Horrigan Ejects News Reporter Who Rummages Papers

Charles B. Driscoll, reporter for the News, was forcibly ejected from the office of Dan Horrigan, secretary of the charter convention, when Horrigan, coming into the office, found the newspaper man rummaging through the official papers of the convention.
"I had frequently told him to keep out of my office when I was not there," said Horrigan. "He had a habit of going there when I was out and looking over the papers on my desk. I found him going through the records of the charter, quite at home in the office."
"I will file complaint for assault," said Driscoll. "Horrigan had given me the papers he snatched away. I didn't get real angry until about fifteen minutes after the incident, and then I decided I'd punch his head the first time I met him on the street. I'm glad I didn't lose my head or something might have happened there."

Copeland is Held Under the Mann Act

John W. Copeland and Josephine Phillips are in the clutches of the federal government, the former charged with violation of the Mann white slave act. Copeland is alleged to have taken the girl from Kansas City to St. Louis, thence to Kansas City and finally to Omaha for immoral purposes. Last night he was run down by city detectives. Josephine Phillips told United States Attorney P. S. Howell that she was 23 years of age and was married to Copeland. When asked how old she was when married she said 18. She then went on to explain that she was married in the year 1906. Howell says she is about 22 years and not married to Copeland.

CHARLES E. ADY RETIRES

Lays Down Part of Duties as General Agent.
STAYS WITH THE NATIONAL LIFE
Will Continue Selling Insurance, Service to Policy Holders and Devote Some Time to Growing Private Interests.
Charles E. Ady retired from a position long held by him with the National Life Insurance company.
Mr. Ady came to Omaha as state agent and adjuster for one of the fire insurance companies July 1, 1901. January 1, 1908, he resigned this position to engage in the life insurance business with John Steel, Nebraska general agent of the National Association of Life Underwriters.
During his twenty years in the life insurance business he has been an active and loyal member of the Life Underwriters' Association of Nebraska, which he has served as president and many terms as chairman of the executive committee. During the same time he has been prominently identified with the National Association of Life Underwriters. For twelve years he was a member of the executive committee, and for seven years chairman of its most important sub-committee. He has a wide acquaintance with life insurance men and company officials. He has always stood for square and honorable dealing with the public and for a high code of ethics in the life insurance business.
Mr. Ady is well identified with the business affairs of Omaha and is extensively interested in farms and farming in western Iowa, eastern Nebraska and eastern South Dakota. He expects to spend considerable time on his farms hereafter.
Letter to Agents.
Accompanied by a letter from the National Life Insurance company, Mr. Ady has sent out to the policyholders of the agency the following letter:
NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., MONTPELIER, VERMONT.
CHARLES E. ADY, General Agent.
601-53 Paxton Block.
OMAHA, Neb., July 1, 1913.
To the Policyholders of the National Life Insurance Agency, My Friends and Acquaintances:
After fifteen years' service with the National Life Insurance company, I am retiring July 1 from my present position with this company. During these years my business relations with you have been uniformly pleasant and agreeable, and with many of you personal relations also have been very pleasant. Many of you are my closest and dearest friends, and you all are my friends, patrons and unwavering supporters. I have been your earnest advisor at all times to render you the best service I could, and I will continue to do so in the future. You are insured in one of the oldest and best companies, and hold policies that are not surpassed in point of excellence and liberality. It is my desire and hope that all of you will continue to carry your policies through to maturity, and that your business should be made through this office as heretofore. I have lived in Omaha twenty-two years, and I have been connected with the National Life Insurance company since 1901. However, I shall devote my time to the selling of life insurance and service to policyholders through this office, telephone Douglas 124, or at my residence, 42 North Thirty-ninth street, telephone Hazey 123.
Assuring you I shall always remember you kindly, that I shall be glad to see you at any time, and trusting that I may have your continued friendship and good will, with best regards and best wishes, I remain, Yours very truly,
CHARLES E. ADY.

OMAHA JOBBERS WILL NOT HAVE A TRADE EXCURSION

The trade extension committee of the Commercial club has decided that it will not have a trade excursion this year because of the strenuous objection of the jobbers. This is the second year in which the trade excursion has been passed.

Charles E. Ady to Lay Down Burden of Executive Work

Charles E. Ady, after fifteen years as general agent for the National Life Insurance company in Nebraska, lays down the general executive features of the work and will devote his time to the service of policyholders and selling life insurance, continuing his connection with this company.
This arrangement will enable him to give proper attention to certain private business affairs in addition. He is extensively interested in farming in Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota and expects to spend much of his time hereafter on his farms.
J. V. Starratt of the National Life, formerly located at Lincoln, takes up the work from which Mr. Ady retires.
Mr. Ady, who has been in the life insurance business in Omaha for twenty-two years, is one of the most widely known insurance men in the state and middle west, and has an extensive acquaintance in the business over the country. He is one of a number of Omaha insurance men to achieve the kind of success that brings very substantial rewards and these rewards wisely handled now enable him to make his share.
The Ady home at 48 North Thirty-ninth street, was one of the larger dwellings in that handsome residence district stricken by the tornado. After several months it has been restored to first class condition, with a good deal of strain and stress upon the nervous force of Mr. and Mrs. Ady, who, with their children, contemplate recreation either in the western mountains or northern woods.

Sugar Goes Up and Coffee is Cheaper

Sugar has advanced 20 cents per hundred this week. This makes the total advance on sugar in the last three weeks 60 cents. There has been no change in the price of flour, but the old wheat is rapidly diminishing and the new wheat is coming in. New wheat is always of an inferior grade. Coffee has fallen off 1 cent a pound in the last month, while dried fruits are 25 per cent lower now than one year ago.
Red currants, gooseberries and black raspberries are now off the market. The apricot crop is short this year, but plums and all California fruit is very plentiful. Colorado raspberries, late cherries, Texas and California peaches are all on the market. Butter is now priced at 23 cents.

