FAIRBANKS ADVISES THE REPUBLICANS TO FORGIVE AND FORGET

rather than of the future. Such prophesy is not new, we have heard it proclaimed in other days. The fact is that some of its greatest achievements have followed predictions to the effect that its usefulness was ended. And such predictions will be heard hereafter. To remain power the party must be worthy of it and to be worthy of it it must be true to its traditions; it must hold to sound principles of government and meet at all times the advancing of a great people.

"Soon we shall dedicate to the commerce of the world the great Panama canal, a republican achievement. It will exert considerable influence on American commerce, in which our people are now greatly interested. China, which just overturned absolutism and now is fashioning a republic, so far as possible, after our own model, has vast undeveloped potentialities in the world's future commerce. The pressure which is serving to unite the older nations of the world with which we compete means that the economic principles of the republican party should not be discarded unless we wish to bring commerce to the lower level of our competitors. Water seeks the lowest level and trade will flow. If unrestricted, into the best markets. If our markets are opened to the world upon the same terms which prevail in their countries all must come to a substantial level."

Discusses the Tariff.

The speaker then came to the question of the tariff and spoke of the equalizing of the burden of taxation. He referred particularly to the income tax, which, he declared, should be so fixed as to distribute its results in a manner which would not be discriminatory against a particular few. The requirements of better citizenship and common justice demand that the minimum be placed at a figure which will give it the proper distribution, he declared.

"The tariff should be revised with discriminating judgment," he continued, "should be ascertained by a board of experts, so as to impose no American production without imposing any unjust burden upon the people."

Mr. Fairbanks declared that the republican party should stand firm for the integrity of the courts in the exercise of their judicial functions. "We do not believe," he said, "that the ends of justice will be subserved by undermining our judicial system, directly or indirectly."

Tends to Make Judges Cowards.

"The real loss judges under an alien system which is being introduced into portions of the country is in its experimental stages, but so far as it has been tried it has not proved to be an improvement upon our present system. It tends to make cowards of those who should feel no fear, so long as they judge people according to law. A court which bends to the varying breezes of popular opinion in the time of passion, or amid the hysteria of the moment is a menace to liberty and to the administration of justice among men. A brave, high-minded, incorruptible judiciary is one of the strongest assurances of liberty. It is the bulwark upon which the weak and defenseless must rely in years to come."

"I had hoped that there would be an end of party controversy for the present," he said, "Time is a great healer and does much to compose differences among friends. There is less acrimony this year than last, and it will be less next than it is now. Whenever elections have been held the drift has been decidedly towards the republican party; and in the larger elections of come next year this will be repeated undoubtedly by increased republican gains."

Republicans in Majority.

"Circumstances which unfortunately led to party division a year ago no longer exist. The democratic party is in full power and it can be overturned only by the united effort of the great body of those believe in the soundness and efficacy of republican principles. Republicans, that is to say those who believe in the political doctrine of the republican party, are largely in the majority throughout the country. I have no doubt whatever that the logic of events will bring them into co-operation again. This much is to be desired: result cannot be accomplished by coercion of any sort; it must come about naturally, by the exercise of a spirit of tolerance and patience; old scores should be forgotten, as President McKinley happily puts it—'It does not do to keep books in politics.' A year ago many harsh things were said and undoubtedly too, many ungenerous things were done—things which would be either said or done again. What would it profit to recall them? No well-wisher of his party or the country will endeavor to kindle the dead embers of old differences."

Test of Republicanism.

No prescriptive spirit should be kept alive. No matter how differently good

HUMMEL WILL NOT INTERFERE

Industrial Workers May Go Hang Themselves for All He Cares.

CANNOT ENFORCE HIS RULING

Says It Is Impossible to Stop Gatherings in Public Places, So There Is No Use in Trying to Do So.

For all Joe B. Hummel, park commissioner, cares, the Industrial Workers of the World can hang themselves in Jefferson square and he will not interfere. He says he will not attempt to keep them off the grass in Jefferson square and he has made no move to enforce his ruling that no public speaking can take place in any park until he granted permission.

"We can't always do like we want to," said Hummel. "I don't intend to try to keep them off the grass in any of the parks. It's no use."

Hummel said the stringent rules in an ordinance he had passed by the city commission were "aimed at Jefferson square," where the proletariat gather.

"This ordinance provided that parks should not be entered except by established routes. Hummel will not enforce the same at Jefferson square. He says patrons of the parks may walk on the grass any hewer so long as they'll please keep off the flowerbeds."

"You can't stop people gathering in the streets, can you?" he inquired. "Well, neither can you stop them from gathering in the parks and walking around. There you are."

The ordinance which Hummel says he will not enforce reads: "It shall be unlawful for any person to hold any public meeting or gathering, or to make any public speech in any park, except upon the written permission from the superintendent of parks and public property."

The part of the ordinance pertaining to walking on the grass, which Hummel now declares he cannot enforce, reads: "It shall be unlawful for any person to walk, stand or sit on any border, flower bed, monument, vase, fountain, railing, fence or boulevard, and to enter or leave any park, playground and boulevard except by established routes."

