

10% More Oats For Your Money In This New Quaker 25c Size

Now Quaker Oats is put up, for your economy, in a large 25-cent package. Also, as always, in the regular 10-cent size.

We save in packing this large size. And we give you that saving in more oats for your money—one-tenth more for each dime than the 10-cent size. Then you don't need to buy so often. You will not so often run out.

Try this big package next time.

The oats are the same—just the big, plump grains. The luscious flavor is exactly the same as you find in the 10-cent size.

And a Quaker Oats breakfast—the world's premier breakfast—will cost less than one-half cent per person.

(The prices quoted do not apply in the Far West or South)

Quaker Oats

Just the Big, Luscious Flakes Alone

In every bushel of oats there are big grains and little—puny grains and plump.

The big grains alone have that luscious flavor which folks love in oats. So we pick them out, discarding all others. A bushel of choice oats yields but ten pounds of Quaker.

That's the reason for these big, white flakes. That's the reason for this wondrous flavor. From all the world over the lovers of oats send to us to get it.

Is it worth the getting?

In the first place, remember that Quaker Oats costs no more than others. It is easy to get. Any grocer will supply it if you simply mention Quaker.

Perhaps you get no more food value than in lesser oats, but you make that food value enticing. And that's a vital point.

Oats are vim-producing. They are rich in the elements brains and nerves require. "From early infancy," the best physicians say, "Feed your child on oats."

Then why not get the luscious flakes which make the dish inviting?

is built they will have to rebuild, and to do this they must accumulate a surplus. I have been told that unless I sell my stock for almost nothing I will never get another penny in dividends, and of course I can't fight. But what I can do is to get revenge, and I'm with you to pass your bill if you want my help."

Naturally I told her I wanted all the assistance I could get and if she would turn in and work with me she could count on half my fee.

I understand men because I have been dealing with them all my life to my advantage, but when it comes to women I frankly confess they are a puzzle I have never solved, and I doubt if any man is wiser. In fact, when I hear of a man boasting of knowing what a woman will do I am always certain that he knows even less than the rest of us. If Mrs. Watson had been a man she would either have thrown up her job or used her position to force the company to buy her stock at a stiff figure, but being a woman she went to work in a different way.

I HAVE great respect for the wise men who framed the Constitution of the United States, and especially the arrangement by which a Congress is divided into a long and short session, the short session being in December and ending on the fourth of the following March. That makes the session only three months, and when you take out Sundays and the Christmas holidays, there are actually about sixty working days. In those two months appropriation bills carrying hundreds of millions of dollars and other important legislation must be passed, so that in the last week or two of a session there is always a great congestion. Bills are jammed through without proper consideration, men are tired and looking forward to getting away, and those members defeated at the previous November election and no longer in fear of their constituents are open to offers. Especially as most of them leave Washington without a penny and know they will have hard sledding back home for a time. Hence a lobbyist usually waits until the end of a Congress to make his big strike.

As I knew the ropes I planned the campaign. Three days before the close of the session Mrs. Watson, who lived in the fashionable part of town, in a charming little house she had rented furnished, gave a dinner to which she invited the members of the committee, except Shropton, and a few other men who might make trouble. The House that night had an evening session, and just before adjournment, when there were few members present, Shropton, who had received another bundle of greenbacks from me, moved to take up our bill, and he had the support of some other members to whom I had promised various sums when the bill passed the House. As there was no member of the committee present to object and as Shropton explained that an appropriation was not asked for, the bill was agreed to in a perfunctory way. I had arranged with some friendly Senators to have it immediately passed in the Senate, which was done the next day. Then five ten dollar bills to each of a couple of clerks insured the bill being engrossed out of its regular turn, signed by the Vice-President and the Speaker and sent to the President, who approved it as a routine matter, as of course he knew nothing of what we had done.

I expected an explosion when the other side learned what had happened, but in the rush and hurry of day and night sessions men were too tired and too overworked to watch every bill, and it was Mrs. Watson who fired the mine. When the President had signed the bill and we no longer had anything to fear, Mrs. Watson sent a satirical dispatch to the president of the bridge company saying she wouldn't sell her stock but she was willing to buy his bridge for junk. It took the president some