PEW IS RESTRAINED FROM GETTING HIS WIFE'S MAIL

Mrs. Edith Pew, wife of Arthur Pew, formerly owner and publisher of the Mediator and the Railroad Mediator, has secured a restraining order from Judge A. C. Troup of the district court enjoining the postal authorities from delivering mail addressed to Mrs. Pew, the Mediator and the Railroad Mediator to her husband. Another restraining order has been issued to Mrs. Pew by Judge English enjoining her from receiving mail not addressed to herself personally.
Mrs. Pew is suing her husband for divorce. Pew at present is in Kansas City and before going away left a change of address card for the Mediator and Railroad Mediator mail to be sent to him. He claims he still owns and publishes the two papers, while his wife claims she is the rightful owner and publisher of the papers. The restraining orders were put into the hands of Postmaster John C. Wharton today.

BEST FISHERMAN IN STATE

City Clerk Flynn Gives Fine Demonstration of Ability.
NEVER GET AWAY FROM HIM
Even When the Pole Breaks Under Heavy Strain He Goes Right After Line Without Fear or Hesitation.
Through the stress and storm of a long career in local politics Thomas J. Flynn, the genial city clerk, has held doggedly to his title of friend of the plain people and untried vote-corraller, and he has persistently fought down anything that might dim the glory of his pristine prowess, but, lo! the work of a lifetime is shattered and Flynn squirms beneath a new and frivolous title.
"Best fisherman in the state," said Josephus Butler, city tax commissioner, returning from a trip to Carter lake with Flynn. "That boy has it all over the ancient Peter or any other angler I have ever known or read about. Why, let me tell you what he did yesterday."
And then follows the fish story here related, which, by word of numerous witnesses, is declared to be the uncolored truth.
With a cane pole and a little rowboat Butler and Flynn anchored in the shade of the old lighthouse across from the bathing beach. They baited their hooks and threw them wide and waited for the fish to bite. They got a few nibbles and the promise of a real big fish, when the cork went under with a thud. They even pulled in a few nice bass.
Suddenly, while drowsing in the heat, Flynn saw his bobber shoot straight down. The line went whistling through the water. He felt a mighty tug at his pole. This tug was so great that it nearly capsized the boat. Flynn, a little excited, reeled in, and then suddenly, with a vicious wiggle of the tail the lake monster broke the pole clean off.
He hit said that Thomas J. Flynn is no coward. With a lunge he left the boat, knocking Butler over in the bottom of it. He hit the water broadside on a few powerful strokes sent him with a marvelous speed through the water toward the disappearing little end of the pole. He caught the pole about the middle of the lake and turning about, resolutely swam heroically for the shore.
Butler, mouth open in astonishment, watched him toil through the choppy waves. Flynn did not call for help. He went straight for the shore and clambering up the bank, proceeded to land his catch. Then the first yell of delight escaped him.
"A big blue bass," he shouted. "As big as a whale. Look at him, Joe. Just look at him. He'll weigh twenty pounds."
Of course the bass didn't weigh twenty pounds, but Butler and Flynn agree that he tipped the scales at three.

Murphy Starts to Grade West Farnam

Hugh Murphy has started grading west Farnam street from Forty-fourth to Forty-eighth, preparatory to curbing and paving. The stone for the curbing is now en route to Omaha and George Munroe, in charge of Mr. Murphy's paving outfit, says the work is to be pushed to completion, thus relieving the condition at the Belt line crossing at Forty-sixth and Dodge streets.

LABORER BADLY INJURED BY FALLING CEMENT

Herman Piefer, 509 Pierce street, met with a painful accident when a number of sacks of cement fell upon him. He was occupied with several other laborers in piling up the material at the old saw barn. Twenty-second and Nicholas, when a wall or it about forty sacks high, fell over, pinning Piefer underneath. He sustained a fractured hip and jaw and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where Police Surgeon Folts gave him medical attention.

BY MELLIFICIA. Friday, July 11, 1913.

MEASLES have upset the summer plans of society. While there are more than the usual amount of entertainments going on during the heated term, especially for the attractive visitors, still a number of young matrons have had to change their plans for the summer because many of the young fashionables have the measles.
Not any of the children have been seriously ill; in fact, most of them have such "a light case" that it is difficult to keep them in, but as the malady is contagious at certain times, many summer plans have been upset.
Little Julie and Samuel Caldwell, Jr., who were to have accompanied their grandmother to Toga, Pa., had to remain home because little Miss Julie had the measles; later Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Caldwell and children plan to go east.
Little Miss Eleanor Kountze had an attack of the measles and was out of quarantine only one day before leaving for Europe with her mother, Mrs. Charles A. Kountze.
The little Misses Gertrude Kinsler and Gertrude Kountze have each just recovered from an attack; the latter became suddenly ill while attending a children's party at the Country Club.
Little Miss Catherine Coad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Coad, has just recovered and left Tuesday evening with her grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Creighton, and Miss Etta Creighton, for a few weeks' stay at Bald Eagle Lake, Minn.
Little Mary Jane Kinsler has a slight attack and Katherine Deorly, Bernice Smith and Frank Blair Smith are among the children who have recently recovered.

Little Miss Virginia Moore celebrated her tenth birthday by entertaining a number of her playmates at Happy Hollow this afternoon. Mrs. J. A. Moore was assisted by Mrs. John A. Lionberger and about eighteen children were present. The invitations were in rhyme and most of the replies came in rhyme. The following jingle served as the invitations for the children:
"On July eleventh,
If you have the time,
I would like you to be
A guest of mine.
If you will come
At the hour of two,
I will do my best
To entertain you."
