the murder.
"I think he is the man," said Connelly, "but I could tell better if he wore a dark gray overcoat and a soft dark hat."
A coat and hat as described, said to have been found by the police in Dooley's lodgings, were done by the prisoner.
"That's the man. I'm sure of him," exclaimed Connelly.
Dooley denied the charge.

GRANT'S GRANDSON JOINS ARMY IN HOPE OF MEX WAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Chapman Grant, a grandson of General Ulysses S. Grant, has resigned a position in the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences to become a soldier. Early in December he will leave for Texas to become second lieutenant in the Fourteenth United States cavalry.
Discussing his resignation, which was announced today, Grant said his decision to join the army at this time had been prompted by the possibility that he would see active service in Mexico. The Fourteenth is doing duty along the Mexican border.

PIMPLES WOULD BURN AND ITCH

Over Body and Head. Sore Spots on Arm and Shoulders. Scratched Until They Bleed. After Using Cuticura Soap and Ointment a Week, Eczema Left Her.
913 S. Harkley St., Muncie, Ind.—"When my little girl was a year and a half she broke out in little fire pimples here and there over the body and head. They would be about the size of a quarter after they were broken out and would form a scab for a week or more. Then the scabs would begin to peel off. The disease would itch and give her much trouble. As she grew older they would spread until some places would be as large as a half dollar. Her clothes seemed to make the sores burn and itch. The sore spots were on the top of her arm and two on her shoulders. She would scratch them until they would bleed. Sometimes in combing her hair it would come out. "I used Cuticura for a while but it did not seem to be any good and I used also without result. She continued to break out with the eczema until I wrote for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and used them. I purchased some more and the eczema came off and I could comb them out of her hair and it healed up just today. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment a week the eczema left her." (Signed) Mrs. Laura Graven, Nov. 27, 1913.

ONLY FAULT DRINK HABIT

Many men are good husbands, fathers and sons in every way except the habit of drinking. They mean to do right even in this respect, but have become so badly poisoned with alcohol that they cannot stop drinking, and the result is always unhappiness and poverty for the wife and family. Do not condemn your drinking husband and son, but encourage them to take the Neel Drink Habit Treatment and become sober and useful. The Neel Treatment will remove the craving and necessity for drink in three days—without hypodermic injections. Let us give you proof that it will not fail to give you satisfactory results. VICTORS ADMIT EXECUTIONS

One Hundred, and Eighty-Four Wounded in Juarez Hospitals—Villa Makes No Effort to Pursue Lee.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 27.—One hundred and eighty-four wounded men are in the Juarez hospitals tonight as a result of the unsuccessful federal attack upon Juarez.

General Villa is also back in Juarez. Six thousand rebel troops are back in Juarez. South of Juarez for eighteen or twenty miles, there are no rebel soldiers. General Villa says he has some further resources and that the city is well guarded against a reappearance of the enemy. But General Villa has made no effort to pursue the enemy.

General Villa captured a number of federal field pieces and a number of cars. This is apparent to anyone who saw his army go out the other day and then come back today. Horses dragged fifteen field pieces, five were on the train that brought the rebel leader himself and five more were brought in tonight on the train that General Villa left on the field today in charge of the burial squad. General Villa only had nine guns when he went out.

The rebel chief said yesterday that he captured 500 federals. Today he brought less than 300 to Juarez. He admits executing some of them. Apparently the greatest number of dead as a result of the fighting are those who faced the firing squad and paid the penalty of supporting the Huerta cause rather than that of Villa, Madero or Carranza. A trip over the battifield today failed to reveal but a very few dead bodies or newly made graves.

Bodies of Executed.

Plenty of empty cartridge shells and exploded shrapnel were found upon the field. Two newly made graves were seen near Mesa, where General Villa made his headquarters, and two dead bodies were found on a train at Mesa late this afternoon by the rebel soldiers while a correspondent of the Associated Press was present. Both these bodies had their hands tied and each had evidently died at the hands of executioners. These were the only dead or evidences of dead seen upon the field. The correspondent entered the field at Bauche, where the rebels had the artillery; where they turned back the federal effort Monday to flank them on the left; traversed the distance of the rebel line to Mesa, signalling over the field, then went straight south to the federal trenches, several miles from Mesa.

