AN IDEAL AMERICAN HOME

High School Girl Wins Valuable Prize for Writing Essay.

GIVEN BY DAUGHTERS OF 1812

Says that Woman is Essentially the Home Maker, While the Man Must Earn Money to Provide the Means.

Writing on the subject of "What Constitutes an Ideal American Home," Miss Florence Emmett won the prize offered by the Daughters of 1812 for the best essay on that subject by members of the domestic science classes of the Omaha High School. The prize was a set of colonial pattern tea spoons. Following is Miss Emmett's essay:

"We Americans in our busy life have gotten so far away from the true ideals of home that we have to stop and think a moment before we realize that home does not mean simply the place where we eat and sleep and enjoy more or less comfort. The true ideal of a home is a place of peace, happiness and quiet enjoyment, a place where we may find help in trouble, comfort in sorrow and rejoicing in our triumphs. The ideal home must also be a place of co-operation and helpfulness, both in moral and intellectual lines. In general the ideal home should stand for these things in one's life.

"Of the two founders of every home, the man and wife, the man must earn the money to keep the home, but the woman is essentially the home maker. One of the things absolutely necessary to an ideal home is partnership and co-operation between man and wife. Their one desire should be to make the home which they found an ideal one. No two people can always agree without some little compromise and sacrifice, but with the great end in view this should not be hard. With mutual understanding and perfect accord between the founders of the home it has a good foundation for the ideal structure.

"Perhaps the one thing without which no American home can be ideal and complete is children. The fundamental purpose of a home is to serve as a proper surrounding for raising children, so if there are no children the home is not serving its purpose. It is not enough to say just children, but children who will be brought up as Christians, good American citizens and future ideal homemakers. The home is apt to be ideal which has a group of happy, healthy, well reared children around its hearthstone. In an ideal home the father and mother are real helpers to their children.

They prepare them for their work in life by instilling into their minds good moral and sound principles and high ideals.

"Since in childhood we are perhaps more susceptible to influence, good or bad, than at any other time, the good that such a home can do in helping the lives of the children is unlimited. We all have our ideal of a true home and we are quick to recognize such a home when we see it. Young people, and especially children, appreciate the atmosphere of an ideal home. It seems to me that one of the best tests of an ideal home is whether or not it is the meeting place for the friends of the children. Is the home fireside deserted in the evening?

"When small brother's chum comes does he take him off to his room or do they sit and talk with father about things that interest small boys? Do sister's girl friends like to come and visit her and enjoy the hospitality of mother, or is sister herself discontented at home and always seeking some more congenial atmosphere? This is one of the tests of a true home.

"In order to attain good results in this line the father must be informed on topics which interest his children and the mother must be prepared to forget her cares and be interested in girls' affairs.
One fault which can be found in so many of our homes is that we too often encourage the little faults and failings of the members of the family rather than trying to help or if need be overlook them.

"All these things and many others are needed to make up the ideal home, but even these are not possible unless underlying it all is a well regulated household.
If things are always in a state of unrest and disquietude there can be no ideal home. If the mother is flurried and overworked she cannot give the proper amount of time to rearing her children and making a happy home. Then, the family cannot be healthy and, therefore, congenial and good natured unless fed with healthful and well cooked food.

"There are many ideal American homes where it seems that anyone could live happily, but few of these are ideal American homes."

Minors Get Verdict
for Heavy Damages

A verdict for $5,000 damages was given the two minor sons of the late William Davies, Page county, Iowa, against the Wabash railroad in the Douglas county district court.

Frank Hooker, administrator of the estate, brought suit against the company for $25,000 damages for the death of Davies, who was killed by a south bound Wabash freight train on the right of way between Blanchard and Coin, Ia. He was deaf and did not hear the approach of the train.

The suit was transferred from Page county to Douglas county to avoid trial in the federal court.

ASKS COUNCIL FOR AID IN SECURING WATER

Chris Chrusman, 408 South Ninth street, has petitioned the city council asking help in securing city water for eight lots and three families. He says a petition has been in the hands of the Water board for a long time, but nothing has been done. He asserts that for five years he has sought to get water in these houses and failed. Unless the council helps him, he says, he will be forced to dig a well.
The Water board has given him no reason for ignoring the petition.

