Do you want to ensonare fow dollars? Then hark a few dollars? Then hark back to the old adage-
"Money saved is money earned"

You can "earn" money when you buy clothes-1f you buy them judiciously. Which, to your mind, is more judicious - to buy more judicious - to buy from a merchant who is from a merchant who is gains," "specials," etc., stant risk of fictitious or manipulated prices)-

Or to buy from a firm like Magee $&$ Deemer like Magee & Deemer, where prices on goods are where prices on goods are not one thing one day and something else the nextbut where a logical price is set in the first instance as low can be sold for anywhere and then maintained the season through with equal advantage to every one all the time?

The answer seems to be know there's no danger of someone else getting the same suit, hat or shirt a day or two later at $1 / 4$ less money. Buy where the "bargains" are continuous, rather than intermittent where they consist of a full where they consist of a full equivalent in quality and value for every cent you spend.

Magee & Deemer (413 S. 16 th) specialists in clothes, hats and furnish ings for gentlemen, are that sort of a firm.