PRESIDENT MAKES PERSONAL PLEA FOR MONEY LEGISLATION

burden as the season lengthens, and that every consideration of personal convenience and personal comfort, perhaps, in the cases of some of us, considerations of personal health even, dictate an early conclusion of the deliberations of the session; but there are occasions of public duty when these things which touch us privately seem very small; when the work to be done is so pressing and so fraught with big consequences that we know that we are not at liberty to weigh against it any point of personal sacrifice. We are now in the presence of such an occasion. It is absolutely imperative that we should give the business men of this country a banking and currency system by means of which they can make use of the freedom of enterprise and of individual initiative which we are about to bestow upon them.

Need Tools to Work With.

"We are about to set them free; we must not leave them without the tools of action which are free. We are about to set them free by removing the trammels of the protective tariff. Ever since the civil war they have waited for this emancipation and for the free opportunities it will bring with it. It has been reserved for us to give it to them. Some fell in love, indeed, with the slothful security of their dependence upon the government; some took advantage of the shelter of the nursery to set up a mimic mastery of their own within the walls. Now both the tonic and the discipline of liberty and maturity are to ensue. There will be some readjustments of purpose and point of view. There will follow a period of expansion and new enterprises, freshly conceived. It is for us to determine now whether it shall be rapid and facile and of easy accomplishment. This it can not be unless the resourceful business men who are to deal with the new circumstances are to have at hand and ready for use the instrumentalities and conveniences of free enterprise which independent men need when acting on their own initiative."

Means to Vitalize Credit.

"It is not enough to strike the shackles from business. The duty of statesmanship is not negative merely. It is constructive also. We must show that we understand what business needs and that we know how to supply it. No man, however casual and superficial his observation of the conditions now prevailing in the country, can fail to see that one of the chief things business needs now, and will need increasingly as it gains in scope and vigor in the years immediately ahead of us, is the proper means by which readily to vitalize its credit, corporate and individual, and its originative brains. What will it profit us to be free if we are not to have the best and most accessible instrumentalities of commerce and enterprise? What will it profit us to be quit of one kind of monopoly if we are to remain in the grip of another and more effective kind? How are we to gain and keep the confidence of the business community unless we show that we know how both to aid and to protect? What shall we say if we make fresh enterprises necessary and also make it very difficult by leaving all else except the tariff just as we found it? The tyrannies of business, big and little, lie within the field of credit. We know that. Shall we not act upon the knowledge? Do we not know how to act upon it? If a man can not make his assets available at pleasure, his assets of capacity and character and resources, what satisfaction is it to him to see opportunity beckoning to him on every hand, when others have the keys of credit in their pockets and treat them as all but their own private possessions? It is perfectly clear that it is our duty to supply the new banking and currency system the country needs, and that it will immediately need it more than ever."

Now is Time to Act.

"The only question is, when shall we supply it—now, or later, after the demands shall have become reproaches that we were so dull and so slow? Shall we hasten to change the tariff laws and then be laggards about making it possible and easy for the country to take advantage of the change? There can be only one answer to that question. We must act now, at whatever sacrifice to ourselves. It is a duty which the circumstances forbid us to postpone. I should be recreant to my deepest convictions of public obligation did I not press it upon you

LAX LAW LEADS TO FORTUNE

Illinois Man Profits by Legislative Failure.

INFECTED CATTLE SHIPPED IN

State Veterinarian Boastrom Constantly Hearing of Cases Where Diseased Stock Is Sold Into This State.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, June 23.—(Special.)—Evidence still continues to pour into the office of the state veterinarian that the late lamented legislature made a most vital mistake when it refused to pass the bill introduced which would have prevented the shipping of tubercular cattle into the state.

It is said that one man in Illinois has cleaned up over $200,000 taking advantage of the lax laws of that state, Nebraska and other states by shipping from Illinois diseased cattle into states which, like Nebraska, have not a sufficient law to prevent the shipments.

Two men called on State Veterinarian Boastrom yesterday who had bought cattle of the Illinoisan and said they had made tests of the cattle bought. Six of the nine had tested showed tubercular germs. They had been told that these cattle could be disposed of at South Omaha, as cattle showing slight symptoms were all right for food, but if the disease had progressed too far they would be condemned by government inspectors and made into soap.

DAKOTAN'S NOMINATION FOR COLLECTOR HELD UP

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—(Special Telegram.)—Friends of Joseph Coffey of South Dakota, whose nomination as interior revenue collector for the two Dakotas was sent in by the president last April, were disappointed that it was not confirmed today.

The nomination has been in the hands of the senate finance committee since April 23. Confirmation was delayed because many protests were received by the senators from the two states against confirmation.

Mr. Coffey has been state chairman of the democratic central committee in South Dakota and prominent in politics for many years. He is a political enemy of Pat Wickham, the opponent of Johnson in the gubernatorial campaign last fall. Johnson is supporting him at present.

It is said, however, that the opposition to Coffey's confirmation is not altogether factional.

Senator Sterling of South Dakota, who has received many protests against Coffey's confirmation stated today that the opposition was more than political.

He said, however, that as the matter was still pending he could not reveal what charges, if any, had been made against Coffey.

He declares that he was not taking any position in the matter except to urge that the protests against confirmation be fully examined by the committee before the nomination be confirmed.

All proceedings with reference to this nomination have been in executive session. It is known, however, that the committee has had in several times and have not reached any conclusion.

Intimations are for that it will not be passed upon for some time.
