GIVES JUDGE 'PIECE OF MIND'
Didn't Give Hurrah Whether Jurist Was Busy or Not.

DIDN'T UNDERSTAND DOCUMENT
Son Was in Judge Foster's Court and Father Had Signed What He Thought Was Recommendation Instead of Lad's Bond.

Judge Leslie's court was shocked and visitors and patrons of that tribunal looked aghast while the father of Leo Agnew told the judge what he thought of courts and police judges generally. "I want to speak to you, judge," said Agnew, with a broad Irish brogue. "Awful busy," replied the judge. "You'll have to wait awhile." "I give a d—n whether you're busy or not," shouted Agnew. "I'm a taxpayer, and I want to be heard. Do you get me?" The judge got him. Anyway, the judge wasn't on the bench and could not, with propriety, seek him for contempt. "Go ahead," said the judge, meekly. "It's like this, your honor," said Agnew, now respectfully. "My son Leo has been hornswoggled. He was pinched and sentenced by Police Judge Foster, and the police judge, sir, fooled me. He told me to sign a recommendation, and I signed it. Now I'm told I signed a bond, and the case is coming up here. I absolutely refuse to sign a bond." "It'll have to come as routine," said the judge. "All right," replied Agnew, "but I know that man Foster, and I voted for him, and I'll remember how he fooled me, for I'm a taxpayer, judge." Agnew marched indignantly out of the court room, muttering deep deprecations of the ways and times of judges and courts.

Omaha Jobbers Are More Confident of Landing Contracts

Omaha jobbers are more hopeful than they have been for several years since the announcement of the personnel of the new State Board of Control. They believe they will be given a fair deal in the dispensation of contracts for supplying state institutions by the new board, not only because of its personnel, but because there will be more men to give greater time to selection of bids and less politics in the awarding of contracts. Until the last administration none of the Omaha jobbers had received a contract to supply state institutions for about ten years. The last administration gave them a fair chance, but prior to that most of them had been accustomed to throwing bulletins asking for bids in the waste basket. The contracting had been wrapped up in politics, they said, and they were not in the political game. Consequently, when they entered bids for groceries or certain kinds of supplies, their bids were ignored and the varieties and prices of supplies so manipulated that in nearly every instance those who had political influence or could be on the ground lobbying were the only ones to receive contracts. "It used to be the same way with the Indian bureau," said one jobber, "and contracts were never awarded to bidders west of the Mississippi. In most cases the bidders would be in New York. This has changed now and we all have a fair chance." "Most of the bids for supplies are opened and awarded quarterly," explained another Omaha jobber. "And we can't tell how we stand until the first quarter has been reached. However, we are sure the new State Board of Control will give us a fair deal. Things look better than they have for twenty-five years."

LAUDS PRINCIPALS' WORK
Superintendent Graff Commends Them for Good Accomplished.

DUE TO FAITHFUL EFFORTS
Ever Ready and Hearty Co-Operation of Teachers Instrumental in the Success Achieved During Last Year.

Superintendent Ellis L. Graff of public schools has sent a circular to all principals commending them for doing good work during the school year. He says: "This year has been a successful one. This success is due to the trustworthiness and capable men and women who each day are doing well not only the tasks assigned them, but are giving of their time, strength and ability to do many things not laid down in the course of study, the results of which can in no way be measured. "I am wishing for each of you a happy vacation. May September bring us back rested and ready for work in the field where there is so much for each of us to do. "Personally I thank you for your ever-ready co-operation and want you to carry with you my feeling of appreciation and gratitude for what you have done this year for the boys and girls of Omaha."

SHOWING MADE BY GRADUATE

Creighton College Marked Up Among the Best of Schools.

PER CENT OF FAILURES SMALL

American Medical Association Report Gives an Idea of What the Students Are Accomplishing in Omaha.

The American Medical Association report published in the Journal of May 24, is authority for the statement that the John A. Creighton Medical college, Omaha, is doing work of a high order. The association has for several years kept statistics covering the results of examinations given for medical licenses by examining boards of all states in the union and each year a report is published. During 1912 fifty-five Creighton graduates were examined in eight different states and only five failed to pass. Comparison with the percentage of failures among the graduates of other colleges shows that the Creighton percentage was comparatively small. Of the fifty-five, four failed in Nebraska and one in Oregon. The states in which they were examined were California, Idaho, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oregon and South Dakota.

Of the graduates from 1908 to 1912, inclusive, examined by state boards in 1912, fifty-one were Creighton graduates, and only four failed. They were examined in seven different states, and Creighton's percentage of failure was 7.8. Failures among foreign schools was 24.8 per cent. The report also places Creighton in the list of the forty-three large medical schools of the country.

Failures Are Few.
Of the graduates for all years, fifty-five were examined and fifty passed, giving Creighton a percentage of but 8.1 failures.

In the table of graduates of 1908-12 Creighton had fifty-one examined, with four failures, giving that school a percentage of 7.8 failed, a lower percentage than twenty-six of the forty-three schools. Of the 1912 graduates, forty-four were examined and two failed, the per cent being 4.5 failed, which is lower than for twenty-nine of the forty-three schools listed. In this group Creighton stands eleventh among the forty-three larger of the 119 medical colleges in the country.

Of the graduates from 1908 to 1912, inclusive, seven were examined in other states and all passed. An examination before the state board of another state is regarded as a severe ordeal, and Creighton's record in this respect is perfect. In the table devoted to colleges having less than 10 per cent of failures before state boards in 1912, forty-one of the 119 schools in the country are listed. Creighton is the only one in Nebraska.

Mrs. Lucy McBride May Live Through This Afternoon

Mrs. Lucy McBride, who was shot Thursday evening by her divorced husband, John Jacobson, at her home, 714 South Sixteenth street, Thursday, is in a very serious condition and little hope is held for her recovery. Exhaustion brought on by the loss of blood and grief over the tragic death of her son, Charles McBride, who was shot and killed by Jacobson, is rapidly weakening the little woman's fight for life at the St. Joseph hospital.

I CAN EAT ANYTHING.

I Can Not Praise Peruna Enough. It Has Done so Much for Me.

Functional diseases of the stomach are more common than any other ailment. The majority of people do not have perfect digestion. Perhaps half of the people have some noticeable distress or derangement of the stomach. Thousands of people are invalids because of weak stomachs. We are continually hearing of the benefit that Peruna is in derangements of the stomach. Gradually the stomach gets worse and worse until the victim finds himself or herself incapable of taking ordinary food. Mrs. Bauer's was such a case. We extract from one of her letters a brief statement of what she says about it: "I cannot praise your wonderful medicine, Peruna, enough. It has done much for me during the past ten years, and I keep it in the house continually. I was in such a condition that I could eat nothing but bread and milk, and even that was too heavy for me at times. Now I can eat anything. "I will recommend Peruna to all my friends." People who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.