Ample evidences of very recent activity were apparent in the recent locations of the two armies, but the field was no more strewn nor littered than would have happened if any big encampment of men had been made there for two or three days.

Broken, discarded saddles were seen, hats blown about in the wind an occasional blanket or shirt was flapping in the morning wind from the low brush that covers the country and an occasional dead horse was spotted. Rebel soldiers always encamped in some trench, either up or down and buried, and they pointed off beyond the hills.

Must Have Been Carried Far.

If there were many federal dead as a result of the battle, other than executions, the rebels carried them a great distance across the country to bury them. The Associated Press correspondent climbed hills where federal cannons had been planted, found dead horses occasionally, found many tracks where men, horses and cannon had been wheeled about, saw thousands in the trenches and walked great distances in the rear to each side and to the front of the trenches, yet failed to find any freshly turned earth that would indicate graves.

The same proceeding was followed in the territory where the rebel lines and fortifications laid. The two newly made graves near Mesa and the two dead bodies were all that rewarded the search. There were other dead, for rebels with spades were seen coming in from remote sections of the field, but the death list is not heavy. The general belief is that most of the men who filled the graves, however, were men who were shot after capture.

One of the points in favor of such a conclusion is the almost undisturbed character of the ground between the two battle lines. The distance is six miles and the fighting appears to have been on one line to the other, with very little activity between the two. The ground is scarcely disturbed on any of the intervening territory.

Admit Executions.

The rebels admit executing certain of their prisoners and explain that only such men as had volunteered for service with the federals were thus disposed of. The rebel army, riding into Juarez today from its victory south of the city, exhibited many souvenirs of the conquest. Some of the rebel soldiers wore the blue uniforms of the late federals, divested of their brass buttons and army insignia. Many of the rebel officers wore capes and coats of federal officers and one of the rebel captains wore a new cap of a federal officer. On the whole, however, the rebels had not decided themselves with many of the spoils of war. They admitted removing the uniforms of the men they executed before shooting them, carefully explaining that the clothing was thus not soiled by the bullets of the rifle or the blood of the victim, and that it was necessary to conserve all wearing apparel.

Practically all of the Villa fighting army is quartered in the city of Juarez tonight. Nobody remains on the late battifield. It is deserted and quiet. Only an occasional lame horse, released by the rebels because of his further uselessness, nibbles at the scant vegetation; this is the only sign of life at the point where 10,000 men, at least, battled yesterday and Monday.

Threaten to Fire on Oil Tanks.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—"Remore the gunboat Bravo or we shall fire on the oil tanks in the city of Tampico and along the banks of the river above." This threat, according to private information received here today, was sent to the commander of the federals at Tampico yesterday.

So long as the garrison at Tampico is aided by the guns of the Bravo, which is anchored in the river just off Fiscal pier, there appears to be little chance for the rebels to capture and hold the city. But they might easily devastate the entire region by carrying out this threat to shoot at the tanks and fire the oil, estimated at 100,000 barrels. Should the oil in the tanks upriver be fired, the floating flame would be carried into the heart of the city, most effectively removing the menace offered by the gunboat, destroy all shipping and probably a fair part of the town.

That the rebels will carry out their threat is regarded by some of the officials here as by no means improbable.

Halt Leaves for Capital.

TUSCON, ARIZ., Nov. 27.—William Bayer and Hale left tonight on a limited train for Washington, where he will report directly to President Wilson concerning the conference he carried on as the president's spokesman with General Venustiano Carranza, leader of the constitutionalists in Mexico.

WOODWARD IN BANKRUPTCY

Former Omaha Theatrical Manager Files Petition.

