

Nebraska Editors Who Will Occupy Omaha Pulpits Today

Nebraska editors will possess Omaha half of next week. Starting this morning they will occupy most of the pulpits of the Protestant churches and preach sermons or read papers on "What the Press Has Done to Aid in Raising the Standard of Morals in the State" and through to Wednesday night will be entertained by the various organizations of Omaha and South Omaha.

The program of business starts Monday at the Hotel Rome and will last until Wednesday afternoon, in which time many of the important business affairs and matters of policy in the editorial and advertising departments of newspapers will be thoroughly discussed.

There will be entertainment offered them in abundance. The feature of their stay so far as fun is concerned will be the entertainment given them at the Ak-Sar-Ben on Monday night. Ak-Sar-Benites have prepared a brilliant program.

The commission men, business men and the stock yards company of South Omaha have arranged to entertain the visitors Tuesday at luncheon with an automobile ride following. The annual banquet of the association followed by a dance will be given by the three Omaha papers. There will be numbers of special stunts for the visiting women, including a reception Monday night at the home of Mrs. H. E. Newbranch.

ADVENTISTS ARE MEETING

Having Conference, with Delegates from All Over, at Washington.

CREED TO BE WIDER SPREAD

Plans on Foot in Which Doctrines of the Belief Will be Scattered in Every Corner of the World.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Thousands of Seventh-day Adventists from all parts of the world, quartered in hundreds of tents during the quadrennial business session of the general conference, which is being held in Tacoma Park, a suburb of this place, from May 15 to June 1, listened intently to the report of Pastor E. T. Russell, who, as president, represents the approximately 10,000 Adventists of the General Union conference, which includes the local conferences of Nebraska, north Missouri, south Missouri, east Kansas, west Kansas, Colorado, west Colorado, and Wyoming. Pastor Russell stated that his charge consisted of 37 churches with 29 conference employees and that nearly 800,000 in titles and trust funds had passed through the hands of the union conference during the last four years. He also submitted facts showing that nearly 800,000 worth of Seventh-day Adventist literature in the form of books had been sold and delivered during this time.

The educational work of the union is carried on in fifty-three church schools, five intermediate schools, and two training schools, the latter being Union college at College View, Neb., and the Clinton German seminary at Clinton, Mo. These schools represent a student body of 1,800. Regarding Union college, the speaker said: "Union college has closed one of the most successful years of its history. Just before leaving for this conference, as chairman of the board of management, I had the pleasure of signing fifty-three diplomas. Of this number there were twenty for those who had completed the full college course, this being the largest number that have ever graduated from this institution at one time."

Work is Growing.

In accordance with the progressive health principles of the Seventh-day Adventists, the union has under its management four sanitariums located at Boulder, Colo.; Wichita, Kan.; College View, Neb., where the advantages of a medical profession are offered the students of Union college, and Hastings, Neb.; and in addition to this, two private
