LARMON PUTS UP STIFF FIGHT

White Struchan, Californian Crack, Defeated Him, He Had to Do Some Huntling to Achteve

His Success.

Succumbing to the superior playing of visitors. Omaha's last two representatives in the national clay court tournament were Thursday eliminated in the race for the national championship. Cub Potter was easy pluckings for Fred Harris and Russell Larmon was no match for Johnny Strachan.

Russell Larmon played an excellent game of tennis against the western champion, considering his youth and inexperience. Larmon, although he only took two games, made the California lad fight for every point and on several occasions placed the ball so accurately that Strachan was unable to return. Larmon was able to return his adversary's service at all times and could make creditable return on his inwfords, but he lacked the science that years of experience against such men as McLaughlin and Johnson has given to Strachan and he frequently allowed Strachan to trick him out of position for the subsequent stroke.

Potter could do absolutely nothing with Harris' vicious smashes and lost easily, 6-1, 6-2. At no time in the match did the Vermont man have to extend himself to beat the Omaha man. As the match progressed the hopelessness of winning became more apparent and Potter did not put up the fight he did in the earlier

Best Match of All.

The best match of the afternoon was the match between Armstrong and Hall, Armstrong beat Hall last year in the clay court tournament at Pittsburgh and the easterner was determined to have his revenge this year. Hall has improved his game, while Armstrong is much weaker than he was last year. Hall got the jump on the Minnesota player and took the first set, 6-2, before Armstrong could

Armstrong got down to work in the second set and by clever strategy in forcing Hall out of position won the set, 8-3. Hall profited by his mistakes in the second set and, playing strictly a net game, did not permit Armstrong to force him out of position. With Hall smashing everything that he would deliver and recovering instantly. Armstrong was unshie to make any headway. He lost the third set quickly, 6-2,

Griffin Beats Jones. Clarence Griffin handly best Drummond Jones, the St. Louis player, 6-2, Jones, with his slow, easy-going style of play, could not compete against the westerner's fast smashing game. Griffin took the first two sets, but Jones with his careful placing made him work for the majority of the points. Jones is unusually wild and erratic this year. Before Jones has always been able to knock the ball into the corners of the court at will, but this year he continually would make returns that fell outside the prescribed | boundary.

Final Doubles Today. Strachan and Griffin will play Hall and Harris in the final round of the doublee today by virtue of the double victory of yesterday over Branson and Young and Hourr and Jones, respectively. The tall lanky Dakots players made the California couple hustle, but Harris and Hall had little difficulty with Hoerr and

Griffin was decidedly off his game in the doubles match and would repeatedly drive the ball outside or into the net on returns. Whenever he tried close placement at the sides or corners of the court the ball was sure to fall just outside the e. Strachan made up for his partner's deficiency by wonderful placement and his terrific lawfords. Branson and Young played a game worthy of the name, and the result was in doubt until the third set was well under way. Hoerr and Jones appeared to be slightly disturbed by some invisible jinx. Time and again when a slow bull would be delivered they would attempt smashes, but or go outside. At every turn the eastern team got the break in the luck. Whenever the ball was close to the line the decision was always in favor of Hall and

Harris played a wonderful net game It was seemingly impossible to get the ball past him, no matter how hard it lobs and slow higher returns.

The match between Kennedy and Madden and Griffen and Strachan on the adseining court was to much for the mixed team to overcome. Hoerr and Jones were not even pushed to win.

Hall and Harris, the eastern team, took Beyer and Sweet from Iowa into camp so easily that they played each other in singles match to make up for the deficiency in exercise. Beyer and Sweet were not as active as their opponents and could not chase after balls shot to one side without wearing themselves out. Consolutions Played.

Several matches in the consulations both singles and doubles, were played. Omaha players are monopolising those two events, Sweet of Des Moines being only visiting player remaining. Today the finals in the doubles will be played and also the semi-finals in the singles. Hall and Harris will play Griffin and Strachan in the doubles and Hall will play Griffin and Harris will play Struchan in the semi-finals of the singles. The two women's champions, Miss Browne and Mrs. Williams, will play several matches this afternoon also. singles match against each other had been arranged, and a mixed doubles match paired with the Catifornians or Kock and Potter will comprise the other
