TRAVELS IN FIVE COUNTIES Seward County Out of Those Visited Said to Be in Worst Condition and In Need of New Facilities.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Nov. 29 .- (Special.) - Secretary J. M. Shahan of the State Board of

Charities and corrections has just fin ished his third trip of inspection of the jails and poorhouses of Nebraska, and in his report to the governor gives an account of what he found in the jails visited in Saunders, Butler, Seward, York and Johnson counties as follows:

and Johnson counties as follows:

At Wahoo, in Saunders county, I found an old frame two-story building used as a jail. The sheriff lives in the first story, and in the second story is the jail. It is equipped with a cage likil feet, containing two cells 7x8 feet, and one separate room, lixil feet, for female prisoners. It is connected with city water and sewer, but the building has been condemned by at least five grand juries of the county. A proposition to vote bonds to build a new jail was voted down. The officials now contemplate proceeding under Senate File No. 12t that was passed at the last session of the legislature, and which provides that upon the petition of 51 per

In Butler County.

At David City in Butler county is a neat little cement stone jail 25x25 feet, all in one room, situated on the court house grounds, equipped with a cage 14x14 feet and having two cells 7x9 feet. This jail has city water and sewer connections and is piped for steam heat, but no radiator placed. There is also a room in the court house 12x18 feet, with toliet room and electric lights, to be used for female prisoners. This jail is little used, no prisoners having been confined in it (for a serious crime) since October 1511. The poor farm in this county consists of 169 acres of good land, with good barns and out buildings. The residence is an old building, heated with stoves, has two bath tubs and water is supplied from pumps. The house is clean, but needs repairs, in fact a new building is needed. There are four inmates at this farm.

Seward Condition Bad.

Seward Condition Bad.

At Seward, in Seward county, is an old low, one-story frame shack called the sheriff's residence and jali—a misnomer—because it is not a fit house to be called a residence and wholly unfit for a jail. The citizens of the county voted three different times to move the location, but falled each time. The jail has been condemned by the grand jury four different times in the last eight years. A new one should be built at once.

The poor farm of this county consists of 160 acres of land, with good barn and outbuiltings. The county also owns twenty-eight head of cattle, fifty-four hogs, five horses and 200 chickens. The residence is a good large house of twenty-four rooms, heated with stoves, with two bath rooms and is in good condition except two rooms which need a new floor. There are six inmates.

Conditions in York.

Conditions in York.

At York, in York county, the jail is in the basement of the court house, is heated with steam and is equipped with bath rooms and toilets, connected with sewer and is well ventilated. It has three rooms, so that the female prisoners may be entirely separated from the male prisoners. Has one cage 12x14 feet, with two cells, and is clean and in good shape.

The poor farm consists of 166 acres, with good outbuildings. The residence is well MELROSE, Mass., Nov. 29.-William C. Russell, son of the late Daniel Russell. and one of the central figures in the famous Russell will case, died at the family homestead today. He was 65 years old.

Mr. Russell supposed himself to be the sole heir to the half million dollar estate of his father until about four years ago. when a man from Dickinson, S. D., known as "Dakota Dan," claimed halt the property on the allegation that he was Daniel Blake Russell, long-lost conof the testator. Later a man from Fresno, Cal., called "Fresno Dan." was recognized by the Russell family as the missing heir and the courts sustained his claim after three years of litigation.
