JOE BURNS STRIKES WATER

Wizard of Lancaster County Solves Penitentiary Problem.

WARDEN LETS HIM GO AHEAD

Some Convicts Are Now Working in Harvest Fields Near Prison, Reporting to Warden Each Night.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Neb., July 29.—(Special.)—Warden Fenton of the state penitentiary was at the office of Governor Morehead this morning, feeling exceedingly good over the fact that the drought at the penitentiary has been broken. Joe Burns solved the problem by putting down a well which meets every requirement. Senator Burns has always contended that he could put down a well which would furnish all the water needed for the institution, but heretofore former wardens wanted it put down their way and in the place they wanted it.

Senator Joe has heretofore accommodated them by following their instructions and as a result attempts to get a well which would flow in dry weather as well as wet weather have failed. This time after making an attempt where the warden wanted it, the senator was allowed to put one down where he thought there was water, and as a result water was struck at a depth of sixty feet with a thirty foot rise, which with constant pumping for two hours was unable to lower the flow an inch. Such a flow after the dry weather enables the penitentiary to rest easy as far as its future supply of water is concerned.

Warden Fenton said the eighteen prisoners were working in the harvest fields near the penitentiary or at other work near by. Nearly all of them are helping in the threshing of grain at nearby farms and are sent out without placing them in charge of a guard.

Men Put on Honor.

"I tell them," said the warden, "that if they go out and behave themselves and report to me every night they will be allowed to go out, but if they fail to live up to my requirements they will lose and chance in the future of getting out before their time expires. Some of the men I have out on their honor are life trustworthiness. They appreciate the fact that if they do not behave themselves and that all chance for a pardon in the future will be lost. They are paid $1.50 per day, of which the state gets $1 and the prisoners the rest. They are also given their board, which during this time of the year is of the best."

The warden said also he is having no trouble along the dope line. It has been entirely cut out and since the prisoners have been going without it they are a different class of men. They make little trouble and are therefore given more liberties. Every Sunday before chapel exercises they are turned out in the prison yard and allowed to communicate with each other and visit as much as they please. This has a good effect.

The prison garden this year has been so prolific that the prisoners have been fur-

Governor Pleaded at Entertainment

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Neb., July 29.—(Special.)—Governor Morehead, Treasurer George and the rest of the state house officials, deputies, clerks, janitors and others who went to Omaha last night to see the Ak-Sar-Ben circus and the den say it was the best old time they had had for many a long day and think that the fellows who failed to take it in lost out on something that they will never be able to come anywhere near duplicating.

"We had a mighty good time," said Governor Morehead. "Those Omaha knights of Ak-Sar-Ben can certainly pull off some entertaining stunts, and were I not bound by a solemn oath taken in the presence of his royal highness the king to keep everything under the hat I would like to tell you all about it. I have seen other performances put on by the boys down there, but this one put them all in the shade."

Wymore Gets Coursing Meet.

BEATRICE, Neb., July 29.—(Special.)—Wymore has secured the national coursing meet, which will be held the first two weeks in October. About five hundred greyhounds will be entered in the races. The meet has been held at Friend, Neb., for the last few years.

Roper to Be Guest of Wharton at Club for His Breakfast

Postmaster John C. Wharton will give an informal breakfast this morning at 8 o'clock at the Omaha club for Daniel C. Roper, first assistant postmaster general. Following the breakfast he will be taken for an auto trip about the city and at 11:30 o'clock will meet the employees of the Omaha postoffice. At noon he will go to the Commercial club, where a public reception will be given him. The following will be guests of Mr. Wharton at the Omaha club for breakfast:

Messrs.—
James C. Dahlman, Luther Drake, John A. McShane, Ward Burgess, G. W. Wattle, J. M. Gullie, H. E. Newbranch, James I. Woodard, Victor Rosewater, W. F. Baxter, John L. Kennedy, John C. Wharton, W. H. Bucholz.

Heavy Alimony is Asked from a Local Real Estate Dealer

Charles Blakely, real estate dealer, has been sued in district court for a divorce and $75,000 alimony by a woman who calls herself Leora Blakely and who alleges that she became his wife in September, 1911, by a common law marriage contract.

The plaintiff alleges that Mr. Blakely is worth $150,000. Cruelty and failure to support her are given as the grounds for her attempt to secure a divorce and alimony.

Mr. Blakely formerly lived at Beatrice and owns considerable property there. His residence in Omaha is 113 South Thirty-fifth street.

TO INVESTIGATE THE SATURN I. W. W. Clan Plan to Hold a Big Picnic

Ryder Orders Chief Dunn to Follow Up Complaints of Misconduct.

DUNN LAUGHS AT COMPLAINTS

Chief of Police Makes Light of the Report of Orgies on the Boat and Scoffs at the Newspaper Reporters.

"You fellows are making a lot of noise about that boat," said Chief of Police Henry W. Dunn, referring to the alleged excesses committed on board the steambot Saturn plying between Omaha and Florence. "Have you been eating prunes?"

John J. Ryder, police commissioner, Dunn's superior, said he had received numerous complaints of misconduct on the boat and was now investigating how far he could go in stopping such disorders.