CAME HERE FROM SAC CITY

Had Marvellous Success in Pushing Low Price Stock Companies and Now Operates Theater in Denver.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 27.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed this afternoon in the federal court for O. D. Woodward and the Woodward & Burgess Amusement company. Woodward's liabilities are stated as between $30,000 and $40,000 and those of the amusement company are the same amount. In the petition Woodward's assets are named as nothing and those of the amusement company as $1,000, providing certain theatrical property can be sold.

Woodward Explains.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 26.—O. D. Woodward, manager of a local theater, tonight explained that the bankruptcy proceedings sought by the Woodward-Burgess Amusement company was simply a method of clearing the obligations of the company which has not been in active business for a year, since it gave up the Willis Wood theater in Kansas City.

Mr. Woodward stated that many damage suits had been filed against the company and that since it had no assets, bankruptcy was the best way to bring them to a conclusion. The defunct company operated in Kansas City, where it leased two houses for many years and in Omaha.

The company in which Mr. Woodward is connected here has nothing in common with the Woodward-Burgess Amusement company.

Advent in Omaha.

O. D. Woodward's first appearance in Omaha in the show business was about fifteen years ago when he came here from Sac City, Ia. Prior to that time and for several years he had been running road shows, playing one-night engagements. He came here with the idea of putting on a 10-cent show. Nons of the theatrical managers would listen to him, but finally during the summer season, when the houses would have been closed, he secured the Orpheum, which was then known as the Creighton.

The success of the venture was apparent from the start and before the season was half over he had no difficulty in securing men who were willing to back him to the limit. Later on what is now the Gayety was built for him and in this, then known as the Burwood, he made money.

Woodward felt that he had become a shrewd man and he went into the stock business, organizing companies and putting them into a circuit that he owned and controlled. He built or leased houses in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Omaha, Sioux City, Mankato and St. Paul. This was a winner and promised to make Woodward a rich man.

Enters Kansas City.

Woodward went to Kansas City, where he undertook to control the theatrical business of that town. He not only leased one, but three theaters, playing the attractions that he had built up. Finally the business became too heavy and commenced to tumble and Woodward had to let go of most of the property which he had accumulated. Litigation followed and things went from bad to worse. He lost the leases on all of the theaters and is now in Denver playing the Eva Lang Stock company in a new theater he leased there.

Four or five years ago Mr. Woodward was reputed to be worth $50,000 to $75,000. All made in the show business after he came to Omaha. He was a director in one of the Kansas City banks and the owner of a race horse when his business commenced to go to the bad. He also had a large interest in the Kansas City Post.

While the bankruptcy proceedings in Kansas City run against the Woodward & Burgess Amusement company, W. J. Burgess is in no wise involved. For a number of years Woodward and Burgess were partners in certain branches of the amusement business and later organized the company in which they held the most of the stock.

The committee included Mrs. George A. Joslyn, Mrs. Harold Gifford, Mrs. Lawrie Childs, R. C. Peters, W. H. Koehn and T. R. Kimball.

An active interest was taken by the children in the contest this year and it is expected that considerable more interest will be manifested next year. All the gardens were good and it was impossible for the committee to award the general sweepstakes prize because no child's garden was conspicuously better than the others.

The following prizes were awarded:

Northwest District—The first prize was $25 and Helen Tracy of 104 North Twenty-second street—the second or third prize awards are made from this district's contest gardens found worthy. Honorable mention, however, is made of the gardens of Elsie and Leslie Sterling, 42 North Fourteenth street; Arthur Logan, Nineteenth and California streets, and Margaret Ellis, 287 North Nineteenth street.

Southeast District—The first prize, $35, goes to Joseph McCollister, 3041 Stone avenue.

The third prize is halved by Edwin Ford, 123 South Tenth street and Frank Noles, 123 South Tenth street.

Honorable mention is made of Abie Kohn, 333 South Twenty-second street.

Southeast District—The first prize, $25, goes to Marion Guild, 1335 South Thirty-fifth street.

The second prize, $15, is divided between Stanley Wallin, 243 South Forty-second street, and Helen Wiler, 4673 Leavenworth street.