NEW JERSEY COMMISSION
ENROUTE TO SAN FRANCISCO

The New Jersey state commission is enroute over the Burlington to San Francisco to pick out the site for the state building to be erected at the exposition grounds. The commission is traveling on a special and will be in Omaha at 6:40 Saturday morning, remaining half an hour.

COMMITTEE HELPS THE REST
Needs of Tornado Victims Are Now Being Solicited.

LAW INTRICACIES HAMPERING Investigations Show that Some in a Position to Go Ahead Must Await the Jurisdiction to Do So.

Inquiry is now being made by the tornado restoration committee into the reasons why so many of the homes destroyed by the Easter Sunday tornado have not yet been restored. It is estimated that there are still 200 wrecked homes on which not a bit of work has been done toward rebuilding.

W. O. Paisley, in charge of the restoration desk at the relief station, is calling upon and looking up the owners to learn just what is the reason for the delay. In many cases it is found that the restoration committee is able to help or make a suggestion that will lead to developments in the way of rebuilding.

There are other cases of persons fairly well-to-do who have not yet begun to rebuild. These owners are being seen as rapidly as possible. Usually it is found that there is some good reason that causes the delay, and that the intention is to go ahead with the rebuilding as soon as all matters can be arranged.

In one particular case Mr. Paisley found that not a thing had been done toward rebuilding and that the family seemed to be so situated that loans ought to be available. Inquiry brought out the fact that on account of the recent death of the father the property was in the hands of an administrator, who could not further encumber the property with mortgages without the consent of the court. It was also learned that one member of the family was not yet of age, and that in order to mortgage the property for a further loan it was necessary to put the deal through court. It is on this that they are waiting. Other properties are tied up on various legal technicalities.

Beddeo's New Store
in Salt Lake Wakes
Up Western Town

Elmer Beddeo, who for many years has been established in the women's and men's furnishing business in Omaha—his present location being at 1417 Douglas street—recently opened a branch store in Salt Lake City. The merchants of that western town sneered at the advent of the Nebraskan and said he would not succeed.
But during the last three months his business has been so large and his prices have so pleased the hundreds of customers in that city that the other furnishing goods firms have even gone so far as to threaten him. They do not like his competition. He has revolutionized the trade of the city, and is giving Salt Lake patrons the kind of apparel they never were able to get before at such modest prices. Salt Lake likes this new store, which is being managed by M. T. Nordquist, and likes it so well that the enterprising Omaha merchant will have to increase his store space and enlarge his stock to meet the needs of the hundreds of customers. The number of these patrons is daily growing, and Mr. Beddeo looks with pride upon the success which he has attained in the west. For it shows that he is a real merchant king, and that the success he has in Omaha is to be continued in the western city. In the local field Mr. Beddeo has built up one of the largest trades of its kind in the state, and his total sales for each month of the present year far exceed those of any other year. The sales for May, for instance, ran so far ahead of the corresponding month of last year that Mr. Beddeo was amazed.

LOVER RECALCITRATES
ACTION OF HIS RIVAL

Ed J. Kelley, fireman on the steamboat "Saturn" won a girl from her gentleman friend Thursday night while the boat was breasting the Missouri's waves and early in the morning while at Eleventh and Douglas streets, the jilted "gentleman friend" met him.
Kelley was badly beaten and stabbed with a pocket knife in the right thigh. He was repaired by Police Surgeon Foch-man and was able to go to his lodgings at Twelfth and Farnam, unassisted.

Finds Lid Tight, but He Gets in Trouble
With His Friend

Carl Sorenson of Hemmingford, who stopped in Omaha Thursday night to insult in a good time on his way to work in the wheat fields of Kansas, told County Attorney Magney that the lid was on so tight here that he and a companion were forced to go to Council Bluffs to secure entertainment. He said he found it there.

Sorenson consulted the county attorney about trouble over money he got into with his companion, who was also named Sorenson. He said he saved his friend's pocketbook for him in the excitement and that when he returned it the friend asserted some of the money was missing.
He wanted advice because his companion threatened to have him arrested.
