BY MELLIFICIA. Thursday, July 24, 1913.

MOST of the social interest this week centers at the Field club, where the national clay court tennis tournament is in progress.

Although most of the prominent players had difficult matches to play yesterday, they took part in the dance last evening, especially when two or three tangos were played by the orchestra, the visitors proving quite as expert at dancing as in tennis.

The local committee appointed to entertain Miss Mary Brown and Mrs. R. N. Williams, the women tennis champions of the United States, are having difficulty to find local feminine players to meet them on the courts.

An interesting match has been arranged in mixed doubles, when the two California champions, Mr. Strachan and Mr. Griffin, will play with Miss Brown and Mrs. Williams.

The two women tennis champions will arrive in Omaha Friday morning, and in their honor Mr. George Haverstick, president of the Field club, and Mrs. Haverstick will entertain at dinner at the club Saturday evening.

They will have about eighteen guests, most of the men of the party being the visiting tennis players.

Heyn's Lively Fracas With Motorcycle Cop May Bring Charges. Charges against Motorcycle Officer L. H. Wheeler may be an outgrowth of a mix-up Wednesday between the officer and Lester Heyn, the photographer, arrested by the former on the charge of speeding on the boulevard near Miller park.

Heyn was driving his own machine with a party of friends, including Dr. James S. Goets and two young women, at what he thought a very moderate speed. As told by the passengers of the car, Heyn was stopped by Officer Wheeler, who used abusive language from the start, taking the name and number of the car and citing the owner to appear in the police court. Heyn later complained to the companion motorcycle officer, Emery, of the treatment accorded him by Wheeler, and, returning, was again accosted by Wheeler, using more abusive language than ever, and required by him to accompany him at once to the station.

At the station Wheeler is said to have completely lost his head, and indulged in a tantrum culminating in a personal assault on Heyn, from which he had to be called off by Police Captain Dempsey. The fracas at the station was caused by Heyn's persistent assertion, despite orders to "shut up," that Wheeler persecuted him, and that the trouble was that he had not "slipped" overboard. Officer Wheeler, as usual, insisted that Heyn was oversteering and was the aggressor in the fracas. Heyn was finally released by Captain Dempsey on a $25 cash bond to appear in the police court Saturday.

LEGAL BATTLE OVER WILLS

Original Documents of Mrs. Jane Knapp Cannot Be Found.

COPIES ARE BEFORE THE COURT

Woman Leaves Property to Her Daughter and After a Falling Out with Her She Draws Another.

Which of two copies of two separate wills said to have been made by Mrs. Jane Knapp of Elk City, shall be accepted in court in view of the fact that neither of the originals can be found, is a question that is engaging the attention of an array of legal talent in the county court. Mrs. Knapp's estate amounted to something like $50,000, much of which was in farm land near Elk Creek and Waterloo.

She is said to have made a will a few years ago wherein she bequeathed a farm to her daughter, Mrs. Mary Coles, of near Waterloo. Later trouble arose between her and her daughter, and another will was made, it is alleged. Neither will can now be produced. The daughter is seeking to establish the genuineness of the first will in order to get the farm. Distant relatives from the east are seeking to discredit both wills in order that the property may be divided by the court among the various relatives.

Mr. Waldron, a banker of Waterloo, occupied the stand most of the forenoon. He told of having been present when Mrs. Knapp made one of the wills, which was placed in the safe deposit vault in his bank. During the flood of March, a year ago, several feet of water flooded the bank. Mr. Waldron rushed to the bank at 2 o'clock in the morning, pulled out drawers and placed them high and dry to save valuable papers. Then he opened the vault and took out drawers from there, placing them on the counter in the bank to keep them out of the water. In the confusion the will was among the papers lost.

Four Are Injured - in Collision of an Automobile and Car.

William Miller and Steve Green, both of the Rome hotel, and two young girls giving their names as Bessie Cameron, Twenty-fifth and Cuming streets, and Pauline Frost, Twenty-seventh and Burdette streets, sustained various injuries when an automobile in which they were riding Wednesday afternoon, collided with a south bound street car at Twenty-fourth and W streets, South Omaha.

Green was so badly injured that he had to be conveyed to the South Omaha hospital for treatment. After resting there all night he was taken to the Rome hotel Thursday morning.

Miller escaped with a few scratches and immediately after the accident telephoned to Omaha for a taxi to take himself and the girls home.

Dr. E. P. Shanahan attended the two girls. Miss Cameron had a fractured arm and Miss Frost a broken nose, besides painful bruises as a result of the mix-up. The party had been out motoring and was returning from Pattsomouth when the accident occurred.

Twice Married and Now Wants a Divorce.

After twice marrying the same man and finding, as she alleges, that he did not keep his promise and is again guilty of extreme cruelty toward her, Emma Purdy Wright is seeking a second divorce from Thomas O. Wright. She states that they were first married in Omaha April 7, 1905; that on December 16, 1908, they were divorced on account of her husband's extreme cruelty. He then, so she declares, promised faithfully that he would reform if she would again marry him. She married him the second time July 29, 1909, seven months after securing the divorce. She now alleges that he has been not only cruel but negligent. She asks the custody of the one child.

BRANDEIS STORES

Improvers Would Know Their Friends. Secretary J. O. Fawcett of the South-east Improvement club has transmitted to the city commission a resolution passed by the club asking for new sidewalks, lights, grading, curbing and other things, including the acquisition of land about Baneroff school for playgrounds. All the commissioners have received copies of the resolution, the closing paragraph of which reads: "And he further resolved that we take cognizance of events so that in the future we will know who our real friends are." This paragraph was inspired by the fact that the requests of the club heretofore, according to the resolution, have met with the response, "no funds." The resolution specifies that a copy of it shall be furnished each commissioner to "aid his memory."