Honorable mention is made of the work of Helen Gould, 331 Pacific street; Lloyd Wagner, 4683 Marcy street; Arthur Brown, 4605 Marcy street; James O'Neil, 1233 South Fifty-third street; Petergen, 5124 Marcy street; John Rabba, 123 South Fifty-fourth street.

Shows Very Good.

The committee report says: "On account of there being no garden sweepstakes prize was not awarded. To each contestant receiving honorable mention, however, the committee has awarded a trade tag bill good for the purchase of garden seeds, plants, tools or other supplies to the amount of $2.50. These tags will be cashed at the Sixteenth street store of E. B. Stewart & Co. and will have a cash purchasing value equal to that face.

"In reviewing its work for the year the garden committee feels gratified that in spite of a very late start, a tornado and a long season of drouth it has been able to award its prizes with the feeling that they have been earned, and is glad to recognize the efforts of those to whom honorable mention has been given. We are proud of our city's boys and girls, who can and do achieve results in spite of all obstacles, and we look forward with high hopes to what the next year's competition shall bring forward.

"In arranging for the 1914 contest the committee is to be greatly enlarged and the scope of the work broadened. What has been handled this year by a committee of five will be managed in 1914 by six committees numbering some fifty active workers, but of this and the details of the work due and full notice will be given through the Omaha newspapers. It is certain, however, that the coming contest will not be restricted to young people, and that a revised and enlarged edition of the league's booklet, the Four Garden Letters, will be published and distributed, and that instructive talks will be given before the schools, teachers' association and other organizations.

"This movement for city improvement and beautification is general all over the civilized world and is fast converting the cities—the abodes of smoke and grime—into verdant beauty spots. Indicative of the awakening here is the action of the Omaha Society of Fine Arts in changing its constitution in order to cover activities proposed in the support of the city betterment for which the Civic league is organized."

Shows Very Good.

The committee report says: "On account of there being no garden sweepstakes prize was not awarded. To each contestant receiving honorable mention, however, the committee has awarded a trade tag bill good for the purchase of garden seeds, plants, tools or other supplies to the amount of $2.50. These tags will be cashed at the Sixteenth street store of E. B. Stewart & Co. and will have a cash purchasing value equal to that face.

"In reviewing its work for the year the garden committee feels gratified that in spite of a very late start, a tornado and a long season of drouth it has been able to award its prizes with the feeling that they have been earned, and is glad to recognize the efforts of those to whom honorable mention has been given. We are proud of our city's boys and girls, who can and do achieve results in spite of all obstacles, and we look forward with high hopes to what the next year's competition shall bring forward.

"In arranging for the 1914 contest the committee is to be greatly enlarged and the scope of the work broadened. What has been handled this year by a committee of five will be managed in 1914 by six committees numbering some fifty active workers, but of this and the details of the work due and full notice will be given through the Omaha newspapers. It is certain, however, that the coming contest will not be restricted to young people, and that a revised and enlarged edition of the league's booklet, the Four Garden Letters, will be published and distributed, and that instructive talks will be given before the schools, teachers' association and other organizations.

"This movement for city improvement and beautification is general all over the civilized world and is fast converting the cities—the abodes of smoke and grime—into verdant beauty spots. Indicative of the awakening here is the action of the Omaha Society of Fine Arts in changing its constitution in order to cover activities proposed in the support of the city betterment for which the Civic league is organized."

GARDEN PRIZES ANNOUNCED

CIVIC LEAGUE COMMITTEE ACTS

Statement Made that Showing is Good in View of Drouth—Much is Expected During the Coming Year.

FIRST PRIZE WINNERS.

The Civic league's garden committee has awarded prizes to the winners of the first annual lot improvement contest. The contest was conducted by the league for the purpose of beautifying the city of Omaha. All children in the city were eligible to compete.

The committee included Mrs. George A. Joslyn, Mrs. Harold Gifford, Mrs. Lawrie Childs, R. C. Peters, W. H. Koehn and T. R. Kimball.

An active interest was taken by the children in the contest this year and it is expected that considerable more interest will be manifested next year. All the gardens were good and it was impossible for the committee to award the general sweepstakes prize because no child's garden was conspicuously better than the others.
