Nebraska. STATE RESOURCES ON FILM

Governor Morehead Calls Session of Commission.

INDUSTRIES NWILL BE SHOW

State Employees Are Expected to Attend to Ascertain What is Being Accomplished Over Nebraska.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

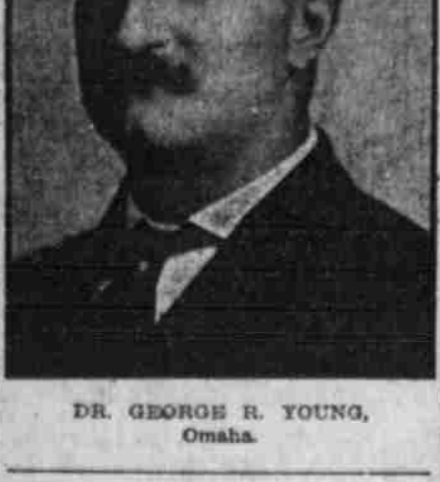

LINCOLN, Dec. 6.—(Special.)—Governor Morehead has called a meeting of the Nebraska Conservation and Public Welfare commission for Monday evening, December 8.

At this meeting the commission will go over some matters of business connected with the work of the commission, but the meeting will be given over chiefly to the presentation of moving picture films taken this last summer under the direction of the commission, showing the leading resources and industries of the state. Films on the apple industry, beet sugar industry, and irrigation will be run. A film made at the Better Babies show at the state fair will also be presented.

The governor is asking all persons connected with state departments, including the University of Nebraska and all those drawing pay from state funds to be present if they can conveniently do so. This request of the governor springs from a desire on his part to unify and make more efficient the work of all state departments. This meeting will afford an excellent opportunity for state employees from different departments to get together and learn a little of what is being done in other lines of work.

Other persons than state employees, interested in state development, will be admitted to the meeting upon application to the governor or the commissioners. It is impossible to throw the meeting open generally to the public because of the limited accommodations and because these films will be run later in various district and state meetings.

Nebraska. NAMED ON STATE VETERINARY BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

Date of State Fair Fixed at Meeting

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Dec. 6.—(Special.)—The next Nebraska state fair will be held at Lincoln on September 7-11, beginning on the first Monday in September. The Iowa state fair, following the usual custom, will be held the preceding week.

Arrangements for the fairs of next season have just been completed by the American Association of Fairs and Expositions. The annual convention was held at Chicago, the program concluding Friday.

W. R. Mellor, secretary of the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture, was re-elected vice president of the association by acclamation.

Perhaps no one incident of the convention caused more comment than the statement of G. W. Hervey of Omaha, who declared during a lull in the proceedings:

"I believe that Charles Rudge, chairman of the board of managers of the Nebraska state fair, is one of the best poster men on state fair business in the United States."

State Veterinarian Returns from East

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Dec. 6.—(Special.)—Dr. L. C. Kight, state veterinarian, has returned from a three days' session at Chicago, where he attended the meeting of the United States Live Stock association. The meeting was largely attended and most of the states were represented. Many papers read by different authorities upon tuberculosis, hog cholera, glanders and, in fact, all forms of infectious and contagious diseases.

Great stress was laid upon proper tuberculosis testing of dairy herds. Government experts now working in the states of Iowa, Indiana, Missouri and Nebraska report favorable progress in the work of tracing hog cholera.

It is the purpose of this association to study the sanitary science and the dissemination of information and methods pertaining to control and eradication of infectious diseases amongst live stock.
