OMAHA LAWYERS GATHER

Over Three Hundred Turn Out at Noon Luncheon.

JUDGES ADDRESS ASSEMBLY

Exchange Greetings of Jurisprudence and Then Repair to Happy Hollow to Try Their Hands at Golf.

Lawyers' day brought out about 300 for the noon luncheon at the Commercial club. T. W. Blackburn acted as toastmaster and had considerable fun at the expense of the justices of the state supreme court, who were the guests of honor.

Chief Justice Reese, who was the first member called upon, congratulated Omaha on everything he could think of, even to the pleasure it must experience at having him as a guest. He congratulated the state for having such an able corps of justices and declared he did not believe their superior could be found anywhere. He then announced that his modesty forbade him congratulating the supreme court on having him on the bench.

Justice Fawcett took exception to the statement of the toastmaster, who announced that at Happy Hollow in the afternoon no lawyers would be allowed to speak, but that some of the judges might. He praised Douglas county and its bar, and said it had been a pleasure in the supreme court to go over Douglas county cases.

H. C. Lindsay, clerk of the supreme court, said he had simply come along to see what really transpired in Omaha on Lawyers' day, as he had heard the justices tell on their return on previous occasions of the great deeds they had performed here at base ball games and other athletic games. He said if there were really any home runs made he wanted to see them with his own eyes. Justice Hamer told of how kindly he felt toward Omaha since the day he first landed in the village forty-two years ago. His heart, he said, is still full of gratitude to Omaha for what it has done for him.

Arthur Wakeley, in behalf of the bar of Omaha, spoke briefly and seriously, assuring the justices of the supreme court that every one of them stood high in the opinion of the Douglas county bar, and he hoped it would be a long time before there would be occasion for them being regarded in any other light.

The sale was made for Philip Dorr of Creighton, Neb., to Cudaby Packing company. The average weight of the shipment was 1400. They were worn fed.

Howell Orders His Clerks to Keep Their Coats On; His is Off

"Put on your coats," said R. Beecher Howell, water commissioner, when his tolling, sweating office force hung their coats on a rack and bent to their labors in that very hot west room in the city hall.

"But it's too hot," protested a rather obese bookkeeper.

"Don't care. It ain't polite to wait on customers with your coats off."

And then, saying things the water commissioner could not in his official position wholly approve, his dejected office gang went back to work.

"What do you know about that?" said a clerk. "No other firm in Omaha makes such a fool ruling, as far as I know. If we were back in The Bee building it wouldn't be so bad for it was cool there, but here—why man look at me."

He was a sight. Dark and sodden rings circled his coat sleeves where the perspiration had soaked through. His shirt clung tenaciously to him. Little streams of water ran in zigzag lines down his flushed face.

"Good heavens," said a consumer, "what do we care whether you wear coats or not? All we want in to have the rates reduced and I can't see how this order for the office force to wear coats does anything but reduce flesh. Oh, the ways of the water commissioner are certainly past all understanding. Gimme a receipt."

While his clerks raged inwardly and sweated profusely, R. Beecher Howell, the water commissioner, was sitting in his private office with his coat off, the windows high, and a cool wind from an electric fan, wafted his cigarette smoke away.

Ohioans to Have Picnic on Saturday, With Fried Chicken

The Ohio society, which has been in existence twenty-three years, will give a basket picnic in Hanscom park Saturday afternoon. The date had been set for June 28, but on account of that being registration day it was changed to June 21. One feature of the picnic is that all are expected to bring among other things, fried chicken.

JUDGES KEEP ON THEIR COATS IN OPEN SESSION

None but the judges has to wear a coat in the district and county court rooms during the present hot weather. Judge Sutton in court room No. 1 on the fourth floor, which is the warmest room in the building, established the precedent for the year of allowing jurors, lawyers and whomever will, to sit in their shirt sleeves, and the custom became in force in every court room. The judges, however, still retain their coats while sitting on the bench.

Baby Welfare Work Conducted in Own Homes This Year

The last monthly meeting of the Visiting Nurses' association until fall has been held. There was a good attendance and the records show that 47 visits were made among 109 patients during May.

Baby welfare work this summer will be conducted for the little tots in their own homes. For three years the association has maintained a baby camp, but on account of the difficulty of getting mothers to give up their sick infants, it has been decided that more could be accomplished by attending the little ones in their own homes. Milk and ice will be taken to them and their mothers instructed in their comfort and care.

In the dispensary during the last two months there have been 691 cases reported there, with 221 follow-up visits into homes.

All are in a serious condition.
