Butter the Same.

Butter has not made any advance in price. It probably will not be any higher according to Mr. King. The new state law provides that storage butter must be marked storage and as a result storage men have a large supply of storage butter on hand which retailers are refusing to purchase, because of the bother attending the sale of storage goods under the new law. Storage butter is priced at a lower figure than fresh butter, but a market cannot be found. Storage men are willing to sell their butter on hand for the prices they paid for it, but are unable to do so.

The storage law will have a general tendency to prevent butter from soaring to high altitudes. Storage men will not purchase the fresh butter to hold for a high price and as a consequence all fresh butter will be placed on the market mmediately.