"Chief Dunn will receive a letter from me today," Ryder declared, "in which I instruct him to go as far as he can in putting an end to the things complained of. I also ask him to advise with the legal department in regard to the power of the police of the city have over boats operating on adjacent navigable streams."

"That boat has been running there for a long time," Chief Dunn said, "and there has been no complaint before. It is no worse now than it has ever been. I don't see why it should be singled out for an attack."

"You know it's a regular hell-hole, don't you?" someone asked.

"Have you been eating prunes?" was Dunn's counter query.

"There is always more or less excitement on such excursions as this boat makes," Dunn continued. "Even on railroad trains it is so. What would be the use of stopping railroad trains because a crowd of excursionists had trouble?"

Ryder has, in the past, detailed police officers to protect the women and the men who unwittingly took the excursion trip on this boat.

"These officers have been paid by the proprietors of the boat," Ryder explained. "This is customary and we insist that an officer be paid by the man to whom he is detailed if it is not his regular duty. We believe police ought to be detailed to this boat to protect women from attack. I don't know how far I can go, because I don't know what power I have, but I expect Chief Dunn to carry out instructions."

Ryder said the disorders reported to have been committed on this boat may lead to arresting the passengers when they land. They would, in such cases, be charged with disorderly conduct or drunkenness.

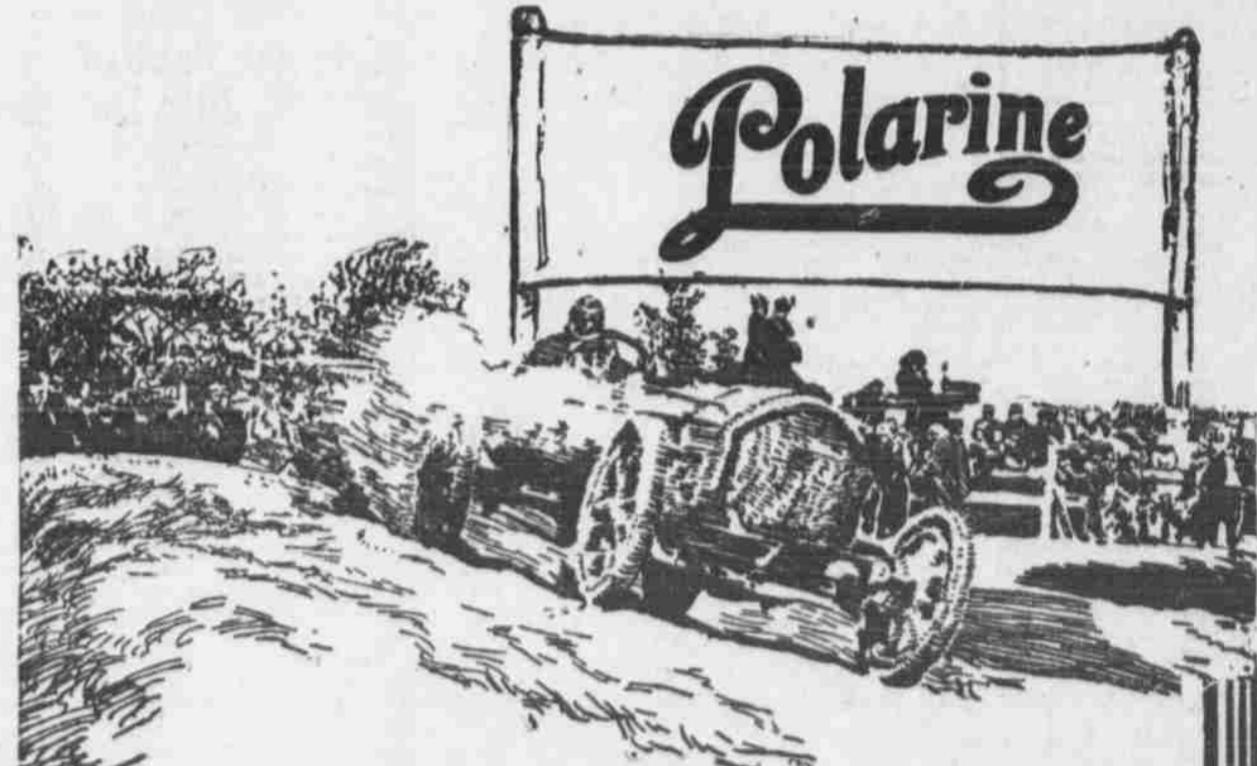

Deiker Tops Market With Fancy Steers

F. J. Deiker of Dodge, Neb., who is said to have a penchant for carrying off the highest prices on fancy beef steers, struck the highest mark of the year Monday at the stock yards, when eighteen of his beef steers, averaging 1350 pounds, sold at $9 per cwt. The steers were bought by Cudahy & Co. Deiker topped the highest price of last week when a shipment of his brought $8.50.

Widow Cannot Wed Again, Kills Self

MONTGOMERY, Mo., July 29.—Mrs. Henrietta Slavens, a pretty 16-year-old widow, attempted suicide today because her mother refused to give her consent to marry a second time. She took a dose of poison and is expected to die.

The girl's mother did not want her to wed again until she became of age.
