Local Demos Howl Since Bryan and Jim Dahlman Make Up

Local democratic office-seekers, who patronage crib waiting for Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock to come through with the jobs, have lost all semblance of their usual equanimity and are howling for an answer to that very vital question: "Oh, where are we at?"

For it seems that Mayor James C. Dahlman, in Washington in behalf of his office-seeking friends, has met with Willlam Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, and that the twain, forgetting past un pleasantnesses, have fallen on each others' necks and wept in joyous reunion. But what is more to the point, it seems velvet," in the patronage gamble, and the friends of Senator Hitchcock, erstwhile steady, staunch and true, are refusing to turn the other cheek to be smitten by the senator, and are loudly demanding to know who, if anybody, will take charge of the job-distribution. Said a loyal democrat: Hitchcock will find that the voters of this state have sized him up if he runs for re-election. He has done enough and failed to do enough to kill him with the Nebraska democrats. He has failed to do what his supporters had a right expect he would do and now the Bryan-Dahlman alliance is the last straw on the burdened backs of the Hitchcock democrats."

The outbursts against the senator were numerous when the news came that Bryan and Dahlman had broken bread together, the inference being immediately drawn that it would be Bryan and Dahlman who would really hand out the And the friends of Bryan and the friends of Dahlman are not solidly and everlastingly allied with Senator Hitch-

The whole group s operated as a single district.

"Advantages of the plan are equalisation of school taxes between thinly and thickly pepulated districts, improvement of educational facilities and certainty that all property is taxed for the maintenance of schools." A union similar to that at Grand Rapids, Mr. Erickson said, has been effeeted at Deer River among the town and seventeen rural schools. The county superintendent has supervision as of all other schools in the county. The larger consolidation, however, he said, insures more equal distribution of taxes.

What is regarded as a well founded mor has it that Chief John McKale of the South Omaha fire department will displaced about the first of January Chief John Hasburg. Moorhead, election sioner for Douglas county, has signified his intention to give South Omaha voters every accommodation toward registering. but he does not propose to be cajoled or coerced into anything that would deviate from his hitherto announced policy of maintaining a strict supervision over all registration. This is in accord with a statement made yesterday by Commissioner Moorhead relative to a demand by bouth Omaha politicians that a deputy commissioner be located in the South ness trip to St. Louis last week, return-Omaha city hall for several months in order to register South Omaha citizens. cently presented her department sixty increased facilities for registering in South Omaha.

Commissioner Moorhead had announced that he would provide for several days the supervision of Miss Handcock, last of registration next spring in South Omaha preparatory to the school elections next spring. But in no case will he establish an office in South Omaha for any length of time or under any conduct apart from his own.

"I want to accommodate the voters, said Commissioner Moorhead yesterday. I am willing to do so even at the cost of extra expense, but there will be no separate registration office erected at South Omaha to last for any length of time. All registration will be made under my from John M. Tanner and I answered it. have received another letter in which Tanner says he expects to take the matte up with party leaders."

It is known that for many years registration in South Omaha to a large extent has been conducted on election days. City Clerk Perry Wheeler put down the bars, but even at that a goodly number found means to register on the score of 'sickness' or out of town business.

Officials Favor Plan. At the city hall Saturday a canvass of the different offices showed that the officials were to a great extent in favor of the methods used by Commissioner Moorhead in dealing with South Omaha as the rest of the county.

Among those who approved Commisioner Moorhead's decision were City Clerk Perry Wheeler, republican; Tax Commissioner J. M. Pitzgerald, democrat; City Treasurer P. J. Martin, republican, and Deputy City Clerk John Mercell, democrat. Other clerks and assistants also approved. It appears therefore that there will be no special office established in South Omaha for three or four months under the conduct of any clerk or deputy election commissioner for South Omaha. There will be a week's registration in South Omaha, probably within the next six weeks. Later in the spring there will be another regis-

Expects Much from Debaters. Prof. William Yerington, instructor in English at the South Omaha High school and coach of the debating team, believes that the South Omaha High school debating team will take many-laurels in the Nebraska State High School Debating league this year. Prof. Yerington is very enthusiastic over the prospects of both the first and second teams. He has had charge of the debating class since his advent to South Omaha last fall. Since his assumption of office he has imbued the high school lads under his charge with an enthusiastic desire to shine in the art of Demosthenes.

Although a complete schedule of the debates has not been completed, it is known that the Lincoln High school team will debate the South Omaha second team at the high school auditorium on January 9. A trial debate between the first and second teams will be held on December 19 at the auditorium.

Prof. Yerington is a young man, a native of Michigan, where he attended the state university. He is a graduate of the Michigan State normal and has taught with success in Michigan, Kansas and Nebruska. He is a deep student of sociological questions and has created con-
